Japan, China Moving Main Armies to Front As War Threat Grows

100,000 Sent by Tokyo to Area Near Peiping, Nanking Reports.

Central Government's Troops to Precipitate Conflict, Belief.

The Spanish Situation—Page 7.

By the Associated Press.

Peiping, July 16.—The main armies of the Empire of Japan and the central government of China tonight appeared about to be drawn into the North China conflict, hitherto confined to local clashes.

Dispatches indicating troops of the central Chinese regime, thus far not involved, were moving north to meet the Japanese, reached high foreign officials.

"More than one" of Nanking's crack, German-trained divisions was said to have reached the vicinity of Paotingfu, 90 miles southwest of Peiping, by rail.

This was received by Northern Chinese as the first trustworthy evidence forces belonging to Nanking Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek were coming north to oppose what the Chinese say is Japan's purpose to sever the northern provinces from the rest of China.

New Troops May Force War.

Hitherto Peiping Chinese have paid little attention to Nanking statements. Six of its divisions were "standing by in North China."

Foreign observers said the approach of Nanking divisions might prove the provocation they believed the Japanese are awaiting to launch major warlike operations.

Troops from Japan's homeland divisions are known to be on the way to China. Reliable reports from Tientsin said preparations were being made at Tangshan, railway town 70 miles northeast of Tientsin, to receive a Japanese army corps from Korea. Japanese forces in Korea normally are limited to two divisions, but more from the homeland may have been moved into that Japanese colony since the crisis began.

At Nanking a government spokesman said China had "unimpeachable information" five Japanese divisions, "totaling 100,000 men," were on the way to China. He named the divisions, but his total appeared high, since a Japanese division even at full war strength is about 15,000 men.

Local Clashes Reported.

In the series of clashes, which began about 10 miles west of Peiping July 7, only men of Japan's North China garrison and the Chinese twenty-ninth route army have been involved. The twenty-ninth army, with two divisions in the Peiping area, is only nominally subject to Nanking's orders.

Local clashes occurred today and yesterday between small Chinese groups and Japanese moving by railway and roadway to concentrations around Peiping.

Peace negotiations at Tientsin continued without agreement.

Foreign military attaches believed Japan had some 6,500 troops around Peiping and a total of about 15,000 in North China.

There were many versions of the demands Japan has made at Tientsin—none of them official—but all agreed the Japanese are demanding virtual severance of the north from the rest of China.

The latest of the mounting series of thus far minor Sino-Japanese battles were reported from Huangtsun, about 12 miles south of here on the Peiping-Tientsin Railway, and Anping, 28 miles southeast of here.

Two Japanese Killed.

Maj. Takeo Imai, assistant military attache of the Japanese Embassy here, said two Japanese were killed at Huangtsun, one shot, the other brained by the sword of a Chinese infantryman. He said this brought the total Japanese losses since the July 7 clash to 20 dead and 60 wounded and made "proper measures" by the Japanese army imperative.

At Anping—meaning tranquil peace—Chinese behind the town walls were said to have fired on a Japanese column. The Japanese fought back, disarmed 100 Chinese, routed the rest, it was reported.

When Japanese army men were asked what their troops were doing at Huangtsun and Anping, they re-

3 Russian Fliers Plead 'Too Tired,' Cancel Luncheon

Los Angeles, July 16 (AP).—Russia's latest Polar fliers canceled a luncheon engagement today—they were "too tired."

The trio who established a world nonstop flight record of 6,262 miles from Moscow to a San Jacinto pasture early this week—Pilot Mikhail Gromoff, Copilot Andrei Yumasheff and Navigator Sergei Danilin—spent the morning resting after a crowd of 3,000 welcomed them on their arrival from San Diego.

Tonight the fliers attended the largest event in their honor, a banquet by city officials and the chamber of commerce. Civic and business leaders, ranking Army and Navy officers, aircraft company officials and fellow fliers joined in the tribute.

Any Conflict Affects America, Hull Warns After Chinese Plea States Policy as Nations Are Reminded of 9-Power Pact.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull last night warned the world "there can be no serious hostilities anywhere in the world which will not in one way or another affect interests or obligations or rights of this country."

Hull told newsmen last night in a press conference that had been delayed six hours that the statement was "of universal application."

The statement was a redefinition of American foreign policy—one of the most significant utterances the Secretary has made in four years.

It was regarded as of crucial importance in the Sino-Japanese situation. Earlier yesterday Chinese Ambassador Dr. C. T. Wang had submitted to the Secretary a plea from Nanking that the seven Occidental powers who signed the nine-power pact "take action" in the "present threat from Japan in North China."

The State Department's official attitude was that the situation remained unchanged. The statement of Hull on July 12 that "an armed conflict between Japan and China would be a great blow to the cause of peace and world progress" was held to be still the Government's official position.

The statement was worded with extreme care with no phrase in it that would not apply alike to all

Writer Is Slain By Thugs Near White House

Youths Say They Heard Thud; Coroner Finds No Marks.

On the eve of a vacation and in a holiday mood, a 48-year-old writer strolled to his death at the hands of three assailants in the shadow of the White House, just south of the State War and Navy Building last night.

The victim, Anatasia Econom, of 120 C street southeast, was slain by three robbers in shirt sleeves who accosted him and asked him for a cigarette, police believe.

At headquarters last night three youths, who said they had been seated on a bench about 30 yards away, told their story—a tragedy of a summer night in a much frequented park.

The witnesses were Edley Grayson, 17, and Harry Jones, 18, both of the 1700 block of K street northwest, and Ray Cox, 25, who said he lived at the Y. M. C. A.

"He was whistling at first, and we heard him coming past," they said.

Victim Heard Singing.

"Then he started singing the same tune he was whistling. He seemed happy, and he sang until three men stepped out from somewhere. We thought we heard one of them ask him for a cigarette.

After this, they told police, they heard a thud, as though some one were being struck on the head. As they rushed to help him, the three assailants fled in the direction of the White House. When they were 50 yards from the scene, they ran in different directions, and it was too late to catch them.

The witnesses went to Econom. They heard him groan, they said, and then he became still, and when police arrived he was dead.

Cox later was held for investigation, while the two other youths were released.

Three Men Arrested.

Sergt. W. F. Shelton, of the park police, arrested three men who were hiding in the bushes. They were taken to the Third Precinct Station and held for investigation. They gave their names as Robert McCoy, 33, of Texarkana, Tex.; James L. Musselwhite, 45, of the 800 block of Fifth street northwest, and Henry K. Carlisle, 36, of Cordova, N. C.

Robbery, police believe, was the motive for the murder. As he lay on the ground, Econom's empty wallet was open beside him, and his watch chain dangled from a pocket.

Police intimated that the slaying might have been committed by the same men who last Thursday night beat and robbed Maurice Moore, a

Six Prostrated In D. C. as Heat Hits Year's High

Mercury Soars to 95.7; Showers May Bring Relief Today.

The Weather Bureau's thermometer climbed to a new high for the year yesterday and the relentlessly burning sun that pushed it to 95.7 degrees at 4:20 p. m. brought heat prostration to six persons.

The day was hotter than any of its 1937 predecessors by only .3 degree. As early as 10 a. m. it was apparent the former record of 95.4, set Saturday, would be broken.

Local thundershowers were counted on by the forecaster last night to bring the sweltering Capital slight relief today, and while the bureau's policy is against predictions more than 36 hours in advance, there was "some chance," the bureau said, there would be a definite break in the heat wave by Sunday when a blanket of cool air now covering the northwest may be expected to reach the city.

A thunderstorm early last night hit the northeast and northwest sections. Seventeen trees were blown down. One of them broke into flames as it crashed against live wires. Another tree was blown against a house, 1926 U street northwest. There was no serious damage. Street lights were out near Bladensburg road in northeast.

Two of the heat victims—Ida Nagle, 56, of 722 F street northwest, and James Hiveley, 32, of 4350 Lee Highway, Arlington, were admitted to hospitals for treatment. Mrs. Nagle collapsed on John Marshall place northwest and was removed

2 Flying Boats Finish Atlantic Round-Trip Hops

Port Washington, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Establishment of transatlantic commercial air service appeared reality today with completion of round-trip flights in virtual routine fashion by two great flying boats of America and England.

Settling down off Botwood, Newfoundland, early today, the Pan-American Airways Clipper III completed its first round trip in a 16-hour 28-minute dash from Foynes, Ireland.

Little more than an hour before, the Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia, crossing with tail winds speeding its passage from Botwood, had ended its return flight to Foynes after 12 hours 20 minutes in the air.

Sen. Robinson Given Honors By Colleagues

By Franklyn Waltman.

Escorted by 60 of his House and Senate colleagues, the body of Senate Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson at 10 o'clock last night left Washington aboard a special train for Little Rock, Ark., where he was born more than 64 years ago and where he will be buried on Sunday.

In a special section of the train were Mrs. Robinson and members of her immediate family and several personal friends. Drawn by a Diesel engine, in the first use of such a locomotive in a trip from the East to the Middle West, the train will make unusually rapid time, arriving in Little Rock at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Senator Robinson's body will lie in state in the Arkansas capitol for several hours Sunday, and then a funeral service, to be attended by those who knew him from childhood and by his neighbors, will be held in the First Metnodist Church. Vice President John N. Garner will attend that service and the burial, representing President Roosevelt.

At a late hour Postmaster General James A. Farley, Undersecretary of the Interior Charles West and Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan decided to attend the funeral, and boarded the train shortly before it left Washington.

The service in Little Rock will be simple, as the home folks of the Ozarks come down to pay tribute to their dead senior Senator. But, so, too, were the funeral services held in the Senate Chamber and attended by the politically great of the Nation, simple. There at noon yesterday President Roosevelt, the Cabinet and representatives of 38 foreign nations paid to Senator Robinson silent tribute in a simple but reverent funeral service.

Men of opposing political beliefs sat side by side, in tribute to the fallen Democratic leader, all discord and dissent forgotten in their common grief over their dead friend. Even the formal clothing and the gold braid, so usual on such occasions, was conspicuously missing. There was no funeral oration—no eulogy. Only several sweet hymns and the voices of the Senate and House chaplains, commending the soul of the dead legislator to God's care.

Baruch Among Mourners.

There beside the coffin, heaped high with flowers—lilies of the valley, orchids and gladioli—before the Senate dais sat Mrs. Robinson, heavily shrouded in black, accompanied by her two brothers, her nephews and her relatives by marriage. The Robinsons had no children. There also, sitting behind the grief-stricken widow, was the patriarchal figure of Bernard M. Baruch, financier and Democrat, and Harvey Couch, Arkansas utilities magnate—both close friends of Senator Robinson.

Across the Senate well, directly in front of the vacant chair and desk of the dead Democratic chieftain, sat President Roosevelt, his hands clasped in his lap, one of the few dressed in formal morning clothing. Beside him sat eight members of his Cabinet, with the two missing members being represented. Behind them sat the Senate—Mrs. Hattie Caraway next to the vacant Robinson chair, and next to her, Senator Burton K. Wheeler and Senator Alben W. Barkley, now the two opposing leaders in the bitter Supreme Court fight.

Across the aisle from the President—nearby Mrs. Robinson and the family party—sat Justice Pierce Butler and Frank K. Green, the marshal of the Supreme Court, also in formal morning dress, the only representatives present of that high tribunal.

Behind Justice Butler sat the Diplomatic Corps, led by its dean, Sir

Price Dispute Ousts Czech Government

Praha, Czechoslovakia, July 16 (AP).—The government of Premier Dr. Milan Hodza resigned today. It was formed June 3, 1935. Observers believed dissolution of Parliament and new elections might follow.

The resignation arose from a conflict between the powerful agrarian faction and Finance Minister Dr. Josef Kalfus over regulation of grain prices.

To insure farmers "adequate profits," the agrarians demanded a state subsidy of 60,000,000 crowns (about $1,800,000), which Kalfus refused.

President Views Court War As 'Blind' to Stall Reforms; Senate Split on New Leader

President Keeps 'Hands Off' in Harrison-Barkley Race.

Byrnes Steps Out; Caucus Ordered

Neutral Pledge Given Mississippian at White House.

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt yesterday struck a neutral position in the Senate's neck and neck leadership race, as Senate Democrats, split wide open on the Administration court bill, divided again on the leadership issue.

Mr. Roosevelt disclaimed taking sides in the fight for the post of majority leader, but the court battle was taken up with renewed determination on both sides.

State funeral services for Senator Robinson, the former leader, were hardly over before a series of conferences was held at the White House and court plan opponents resumed their checking of votes on a possible motion to recommit the judiciary bill.

Observers drew these conclusions from his statements: That the President is still open to a sensible and satisfactory court bill compromise, as yet unsuggested; that he takes little stock in assertions that the party is irrevocably split and will eventually act to smooth over all breaches except those wherein opponents have finally severed themselves from all progressive action, and that he will never, while in the White House, recede from pressing forward with the second New Deal.

Leadership and court fighting in the Senate appeared definitely linked. Although both remaining candidates for the Senate majority post are committed to the court plan, a preponderance of court bill opponents were casting their lot with Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi.

President's "Hands Off."

The President's announcement of "hands off" in the leadership battle was made to Harrison. The Mississippian was called to the White House following reports the President had thrown his support to Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, who was Robinson's assistant.

Thursday night the President had conferred with Barkley, after writing him a letter in which he called him "My dear Alben" and the "acting majority leader."

The letter had urged continuance of the court fight, and charged in effect that opponents of his bill were violating the "period of mourning" for Senator Robinson. The President's words roused quick resentment from opponents and from some of Harrison's supporters.

Harrison was called to the White House at 5 p. m. Later he told reporters the President had reports that he was "injecting himself in the leadership contest."

"He wanted to give me the absolute assurance that neither he nor the Administration in any way are taking any part in it," the Mississippian said. "He said that was a matter for the Democratic members of the Senate; that he would not under any circumstances inject himself into it."

Harrison said Senate Democrats will caucus on the question of a successor to Majority Leader Robinson at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. He said the time was fixed jointly by himself and Barkley.

Byrnes Withdraws.

Earlier yesterday, Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, third corner in the race, had withdrawn from the leadership fight. Byrnes also was called to the White House before Harrison's arrival.

Unacquainted with Byrnes' withdrawal, the President is said to have given precisely the same assurances of leadership neutrality he later gave the Mississippi Senator. He was said to have explained his letter was addressed to Barkley because he had been Robinson's assistant, and there was no one else in the Senate with a nominal leadership status.

Islands to Get Food As Ship Strike Ends

Boston (Saturday), July 17 (AP).—A steamship strike which had cut off transportation to the summer resort islands of Nantucket and Marthas Vineyard for four days was settled early today in an agreement signed at the statehouse.

Preparations were begun immediately to move tons of food supplies and other freight piled up on wharves awaiting shipment to the picturesque islands that lie off the southeast coast of Massachusetts.

A. F. of L. Membership Increase Is Reported

Frank Morrison, secretary, said yesterday the American Federation of Labor's membership had increased 652,000 since John L. Lewis' ten C. I. O. unions were suspended last September.

The federation's membership, Morrison said, has reached 3,091,000. The increase compared with a loss of about 900,000 members when the Lewis unions were suspended for "insurrection."

Insurance Man Praises Airport Safety Record

Air Bureau Drafts More Stringent Rules for District Field.

Washington Airport has a safety record that "in the past has been excellent," a high air insurance official asserted last night.

Entering the debate with various aviation notables, the official, D. deR. M. Scarritt, is underwriting manager of the Associated Aviation Underwriters, which carries much of the insurance on transport planes that fly here.

Other developments in the airport situation were:

More stringent regulations for the use of Washington Airport are being drafted by Bureau of Air Commerce officials, with David L. Behncke, president of the Airlines Pilots Association, acting in advisory capacity.

Pending construction of a new terminal or the improvement of the present airport, War Department officials, it was learned, are considering the proposal to permit the use of Bolling Field as an emergency commercial airport when weather conditions prevent landings and take-offs at the present terminal.

Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, war ace and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, announced, on his arrival here to seek enlargement of Washington Airport, it would be necessary to abandon the present hourly service between New

Tammany Hall, New Deal Split On N. Y. Mayor

Sachems Pick Copeland, Others Grover Whalen for Primary.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—The threatened split between Tammany Hall and New Dealers became a reality tonight when Tammany named Senator Royal S. Copeland as its candidate for mayor in the Democratic primary and the New Dealers named Grover A. Whalen, former police commissioner.

The break came after repeated conferences between James J. Dooling, Tammany leader, and the leaders of the four other counties which make up the city, in an effort to agree on a candidate.

It first became known when Bert Stand, Tammany secretary, emerged from a conference of the leaders, and announced tersely Copeland was "Tammany's candidate."

Stand made public a telegram from Copeland stating he was willing to enter the primary and leaving the final decision in Dooling's hands.

Two hours later the leaders of the other counties announced they had asked Whalen, now president of the New York World's Fair, to enter the primary, and that he had accepted.

Copeland, who previously had stated he would not enter the primary unless he had the unanimous support of the five county leaders, told Dooling today to "do as you think best."

"Will enter primaries, if need be," he said, "and, after all, enrolled Democrats are the ones to decide. Am willing to leave it to the women and men of New York to choose their candidate for mayor."

The entry of Copeland and Whalen into the primary made it a three-cornered fight. Samuel Levy, Manhattan Borough president, already had announced his candidacy.

The mayor was informed of Tammany's selection of Copeland as he was leaving the city hall for the day.

"Tell them to hurry up and agree so that we can get started on this thing," was his only comment.

170 Hurt as Oil Blast Starts River of Fire in Atlantic City

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, July 16. — Surface and underground gasoline tanks in the storage plant of the Pure Oil Co. exploded today, injuring more than 170 persons and releasing an estimated 50,000 gallons of burning fluid over a square block.

The first of the series of blasts, which resulted in evacuation of nearby tenements and business buildings, less than a mile from the business and hotel district, was preceded by a fire of undetermined origin. Six surface tanks, including two of 10,000 gallons capacity, one underground drum of the same size and numerous barrels of fuel gave way while firemen operated in danger of other subterranean tanks exploding.

Virginia avenue was a river of flames for more than an hour after the first blast. The intense heat and the flames forced firemen to leave the ground and fight the fire from atop buildings. Streams of water played onto the street, a nearby coal yard and a gasoline filling station.

After a three-hour battle, the firemen extinguished the flames on Virginia avenue and apparently had the fire under control, but even then Carl Aschenbach, oil company employe, said there still was danger that safety valves on the underground tanks might become overheated and "blow."

Most of the injured were firemen. The others were spectators, including several women, policemen and some employes of the oil company. Forty-four of those hurt were said by local hospital officials to be "badly burned."

Emergency first-aid headquarters were established in the rear of the nearby editorial building of the Press-Union newspapers. The main editorial room, which borders Virginia avenue, was ordered cleared by Editor Francis Crossdale and the building for a short time was evacuated. Later, however, employes returned to their posts.

High Official Reveals Executive's Reaction on Impasse.

Frank Statements Made to The Post

Efforts to Sabotage the Wage-Hour Bill Are Charged.

By Sidney Olson.

Copyright, 1937, by The Washington Post.

President Roosevelt feels Senate opponents of the court reorganization bill are using that measure as a sort of verbal punching bag in order to avoid passing wages-hours legislation and the rest of the platform-pledged program, an official high in the Administration told The Washington Post last night.

The identity of the official must be withheld, but his opinions are regarded as authoritative and informed. His statements are the first authentic reflection of the President's views of the court situation as it is today.

Speaking frankly and boldly, the official said that the President's attitude is that "Senators who represent Northern industrial interests, and those representing Southern utilities and textile and landlord interests," are those in the main opposing the court bill.

In making exceptions from this list he did not profess to speak for the President but said that in his own belief Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, vigorous opponent of the court bill, could not be classed with the "rock-bound reactionaries," as he believed O'Mahoney's opposition sprang purely from principle.

Public Partly Blinded.

The official said the President believes the public had been partially blinded to the real motives of the opponents, and that the real motives were the sabotaging of any housing legislation, any child-labor legislation, any wages-hours legislation and above all, any Government-reorganization legislation. The official called these Senators "legislative cowards."

A stream-lined Government would strip these Senators of their patronage, he went on. He thus indicated this was a primary motive with court-bill opponents, in the belief of the President.

Asked about the much-discussed split in the Democratic Party, the official said that, too, was a part of the mask used by the opposition, to create the belief that the President at all costs wanted his own way, while the opposing Senators, with but a few exception, were not acting from principle, but from a desire to avoid carrying out the objectives of the President and the party as stated in the platform.

Views of President.

The official repeatedly stated that he was not speaking for the President and could not speak for him, but that he believed these to be the President's views.

He referred to a columnist's article charging the President with a "dictatorial" attitude. The article stated that the President's insistence that the Congress' "duty" was to pass the court bill was dictatorial. The official pointing to the exact wording of the President's letter of Thursday to Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, acting majority leader, quoted it: ". . . I believe it is the duty of the Congress . . . to pass legislation at this session to carry out the objectives."

The official then said that the President had not specified what legislation must pass, that he had already shown willingness to compromise when the original six-Justice bill was shown to be doubtful of passage, and that the door to further compromise was still open.

If the opponents actually sought judicial reform, he said, they would have been willing to work with the Administration to draft a bill which would suit nearly all factions. Their demonstrated unwillingness, he asserted, to effect any sort of judicial reform, meant only that they had agreed on two personal selfish objectives: to "ruin Roosevelt;" and to hold up the enactment of all the progressive reforms which the party pledged last year.

Roosevelt Won't Retreat.

The official further stated that the President would never retreat from pressing all of the objectives, from judicial reform to wages-hours laws; that the President believed that the millions of underprivileged persons who elected him last fall

Girl Held in Shooting of Society Surgeon, Who Died Promising 'Whole Story' of Attack

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I. July 16.—An attractive girl, about 19 years old, was taken to police headquarters tonight for questioning in connection with the slaying last night of Dr. George W. Webster, 39, fashionable homeopathic obstetrician.

Detective Edmund Crowley said the girl, whom he declined to name, was questioned by police for about 20 minutes and then placed in a cell.

Meanwhile, detectives turned to the private files of Dr. Webster in efforts to learn why he met his death shortly after last midnight.

Dr. Webster died on the operating table at Homeopathic Hospital an hour after a man he said he did not know fired two .45-caliber slugs into him as the physician opened the front door of his home.

His death ended his announced plan to "tell you (the police) all about the shooting later."

An absence of bloodstains in the Webster home puzzled police.

Deputy Supt. James Cusick said there were no stains on the divan on which Webster lay when police arrived, nor in the vicinity of the telephone from which he called the officers, nor in the vestibule where the shooting occurred.

There was a small stain, Cusick said, on a suit of underwear that lay on the dining room table, and he theorized that probably Dr. Webster put his hand upon it as he leaned on the table for support.

Aided by Miss Dorothea Gilligan, his secretary, police pored through records of his patients, seeking any who might, in the words of Deputy

Republic Steel Hearing Called Here by NLRB

Long List of Charges to Be Presented on Wednesday.

By Russell Smith

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday formally called the Republic Steel Corporation to answer at a hearing here Wednesday a long list of charges of intimidation of workers and interference with collective bargaining.

By its action the board brought nearer a possible collision of Tom Girdler, Republic's board chairman, and the Federal Government, and, at the same time, caused speculation as to whether John L. Lewis' steel campaign would receive new impetus.

The hearing on the board's charges will be conducted in the auditorium of the Public Health Service Building on Constitution Avenue.

Girdler has said repeatedly he will never deal with the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, a Committee for Industrial Organization field unit.

The board's action in the Republic case will determine if this constitutes a refusal to bargain collectively. A decision against Girdler would bring the aggressive Republic chairman in direct conflict with the Federal Government.

New Campaign Seen.

The board's action was regarded by some observers as holding the possibility of intensified organization work in the steel areas, where strikes aimed primarily at Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Bethlehem Steel companies apparently collapsed late last month.

The complants announced yesterday by the board was confined to charges against Republic plants at Youngstown, Warren, Niles, Canton, Massillon and Cleveland, all in Ohio. The board said 75 employes have been discharged in these plants for engaging in activities "for the purposes of collective bargaining."

Among the complaints are charges "company officers and agents . . . have brutally attacked and beaten" S. W. O. C. organizers, and that at all of the plants named save that at Massillon the company maintains "extensive arsenals."

Intimidation Charged.

The board statement's description of "events which took place at the Republic plants after the strike began" was as follows:

"The company compelled a considerable number of employes at Warren to remain at their jobs within the plant and threatened them with discharge and loss of seniority rights and vacation privileges if they left the plant and joined the employes who went out on strike;

"The company refused, when the men applied, to reinstate 13 employes at its Warren plant because they had joined the strikers; and further that it sought to compel some workers to return as new employes with the loss of their former positions and seniority rights because they left during the progress of the strike;

"Between June 23 and July 2 the company refused to reinstate 41 employes at Youngstown because they joined S. W. O. C.;

"By its officers and agents the company dominated and contributed financial support to labor organizations at five of its plants. * * *

"Company officers and agents, including persons specially employed by the company for the purpose, down to the date of the strike have followed S. W. O. C. organizers and have brutally attacked and beaten them with the intention of interfering with its employes in the exercise of their right to self-organization;

"The company, both prior to and since the strike, has considerably increased the number of its police force and has used its police for the purpose of interfering with the rights of its employes peacefully to picket the plants;

"In collusion with, and through the medium of the various dominated labor organizations, the company has called upon employe members of S. W. O. C. at their homes in Youngstown, Warren, Canton, Massillon and Cleveland, and has intimidated them into signing so-called back-to-work petitions upon threat of the loss of their jobs;

"The company maintains at its plants in Youngstown, Niles, Warren, Canton and Cleveland, in the State of Ohio, extensive arsenals, stocked with machine guns, rifles, revolvers, tear gas and other bombs, riot sticks and other dangerous weapons, for the purpose of interfering with, restraining and coercing its employes at said plants in the exercise of their right to self-organization.

"The company at all six plants has interfered with the rights of its employes peacefully to picket and still does intimidate its employes by shooting at them and by throwing bolts and other dangerous missiles at them."

Republic Denies Charges.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 16 (AP).—The Republic Steel Corporation, in a formal statement, declared as "without foundation" tonight charges by the National Labor Relations Board that the company had committed unfair labor practices before and during the C. I. O. steel strike.

"Upon cursory examination of the complaint, which has just been served," said Republic's statement, "the officials of the corporation wish to state that the charges contained therein are without foundation.

"We are confident that a fair, impartial and complete hearing will establish the falsity of these claims."

Politics and People

President Jeopardizes Influence and Prestige by Continued Concentration on Court Reform.

By Franklyn Waltman

President Roosevelt at press conferences frequently has cautioned the Washington correspondents, and through them the country generally, not to waste so much time looking at trees but to take a step or two backward and have a look at the entire forest.

WALTMAN.

No better advice than this could be given to the President at this moment. Apparently his gaze is immovably fixed on the single tree represented by his Supreme Court reorganiaztion plan. Apparently he can see nothing else—and he is ready, apparently, to stake everything on achieving success with this one tree.

With his eyes fixed on that tree, the President does not see—or, as he on occasion has imputed to the correspondents, refuses to see—that judicial interpretation has taken an entirely different course since he first submitted his Supreme Court plan last February 5. He fails or refuses to see that actually he won his fight against the Supreme Court last May when it upheld the Wagner labor relations act and the social security taxes, and that the old conservative majority of the tribunal had been broken forever by the resignation of Justice Willis Van Devanter.

Concentrating on this one tree to the exclusion of all else, Mr. Roosevelt is oblivious to the fact that his minimum wages and hours bill awaits action due to his insistence that the court fight shall continue. He is oblivious to the fact that his farm legislation has been long delayed by his pressing of the court fight.

And above all else, Mr. Roosevelt appears oblivious of the fact that he has taken a stand which rapidly is disrupting his party, leaving his loyal friends ill and sore of heart—and that he is jeopardizing his own influence and prestige at a time when he should be consolidating and strengthening his liberal leadership.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter to Senator Barkley—in which, incidentally, he undertook to pick a leader for the Senate—and subsequent advices from the White House circles indicate clearly that the President has determined to fight the Supreme Court issue to the bitter end—and a bitter end it may be.

And again, along with countless thousands, we ask, why? Why is it so important, why is it worth the cost involved, for the President to achieve a victory on this issue. Is it the key to his future program? What is that program? Does it require the lodgment of supreme power in the Chief Executive at the expense of the legislative and judicial branches of Government?

By naming a successor to Justice Van Devanter—and he can select any personal or political friend he chooses—Mr. Roosevelt tomorrow could obtain a majority in the Supreme Court which would stand by him in upholding all the untested legislation now on the statute books or so far proposed by him. Why must that majority be expanded to increasing the size of the Court or ousting from the Supreme Court four of its present members?

Mr. Roosevelt does not make the answer clear in his letter to Senator Barkley. In that document the President said the American people in "an overwhelming majority recognized the need" for judicial reform. When did they do that? Surely not in the last election, for judicial reform was not an issue and was not mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt. Where is the evidence of that majority support for judicial reform? It is not found in the Gallup poll—which correctly forecast Mr. Roosevelt's re-election. It is not found in the Fortune Magazine's Quarterly Survey. It is not found in the correspondence received by members of Senate and House, since letters opposing the measure outnumber those favoring it by a ratio of 10 to 1, and in some cases even 20 to 1.

Mr. Roosevelt reiterates his old plea about the need for younger judges—the day after the death of the 65-year-old Joe Robinson, whom he planned to name to the Supreme Court—to end the delays in the administration of justice. But the undisputed record shows no delay in the Supreme Court. It shows there is no relationship between the delay and congestion that exist in the lower courts and aged judges. It shows that serious delay has been caused in several districts and circuits by the failure of the President to fill vacancies over many months.

Mr. Roosevelt in one place in his letter insists he is supported by "an overwhelming majority" of the American people in this fight, but further on he contends that a Constitutional amendment to effectuate the objective which he describes—which could be submitted to the people through the State convention system—could not be passed for a long period.

Mr. Roosevelt speaks of the situation abroad as an added reason for enactment of his plan, but he does not explain why this is so. Indeed, as Representative Sumners asserted the situation abroad makes it essential for the American people and Congress at this time to be united—and it is Mr. Roosevelt, who insists on driving deeper the wedge of discord and dissent.

"To abandon any reform of the judicial processes at this session of the Congress means an abandonment of the objectives," asserted the President.

What objectives? Congress does not know—the country does not know. If Mr. Roosevelt is intent on pressing this fight, he owes it to the country to make his position clear—to abjure the cleverness which marked his first message on the issue, to turn his back on the type of smartness contained in his letter to Senator Barkley, and to speak out, clearly and simply, so that everyone will understand what future proposals make it necessary to reorganize the Supreme Court in a costly fight to the bitter end.

When Mr. Roosevelt accused the opponents of his court bill of lacking in decency in pressing their fight during the period of mourning for Senator Robinson, he resorted to a transparent political trick. Both sides were pressing the fight within a few hours after Senator Robinson was found dead. Both sides sought to take advantage of what had happened.

A group of proponents of the court bill at noon on Wednesday—the day Senator Robinson died—declared they had a new slogan, that "the best way to revere a man's memory is to fight for those things for which he fought." Within another hour Senator Pittman was in the White House conferring with the President. During the day the proponents as well as the opponents of the bill conferred.

And within two hours of the release of the letter denouncing the opponents for taking advantage of the period of the mourning, Mr. Roosevelt was closeted in a secret conference—a conference which White House attaches denied was going on at the time of its existence—with four of his Senate leaders in the court bill fight.

The truth of the situation is that President Roosevelt realized that Senator Robinson's death was a blow to his court bill and he was undertaking to counter the blow in the letter to Senator Barkley, who now has been given on Capitol Hill the nickname of "Tattle-tale Alben."

The President commenced his letter to Senator Barkley by saying "I am glad you called my attention to certain events of yesterday and today."

Coroner's Jury Views Film of Chicago Riot

Cameraman Testifies Rocks Thrown by Strikers Started Battle.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 16.—A coroner's jury saw motion pictures of the Memorial Day steel strike riot today and heard the photographer, Orlando Lippert, testify "the rioting was undoubtedly precipitated by rocks thrown into police lines by the strikers."

The riot was a brief but bloody encounter on a plain near the Republic Steel Corporation's Grand Crossing plant in South Chicago. Ten men lost their lives and more than 100 persons were injured.

Lippert said he recorded only part of the battle, because he was taking other scenes when it started. He testified he helped agents of the La Follette Senate Civil Liberties Committee select portions of the film shown to the committee. He said they eliminated scenes which did not pertain to the riot.

Describing the riot scene, he testified:

"The strikers came directly up to the police line. I could see a striker and an officer talking face to face. Suddenly I glanced up and stones and missiles were coming into police lines.

"At the same time a group of strikers in the rear pushed those in front into the police lines. That's the part of the film that's missing. I had to change lenses."

Asked whether he saw the police "commit any act of violence up to the time the missiles were thrown," Lippert replied "No."

Harold Witt, a sound engineer with Lippert, gave similar testimony.

Ford Worker Testifies.

Detroit, July 16 (AP).—A Ford Motor Co. employe, who said he was a member of the United Automobile Workers Union, testified today he also was one of a group of "vigilantes" instructed to "pick up a lead pipe and start swinging" in the event of "trouble" at the Ford plant.

The witness, Mack Cinzori, told a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner that he helped obtain signatures to a "vote of confidence" in Ford labor policies from other employes.

He said a clerk who gave him the papers told him "all those who were satisfied with working conditions and pay were to sign and those who weren't satisfied I was to take their badge number and give it to the foreman." Some discharged Ford workers have testified they were dismissed after they refused to sign the "vote of confidence." The N. L. R. B. hearing is on a complaint charging the Ford Co. with unfair labor practices.

Citizens' Group Attacked.

Johnstown, Pa., July 16.—Steel strike leaders denounced the formation of a national citizens' organization today as "seditious" and "revolutionary," and charged that it violates the Wagner labor act.

The charges were made against yesterday's meeting of representatives from 70 cities who adopted a stand that it is "the duty of the Government to guarantee by the impartial enforcement of the law the right of every citizen to work or strike as he may choose . . ."

James Mark, sub-regional director of the Committee for Industrial Organization and leader of the strike which was called last June 11 against the Cambria works of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, led the attack on the citizens' group.

In Pittsburgh, the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, directing the seven-State steel strike for the C. I. O., said protest against the citizen's movement would be filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

Intervention Asked.

Detroit, July 16 (AP).—Michigan's labor commissioner was asked by the Governor's office today to intervene in a strike of drivers affecting between 3,000 and 8,000 intra-State trucks.

Pickets Arrested.

New York, July 16 (AP).—Nine pickets were arrested today in Brooklyn after employes leaving the strike-bound plant of the Robins Drydock and Repair Co. were stoned.

On Capitol Hill

THE MARTINS AND THE COYS, those reckless mountain boys, were set up yesterday by rumor mongers as prototypes for Senators Harrison and Bilbo, both very Democratic and very Mississippian, and both ready to quit afeudin', if the rumors mongered about the Capitol are true.

Senator Bilbo, they said, is going to vote for Senator Harrison as majority leader of the Senate to replace Senator Robinson. When questioned about it the two Senators said:

Bilbo—"I can't say anything about that."

Harrison—"I don't know anything about it."

Word was received at the Hill that Wayne Alliston, Mississippi's WPA administrator, and a long-time friend of Bilbo's until the last Senatorial campaign, had resigned. Chosen at Bilbo's instance for the post, Alliston disagreed with that Senator's opposition to Harrison in the latter's campaign for re-election. Alliston's resignation, he said, is effective "at Mr. Hopkins'" pleasure, according to the Associated Press.

The connection between Alliston's resignation and Bilbo's leadership vote was obscure. The two Mississippi Senators recently called a truce in their patronage war at behest of Attorney General Cummings. Some observers thought Alliston's resignation was a part of this compromise.

Another intra-State situation reportedly was softened up a bit when Senator Byrnes withdrew. The know-it-all observers have for some time thought they detected a slight coolness between Byrnes and his colleague, Senator Smith. Now Senator Smith, who was said to have been ready to vote for Byrnes, is relieved of any inward struggles over the leadership contest.

Representative DeRouen, of Louisiana, announced a group from his State had decided to ask the Army engineers to spend $1,000,000 for eliminating destructive salt water from the rice fields . . . REPRESENTATIVE RANKIN said after a conference between the House Power Bloc and David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority, agreement had not been reached regarding a TVA contract with the Arkansas Power & Light Co.

Representative Maury Maverick said he was "wholly dissatisfied" after the discussion.

Rankin, power bloc chairman, arranged the conference after protesting that the TVA contract to supply energy to the Arkansas Power Light Co. did not specify TVA "yardstick" retails rates to consumers would prevail.

The bloc members adopted a resolution authorizing Rankin to appoint a committee to protest to the President and the Federal Power Commisison against the Arkansas Power and Light contract or any other contract which did not provide "yardstick" rates.

The resolution provided also that the committee recommend to the President extension of transmission lines from TVA dams.

Rankin quoted Lilienthal as saying the TVA would see that Arkansas consumers paid reasonable rates and that the contract was legal.

"It is not specified in the contract the rates will be fair," Rankin said.

"I am wholly dissatisfied with Lilienthal's statement," Maverick said, "and if we have that contract it will wreck the TVA . . . and the power policy of America."

The conference, which was executive, was scheduled for tomorrow, but was held earlier to permit bloc members to attend the late Senator Joseph T. Robinson's funeral in Arkansas.

DR. L. C. SALTER, economist of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, told the House Merchant Marine Committee today that small fishermen needed the assistance of the Government in promoting co-operative production and marketing of their products.

He said legislation proposed by Chairman Bland (Democrat), Virginia, of the committee proposing establishment of a Fishery Credit Corporation with a capitalization of $5,000,000 would meet that need.

The corporation would supply liberal credit to Co-operative Fishermen's Associations much in the same manner that the Farm Credit Association supplies credit to farmers' co-operatives.

"Small fishermen are now generally dependent upon local fish buyers and wholesalers for operating funds, Salter said." Consequently they are not free to sell their fish to the best advantage."

All Wars Affect America, Hull Informs World

Policy Statement Follows Chinese Reminder of 9-Power Pact.

countries. Nevertheless, it was a strong and vigorous warning in its insistence that "any situation in which armed hostilities are in progress or are threatened is a situation wherein rights and interests of all nations either are or may be seriously affected."

Implications Clear.

The implication was clear both for the Fascist powers involved in the Spanish conflict as well as for Japan and China that they cannot make war without encroaching on American rights and that the United States would insist on "respect by all nations for the rights of others and the performance by all nations of established obligations."

Part of the significance of the statement came from the fact that most of the Secretary's day had been spent in discussions with his Far-Eastern experts and that not only Chinese Ambassador Wang, but Yakichiro Suma, charge d'affaires of the Japanese Embassy, had been visitors.

Japanese Asserts "Firmness."

Suma told reporters he had called to express to the Secretary "my government's firmness of intentions in North China." He did not explain what these "intentions" were, nor how far the "firmness" extended. Reporters asked if he would reassure the Secretary that Japan was not seeking to acquire new territory in China. He answered, "That goes without saying."

Chinese Ambassadors in all seven countries that signed the nine-power pact which guarantees the territorial integrity of China, called yesterday on the various foreign offices to present copies of the memorandum Wang presented here. This statement hinted that the nine-Power Treaty of 1922, virtually defunct, should be invoked. Five smaller European nations which have abided by the treaty also received the document yesterday.

The Chinese Government, according to Wang, is not asking immediate action under the treaty, but is studying "every possible diplomatic step looking toward peaceful measures" in the situation.

Hull's statement made 15 separate points in as many sentences, each one a vigorous thrust at the use of force in the settlement of international disputes. Significant in the forceful text, after the restatement of the Administration's faith in peaceful settlements, the removal of trade barriers, the sanctity of treaties and limitation of armaments, came the sentence:

Equal Armament Sought.

"Realizing the necessity for maintaining armed forces adequate for national security, we are prepared to reduce or to increase our own armed forces in proportion to reductions or increases made by other countries."

Then, in clinching the American position, he said gravely as he read the statement in the conference:

"We avoid entering into alliances or entangling commitments, but we believe in co-operative effort by peaceful and practicable means in support of the principles hereinbefore stated."

In London, according to press dispatches, contents of the Chinese memorandum were said to include an asesrtion the Japanese had no right of any sort to have troops at the scehe of the current conflict which started July 7.

A United Press dispatch said the memorandum charged the Japanese were attempting to use the refusal of a Chinese garrison to admit them as a "jumping-off point" for further invasion of North China.

President Roosevelt canceled his week-end cruise in order to keep closely advised of the situation, his aides said. On Capitol Hill, Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the recent American neutrality act would not apply to the present Far East crisis "yet."

Text of Hull Statement

Text of Secretary of State Hull's statement on the American position with regard to international problems:

I have been receiving from many sources inquiries and suggestions arising out of disturbed situations in various parts of the world.

Unquestionably there are in a number of regions tensions and strains which on their face involve only countries that are near neighbors but which in ultimate analysis are of inevitable concern to the whole world. Any situation in which armed hostilities are in progress or are threatened is a situation wherein rights and interests of all nations either are or may be seriously affected. There can be no serious hostilities anywhere in the world which will not one way or another affect interests or rights or obligations of this country. I therefore feel warranted in making—in fact, I feel it a duty to make—a statement of this Government's position in regard to international problems and situations with respect to which this country feels deep concern.

This country constantly and consistently advocates maintenance of peace. We advocate national and international self-restraint. We advocate abstinence by all nations from use of force in pursuit of policy and from interference in the internal affairs of other nations. We advocate adjustment of problems in international relations by processes of peaceful negotiation and agreement. We advocate faithful observance of international agreements. Upholding the principle of the sanctity of treaties, we believe in modification of provisions of treaties, when need therefor arises, by orderly processes carried out in a spirit of mutual helpfulness and accommodation. We believe in respect by all nations for the rights of others and performance by all nations of established obligations. We stand for revitalizing and strengthening of international law. We advocate steps toward promotion of economic security and stability the world over. We advocate lowering or removing of excessive barriers in international trade. We seek effective equality of commercial opportunity and we urge upon all nations application of the principle of equality of treatment. We believe in limitation and reduction of armament. Realizing the necessity for maintaining armed forces adequate for national security, we are prepared to reduce or to increase our own armed forces in proportion to reductions or increases made by other countries. We avoid entering into alliances or entangling commitments, but we believe in co-operative effort by peaceful and practicable means in support of the principles hereinbefore stated.

Relief Checks For D. C. Needy Slashed 30%

Greater Suffering Forecast Because of Cut in Appropriation.

Ten thousand destitute persons in Washington have been forced to accept an average cut of 30 per cent in their July relief checks, it was reported last night.

According to Welfare Director Elwood Street, there is little chance of restoring normal payments within the near future.

The Community Chest and other social service agencies in Washington were swamped with appeals for aid.

"We are doing all we can to help these needy persons," said a Community Chest spokesman, "but we are already burdened with our own work."

A drastic reduction in the District's appropriation for relief was blamed for the problem. Street estimated that the Board of Public Welfare this year has $135,000 less than it did last year for relief purposes.

Realize Inadequacy.

"We realize that this month's relief checks were inadequate," said Street, "but it is a question of keeping within the appropriation. We haven't enough money to meet current needs—and there is nothing we can do about it."

Street indicated the 30 per cent cut would continue "for a long time."

Old-age benefits and aid to the needy blind, said Street, will not be affected.

There is "absolutely no money" for persons classed as "employables," the welfare director added. All those who received relief reductions are persons unable to work. He said they faced "semi-starvation" unless additional funds are forthcoming.

In a report to the Welfare Board yesterday, Miss M. Alice Hill, director of the public assistance division, estimated that 180 fewer cases were cared for during June when relief to "employables" was stopped.

"The reduction in number of cases between May and June," she told the board, "was due not to a decrease in need but because the funds for relief to employables were exhausted before the middle of the month."

William S. Hart Loses $86,759 Court Award

New York, July 16 (AP).—The appellate division of the State Court reversed a $86,759.11 breach of contract award to William S. Hart, famous two-gun hero of silent cinema days, and ordered a retrial of the suit against United Artists Corporation.

Hart charged the corporation did not do its best to get a maximum return upon "Tumbleweeds," a 1925 movie it distributed for the actor. The court ordered a retrial on grounds of insufficient evidence.

U. S. Files Appeal In Cecil De Mille Income Tax Suit

By the Associated Press.

The Government appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday in its tax dispute with Cecil B. De Mille, whose name was mentioned recently before a Congressional committee investigating alleged tax avoidance.

De Mille, Hollywood film figure, won his case before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. From the decision of this court the Government now appeals to the high tribunal in its effort to collect $1,156,074 from De Mille.

The Government's petition was directed against the Cecil B. De Mille Productions, Inc.

Summarizing the case, the petition said that De Mille in 1920 formed a $25,000 family partnership to which he hired his services. In 1922 he formed the Cecil B. Mille Productions, Inc.

"First the partnership, then the corporation," said the Government, "sold De Mille's services as a director to various producers for larger sums than the salary they paid him."

Every D. C. Auto Checked as Brown Hunts Friend's Car

If you found a policeman—or several policemen—hovering over your automobile yesterday and examining tires, engine and license plates, it wasn't the heat.

It was Maj. Ernest W. Brown, the chief of police.

The major has a friend, George G. Buchheister, secretary to Representative Thomas E. Cullen, of New York, who did him a favor by helping bring a picked detail of New York police down here for the Shrine convention two years ago.

And the major is not a man to forget a favor, so when Buchheister called Brown yesterday and told him he had lost his auto, not yet two months old, the major went to work.

2. Additional protocol relative to nonintervention.

5. Convention to co-ordinate, extend and assure the fulfillment of the existing treaties between the American states.
6. Convention of the Pan-American highway.
7. Convention for the promotion of inter-American cultural relations.

The Buenos Aires pacts also have been ratified by the Dominican and Nicaraguan governments and additional ratifications are expected in the immediate future from other Central and South American conventions.

Costolow, 35, of 1632 A street northeast; Robert Lee Nowland, 36, of Alexandria; Jack Morrison, 50, colored, of 217-A Tenth street southeast; Thomas J. Delays in Trial Of Taylor Laid To D. C. Courts

Garnett Denies Office of District Attorney Is Responsible.

Responsibility for the two-year delay in prosecuting Albert Taylor, fugitive from a second-degree murder charge, was laid to the justices of District Court by U. S. Attorney Leslie C. Garnett yesterday.

Eleven a. m. today is the deadline set by Justice Daniel O'Donoghue for Taylor's appearance in court or forfeiture of his $1,500 bond. Justice O'Donoghue offered this "last chance" to Bondsman Louis Weinstein Thursday after convening his criminal court in special session.

Previously, the justice had granted a 30-day continuance, but rescinded his order upon learning five postponements had been granted since Taylor's arrest in July, 1935.

O'Donoghue Silent.

In a lengthy statement yesterday, Garnett said "the court and not the district attorney's office" had authorized earlier continuances of the case.

Justice O'Donoghue refused to comment on Garnett's statement, expaining:

"All I have to say I said in open court on Thursday."

At that time Justice O'Donoghue pointed out that Taylor has had "more than a reasonable time to appear," and ordered Weinstein either to produce him or to be prepared to forfeit the bond.

Taylor, an accused rum-runner, was indicted more than two years ago when his allegedly liquor-laden truck struck and killed a woman. Since then he disappeared.

Garnett Details "Facts."

Garnett detailed "facts of the case" in the following statement:

"First, the district attorney's office set this case for trial in June, 1936. Taylor was present for two days while the case was awaiting trial. When the case was reached and the Government announced ready, Taylor had disappeared, and the court necessarily continued it. The case has been set by this office for trial at least three times since then and each time the court, not the district attorney's office, continued the case, because of the absence of the defendant and to give the bondsman an opportunity to produce him. Of course, I have not the slightest criticism of the justices who granted these continuances. The district attorney's office is more concerned with trying the defendant than in forfeiting the bond. The bond still is good, and the bondsman, to protect himself, is using every effort to produce the defendant. When the bond is forfeited, the bondsman's effort ceases and the chances of apprehending the defendant are more remote.

Denies Negligence.

"Second, the reason Assistant United States Attorney Robb made no disclosure of any facts in the case to Justice O'Donoghue is that the attorney for the bondsman had already, in the justice's chambers and in the absence of any representative of the district attorney's office gotten the consent of Justice O'Donoghue for a continuance. Of this the district attorney's office was advised, but nevertheless, directions were given to have the continuance given in open court. In open court, on Wednesday, the 14th, Mr. Robb was handed by the assignment clerk of this office the jacket in the Taylor case. He had not previously been connected with the case . . .

"So far as I am concerned, I am not in the habit of defending in the press the action of the district attorney's office, but in this case I am unwilling to let it be understood that this office was negligent, either in pressing the case for trial or in giving the facts to the justice in the matter of continuance."

Five Escape Death By Lightning Bolt

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., July 16.—Narrow escapes from death by lightning were experienced by five employes on the Huntsberry estate when a bolt struck within 25 feet of where the men were pitching hay.

Holmes Gruber, his brother, Lewis Gruber, Robert and Harry Marple and Loring Cannel each were stunned. Each had a pitchfork in his hand when the bolt hit.

Said Holmes: "My pitchfork went one way and I another. It felt like a hammer striking me on the head."

The bolt dug a hole several inches in diameter and nearly three feet deep in the field.

Amendment Proposed To Liberate Mooney

San Francisco, July 16 (AP).—A proposal to pardon Thomas J. Mooney by constitutional amendment reached the Attorney General's office today. Irving Newton, of Los Angeles sponsored an amendment which would pardon Mooney, serving a life term for the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing here, and to provide for pardons by popular vote.

The amendment provides that if the Governor fails to grant a pardon within a year of application the Legislature may grant it. If still refused the people may grant it through a vote.

Former Convict Given Life Term for Slaying

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 16 (AP).—Charles Quicksall, 44-year-old former convict, was sentenced to live in Southern Michigan Prison today for the murder, July 2, of Mrs. Grace Parker, former Columbus, Ohio, resident.

Quicksall, who was paroled to Mrs. Parker from the London, Ohio, prison farm, pleaded guilty before Judge George V. Weimer. He admitted he fatally shot the woman and wounded himself, four days after her husband had ordered him from the Parker home.

A sea of fire covered a section of the resort city when blasts in a gasoline storage yard sent blazing fuel over a city block. More than half of those who received hospital treatment were listed as "badly burned." Firemen who responded to a general alarm were driven from the streets when 50,000 gallons of flaming fuel poured into the block following a series of explosions. Climbing to roofs of buildings with their hose lines, they finally halted the spread.

Firemen's Fight For Hour Cut To Be Pressed

Group Works 85% Longer Than D. C. Average, McGhee Claims.

In an attempt to gain a 60-hour week for District firemen, Curtis E. McGhee, president of the City Fire Fighters' Association, intends to press his fight for a Senate subcommittee study of the 60-hour-week bill introduced last March by Senator Reynolds, he announced last night.

Indignant over the plight of the local firemen, who now work an average of 72 hours weekly, McGhee cited statistics designed to show that the firemen receive less fair treatment than any other group of District employes.

The firemen, he said, work 85 per cent longer than the average government employe, whether Federal or District.

"The Administration seems to think it would be a good thing to reduce working hours," McGhee declared. "Well, why doesn't it start at home, with the fire department?

"The eight-hour day' is in effect in other big cities but we're not asking for that now. We've compromised on the 60-hour week.

McGhee pointed out that during the five years from 1931 to 1935, the expenses of the fire department averaged only 5.68 per cent of the District budget. The average in 19 other large cities was 8.79 per cent of total expenditures, he said.

As a further argument for his cause, McGhee cited a study of a special Civil Service Committee made last year. The committee recommended a 40-44-hour week for local firemen. This plan, he said, had been endorsed by 26 citizens' associations and opposed by only three.

"And," McGhee said, "the 44-hour week would raise the fire department costs more than a million dollars, while the 60-hour week bill introduced by Senator Reynolds would mean only about $400,000 additional cost. That would give employment to about 200 more men."

Story of Pastor's Crime Half Told, Authorities Hint

Pittsfield, Ill., July 16 (AP).—Swift legal moves were projected tonight against the Rev. C. E. Newton, 51, the wiry, bespectacled pastor who is accused of beating to death his former church worker, Mrs. Dennis Kelly, 45, and tossing her body into the Mississippi River.

Even as State's Attorney Merrill Johnston mapped plans to recall the grand jury, possibly next week, and seek an indictment, authorities disclosed they believed the whole story of the bizarre case has not been told in Newton's 11-page signed statement.

Johnston said he was investigating Newton's friendship with other women and already possessed a statement from one of the pastor's intimate associates bearing out the prosecutor's theory the minister desired to "rid himself" of his wife.

In his statement, Newton was quoted as saying Mrs. Kelly, after running away from her husband and two sons, tried to persuade him to continue with her, leading to the fatal quarrel on a dark roadside early Tuesday.

Stone to 10 to 25 years in prison. Lawrence Kantela, another striker, who pleaded guilty to the same charge, was sentenced to two to four years' imprisonment.

The men were arrested after two bridges leading to strike-bound Upper Michigan lumber camps were dynamited and equipment was destroyed at one.

Records show Burt swore to an affidavit that the bride ws 21. They were married here last Saturday.

M. M. Kaganovich Visits U. S. On Technical Mission for Soviet

Brother of Noted Engineer Who Built Moscow Subway Leaves for Chicago After Attending Dinner at Embassy.

The Post yesterday reported Lazare M. Kaganovich, commissar for railroads in the Soviet Union, as being a guest of the Soviet Embassy here. The visitor, however, was M. M. Kaganovich, vice commissar of defense industry and a brother of Lazare M. Kaganovich.

Lazare M. Kaganovich is one of the most powerful officials in the Soviet Union. Through his skillful direction the first section of the ultramodern Moscow subway was finished successfully. For his work, he was named commissar of railroads, in complete charge and supervision of the railways of Russia. Completion of the rest of the subway naturally is under his supervision.

At present Lazare M. Kaganovich is in Moscow attending to his duties in one of Russia's most important posts.

M. M. Kaganovich is on a visit to the United States as an observer of America's defense industries.

It is customary each year for small groups from various Soviet departments to come to the United States on tours of general industrial inspection in order to plan and buy for their future needs. M. M. Kaganovich is in one of such groups described by the State Department as a "technical mission."

On Wednesday he was entertained at a dinner in the Soviet embassy wtih a number of prominent Washingtonians.

M. M. Kaganovich left Washington after a visit of only a few hours, an embassy official said. He will tour the Nation, visiting the Pacific Coast.

After this he will return to the Soviet Union and resume his duties as vice commissar of defense industry.

The Post regrets the error in confusing the identities of Lazare M. Kaganovich, commissar of railroads, and his brother, M. M. Kaganovich, assistant commissar for defense industries, who made the visit here.

Wind Study Sends Earhart Searchers FartherNorthward

By the Associated Press.

Honolulu, July 16.—A study of equatorial winds and currents sent naval aviators farther northward today in the closing phase of their South Seas search for Amelia Earhart.

Forty-two planes again left the aircraft carrier Lexington west of Howland Island to explore 28,000 square miles along either side of the international date line to a point 220 miles north of the Equator.

The survey of currents and winds led to the belief the plane of Miss Earhart and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, might have drifted farther north than originally indicated.

This brought the Lexington nearer the point where the search started July 2, the day the Earhart plane disappeared while attempting to fly 2,750 miles from New Guinea to Howland Island.

Naval authorities here expected the search to end tomorrow or shortly thereafter.

Albany, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—There's something about flying that seems to speed up the impulses of the romantically inclined, Miss Lillian M. Kroll, airline hostess, said today.

"Passengers are always proposing to us." Blue-eyed Miss Kroll told a reporter. "Last week a man got on my plane at Newark, N. J., proposed when we were leaving Albany, and wanted me to marry him when we arrived at Rochester."

Ky. Bank Robber Seized by G-Men On Indiana Farm

Reuben Payne, 29, gunman who robbed a bank at Summer Shade, Ky., June 29 and escaped after a gun battle with local police, was captured by Federal agents yesterday on a farm belonging to his stepfather 5 miles from Delphi, Ind., it was announced by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He was en route to Louisville, Ky., last night for arraignment before a United States commissioner.

Payne entered the Summer Shade bank alone, armed with two .38-caliber revolvers, and took cash totaling $500. On leaving the bank he ran into police officers, emptied both revolvers at them and escaped into the woods. Payne's two companions, Elmore Huntley and Fred Perkins, were waiting in a car, but were captured.

Search for Payne was taken up by Federal agents and led to his discovery at the farm. Agents from the Indianapolis office of the F. B. I. raided the residence late yesterday afternoon and took Payne without a shot. Payne was unarmed.

Payne served two terms in the Kentucky State Reformatory.

Perkins and Hunley are being held at the Louisville jail in $25,000 bond, charged with bank robbery and conspiracy to rob the Summer Shade Bank.

Pliscо Arraignment Delayed by Error

Informed that through a mistake Abe Plisco, alias "Dietz," indicted for conspiracy to violate the gaming laws, had been notified to appear in District Court next Monday for arraignment instead of yesterday, Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue granted a continuance until the later day.

Harry T. Whelan, attorney for the alleged conspirator, informed Judge O'Donoghue that he had notified Plisco to be here Monday. He said arraignment was first fixed for last Monday and was postponed until the "next" arraignment day, which he thought would be next week.

'Irresponsible' Labor Blamed On Industries

Industrialists Must Obey Agreements 'in Action,' McGrady Declares.

By the Associated Press.

Blue Ridge, N. C., July 16.—Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, blamed "unenlightened" industrialists today for part of what he said some industrialists have called labor's "irresponsibility."

Talking to the Southern Conference on "Human Relations in Industry," McGrady said:

"When agreements are reached, it will be the responsibility of management to see to it that the individual superintendent and foreman adheres not only in principle, but in action, to the conditions of such collective agreements as are formulated.

"Only with such an attitude toward collective bargaining will it be possible to develop within the rank and file of labor the type of leadership which is essential to the smooth functioning of industrial relations.

"If workers' representatives are to be looked upon by management as mere agitators and treated in a disparaging manner such workers' representatives will react in a way which is not conducive to constructive attainments . . .

"You won't get arbitrary attitudes, unreasonableness, violence or hostility from labor except in the measure that you mete it out."

McGrady also urged labor to stick by its bargains.

"It will have to establish patience, understanding, co-operation, high purpose and straight American ideals in all its relations with management," he said.

"It must create discipline among its members, observance at all times of the sacredness of contracts, efficiency in production and co-operation in the elimination of waste.

"With each side recognizing the full rights of the other, and respecting those rights, industry and labor sitting around a conference table can find a solution for any problem."

U. S. Agents Hunt Three Kidnapers Of Oil Man's Son

Sapulpa, Okla., July 16 (AP).—Federal agents joined State officers tonight in a widening search for three Texas fugitives headed by Roy "Pete" Traxler, the Southwest's No. 1 outlaw, after the trio kidnaped and freed the Yale undergraduate son of a wealthy New York oil man. Posses instructed to "shoot to kill" policed roads and highways leading into Kansas and Arkansas.

Traxler and his companions abducted Baird H. Markham, jr., Yale undergraduate, last night, took him on a wild eight-hour ride, then released him unharmed. Before fleeing in his automobile, they told Markham they were bound for Canada, with Kansas an immediate destination.

Markham, son of Gen. and Mrs. Baird Markham, of New York, identified photographs of Charles Chapman and Fred Tindol, escaped Texas convicts, as those of Traxler's companions.

World Poultry Show Is Voted For Cleveland

City Chosen for 1939 in Meeting Here of U. S. Committee.

The biggest poultry show of all time will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, the national committee for the 1939 World's Poultry Congress and Exposition decided at a meeting here yesterday. The decision was preceded by spirited debate, during which Chicago, Philadelphia, Springfield, Mass., and other cities sought the privilege of entertaining the 1,000,000 visitors expected.

For three days preceding the exposition, which will be held in August, 1939, the delegates, representing more than 65 countries, will be in Washington. Their program here will include trips to the Department of Agriculture's experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., and to the University of Maryland's agricultural projects.

The national committee for the congress, headed by James E. Rice, professor emeritus of Cornell University, will conclude its three-day session at the Hotel Raleigh today.

At yesterday's meeting, Fred C. Elford, of Ottawa, Canada, past president of the congress, announced that Professor Rice will in all probability be named president of the World's Poultry Science Association when that body meets in 1939. Dr. Karl Vetter, of Germany, is now president.

The congress and exhibition, a triennial event, has never before been held in this country. Only once before, when Canada was host in 1927, has it been held outside Europe.

The invitation to hold the congress and exposition in this country was unanimously accepted at the time of the last show, held in Leipzig, Germany, in 1936.

Legislation for a Federal appropriation of $100,000 is now in Congress. New York State and California already have appropriated $50,000 each to finance their exhibits.

Pastor Who Wed Edward to Speak Minus Sponsors

New York, July 16 (AP).—The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who performed a religious ceremony for the marriage of the Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield, will deliver his lecture in Baltimore July 22 although two organizations have declined sponsorship.

Frederick R. Huber, manager of the Lyric, said today Hugh C. Ernest, who is arranging the Rev. Mr. Jardine's tour in this country, had sent a check for payment for the auditorium and had wired the lecture will be given as scheduled.

Capt. John Logan, head of the Volunteers of America in Baltimore said opposition from friends of the organization caused him to withdraw its support from the lecture. The community fund had previously refused to sponsor it.

Capt. Logan said he had been informed Mr. Jardine "would say Edward did not abdicate because of his love for Mrs. Warfield but was forced out for political reasons." He added, "a letter to me from those managing his lecture tour said he would rip off the lid."

James M. Hepbron, director of the community funds, said Mr. Jardine's own position in English religious circles had caused his organization to withdraw its sponsorship. Hepbron said the clergyman had been the subject of some controversy.

Universal Church For Peace Urged

Oxford, England, July 16 (AP).—A universal Christian church cutting across national lines would force governments to abandon war, Dr. Samuel McCrea Calvert, of New York City, told the World Church Conference today.

If membership in the church meant a loyalty above the nation, he said, "then perhaps governments might realize that they could no longer demand of Christians, in the name of patriotism, the kind of action which would nullify their fellowship with one another in Christ."

A conference of the youth group representing 15 countries agreed on a statement "modern capitalism carried the seeds of its own destruction because it refused to accept the Christian insight that individual personality is sacred, and used it as a commodity."

Missouri Educator Appointed Head of National Park College

Will Succeed the Late Dr. Ament as President of Girls' School.

Dr. Roy Tasco Davis, diplomat and educator, will be the new head of the National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Md., it was announced yesterday. The fashionable girls' junior college will be operated as the National Park College, with Dr. Davis as president of the new corporation.

Mrs. Teresa C. Ament, widow of Dr. James E. Ament, who operated the seminary for more than 20 years prior to his death last July, formally announced the change in operation policy yesterday.

An operating company has been formed to assume charge of the school. Mrs. Ament will remain in an advisory capacity and administer the affairs of the National Park Seminary Co., which will retain ownership of the physical properties.

Mrs. Ament said that the task of carrying on activities is too much of a task for a woman and that she feels the accession of Dr. Davis will provide a head more conversant with the practical needs of a modern school.

Native of Missouri.

Dr. Davis was born in Ewing, Mo., June 24, 1889, and was educated at LaGrange (Mo.) College, and Brown University. He was a statistician with the Missouri Bureau of Census and Labor in 1911; clerk to the commissioner which had charge of erection of the Missouri State Capitol in 1912 and from 1914 to 1921 was secretary and business manager of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. In his younger days he was a page to "Uncle Joe" Cannon at the Capitol. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1920.

In 1921, Dr. Davis was appointed minister to Guatemala and from 1922 to 1929 to Costa Rica and from 1930 to 1933 to Panama.

In 1933, Dr. Davis resigned his diplomatic post to return to Stephens College as assistant to the president in charge of public relations. He is now vice president.

Dr. Davis was extremely popular in Latin-America and a lake in Panama recently was named in his honor.

Announces Policies.

In assuming control, Dr. Davis made the following statement yesterday:

"In assuming the presidency of National Park College, it is my purpose to maintain the splendid traditions of this interesting school. For several years I have been interested in the development of a junior college in the vicinity of Washington, and before Dr. Ament's untimely death I conferred with him several times about the educational program and possibilities of what was then National Park Seminary.

"Having been connected for several years with a junior college for women, I am convinced that this type of school offers the best medium for the development of a program of individualized education.

"I shall shortly announce the appointment of a committee of outstanding educators who will serve actively as advisers in the development of our educational program. We plan to formulate a curriculum which will take advantage of the educational, cultural and social opportunities available in the world's greatest Capital. Special emphasis will be placed on the social sciences and on the division of humanities."

Cleaners Confident Of Victory in Vote

Officials of the Laundry Workers, Cleaners and Dyers Union were confident last night the "consent election" Monday would give the union right to bargain exclusively for workers in 11 of the District's wholesale cleaning plants.

Bennett Scharffler, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, with headquarters in Baltimore, and possibly William Aikers, regional examiner, will supervise the election, according to Calvin Cousens, acting president of the union.

Cousens said more than 400 workers would vote. He said negotiation with plant owners for an $18 minimum wage and 40-hour week would continue after the union's status as bargaining agent is assured.

Science Churches Take 'Life' Topic

"Life" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Luke 20:37,38: "Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself;" (John 5:26.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The understanding that Life is God, Spirit, lengthens our days by strengthening our trust in the deathless reality of Life, its almightiness and immortality."

60 Colleagues On Robinson's Funeral Train

Burial Tomorrow to Be in Little Rock; Service Held Here.

Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador—the diplomats, with one exception, spurning their usual formal attire. In the rear of the Chamber were seated members of the House Committee designated to attend the funeral, while standing in the rear were virtually all the other House members. In one corner sat former Senate Republican Leader James E. Watson and beside former Republican Senator J. Hamilton Kean, of New Jersey. During the services the usually bluff "Jim" Watson, brushed tears from his eyes.

Mrs. Roosevelt Attends.

Mrs. Roosevelt sat in the member's gallery, along with Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman and long a friend of Senator Robinson, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles and other chiefs of New Deal bureaus and agencies. In the front row of the family gallery was Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator; Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime Commission, and Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the late Woodrow Wilson. Behind them was Eugene Myer, former governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Whatever their station in life, their calling or political affiliation, each came to pay a last mark of respect and tribute to a man whom they liked in life and who, on various occasions had been their friend.

Bankhead, Pittman Lead.

Promptly at noon, in solemn step the members of the Senate entered the chamber led by Senator Pittman, president pro tem of that body and its presiding officer in the absence of Vice President John N. Garner. A minute later the House members entered, led by Speaker William B. Bankhead, who took his place on the rostrum, to the right of Senator Pittman.

Then came the Diplomatic Corps, Justice Butler, the members of the Cabinet, Mrs. Robinson, accompanied by Charles Miller and Grady Miller, her brothers and their wives; Robin Miller, Grady Miller, jr., and nephews of Mrs. Robinson, Joseph Brewer and Joseph Robinson, nephews of the dead Senator, and Mrs. Ethel Miller Banks, a niece of Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Emily Sturgis, mother of Mrs. Grady Miller.

Finally, leaning on the arm of his military aide, Col. Edwin Watson, in summer military full dress, a mourning band on his arm, the President entered the chamber and was escorted to his seat.

Senator Pittman, in words that were inaudible in the press gallery, briefly opened the service. Miss Helen Howison, sang "Lead, Kindly Light." The Rev. ZeBarney Thorne Phillips, in his divinity robes, motioned for all to arise and solemnly intoned—his voice showing his own emotion on the death of his friend—the words:

"I am the Resurrection and the Life, saith the Lord. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die."

Silent Mourners Bow.

The huge throng of the Nation's politically great men bowed their heads in simplicity as not a sound disturbed the clergyman's voice.

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out," he continued. "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

The Senate chaplain then read a few verses from the gospel of St. John. Miss Howison again rendered a solo—"Abide With Me." The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, advanced to the coffin and, holding out his hand, pronounced the final benediction—"May the blessing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit remain with you always. Amen."

The President arose and cast a sympathetic look toward Mrs. Robinson, and then left the chamber. The others left in the reverse of the order in which they entered. Mrs. Roosevelt hurried down from the gallery and met the President in the President's room of the Capitol, asking him to wait a few minutes while she spoke to Mrs. Robinson.

For several minutes Mrs. Roosevelt remained with the stricken widow in the Vice President's room and then rejoined her husband, returning with him to the White House.

Senator Robinson's body was left in the Senate chamber until early last night, guarded by Capitol policemen standing rigidly at attention at the head and foot of the coffin.

Those who left on the train were:

Writer Is Slain Near White House

Chicagoan, near Constitution avenue. Moore only yesterday was released from Emergency Hospital.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, after he had examined the body, said he found no visible signs of bruises, wounds or lacerations. He did not give an official verdict. He will perform an autopsy this morning.

Econom, understood to have been a native of California and said to be a WPA writer who had been in the District for the past two years, wore a gray suit as he whistled and sauntered to his lurking death.

He was clad in a gay blue shirt, and blue plaid tie and well-shined black shoes. He wore no hat.

At his rooming house his landlady, Mrs. A. Acton, gave police a clew as to why he might have been happy.

Although she knew little of him, she said he had arranged to spend the night with a friend, and that she thought she had heard him say: "Tomorrow I am going on a little vacation."

Graft Inquiry Forces Police Official to Quit

San Francisco, July 16 (AP).—The resignation of Police Commissioner Frank Foran, the first of three demanded by a grand jury investigating graft, was given to Mayor Angelo J. Rossi today. Theodore J. Roche, president of the commission, and the third commissioner, Frank Sykes, declined to say whether they would resign.

The grand jury, investigating charges that $1,000,000 exchanged hands as bribery between the underworld and police, recommended the entire commission resign and be replaced by a five-man commission.

Security Act Passed.

The Social Security Board said yesterday every State and Territory now has an approved social security law complementing the Federal Legislation. Approved yesterday was the law for Illinois.

Inspectors Win Walking Strike For Car Upkeep

The District's building inspectors will walk no more.

The Commissioners yesterday authorized allowances of $22 per month for use of their automobiles.

Several months ago, the inspectors called a "walking strike" when car allowances were withdrawn.

"If we can't buy gasoline to get us from job to job, we'll walk and make the District like it," they said, in effect.

So slowly did work progress and so numerous did inspection requests become that the Commissioners decided, in the interest of efficiency, to restore the gas allowances.

Girl Held in Death Of Society Doctor

Supt. James Cusick, "have a grudge" against Webster.

Miss Gilligan was questioned at length during the day, but, Cusick said, could throw no light on the slaying.

Dr. Webster, chief obstetrician at Homeopathic Hospital and past president of the Rhode Island Medical Society, crawled to a telephone after the shooting and, to Police Lieut. Lawrence Walsh, said, "I'll tell the whole story when you get here."

Patrolman Charles H. McNamara, first officer to reach the house, quoted Dr. Webster as saying: "Don't look for clews now. Get me to a hospital. I'll tell you about the shooting later."

He gave some information, but none of it furnished a tangible clew, detectives said.

To investigators, Webster said he reached home at 1 a. m., placed his car in his garage and was about to enter his empty house when a man he could not identify stepped from surrounding shadows and pumped three bullets at him. Two hit him and the third was found in the basement.

Cusick said it had been established Dr. Webster conferred with another physician last night at Jamestown and later visited a drugstore near his home.

Dr. Webster's wife and children were at their summer home at Watch Hill at the time. Mrs. Webster rushed by automobile to the hospital when notified of the tragedy. She reached there an hour after her husband died. She told police she knew of no one who bore her husband ill will.

Just before he died, Dr. Webster said to Dr. Robert H. Whitmarch, a close friend: "I didn't know I had an enemy in the world."

The others were given hospital treatment before being sent to their homes. They were John Armstrong, 607 Sixth street northeast, an iceman; Arthur Jones, 47, colored, 5923 Fort street northeast; Celeste Evans, 27, colored, Girard street northwest, and Euolia King, 31, colored, 1010 First street northeast.

Meanwhile, at least normal summer temperatures were promised or had become realities in the North Central States, according to the Associated Press. The Chicago station of the Weather Bureau predicted the lower Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys and the central and northern portions of the North Central States would have moderate weather for the next two or three days.

Slightly Cooler in West.

At the same time Southern areas, including the Tennessee Valley, the lower Mississippi Valley and the Southern plains region, were expected to wait at least that long for relief, while in the Rockies and northern plains temperatures were below normal for the season.

Maximum temperatures were running slightly lower than previous days, with Wichita Falls, Tex., topping the Weather Bureau's reports with 96. At Atlanta and Nashville the reading was 94; Chicago, St. Louis, Evansville, Ind., and Fort Smith, Ark., 92; New York, Louisville, Cincinnati and Amarillo, Tex., 90.

In Chicago the twenty-seventh death was attributed to the heat while the Associated Press poll for the Nation showed a heat-death count of about 400.

Insurance Man Praises Airport Safety Record

Air Bureau Drafts More Stringent Rules for District Field.

York and Washington if operations are moved to Camp Springs as proposed.

Pointing out that the abandonment of the schedule would throw many pilots out of work, Col. Rickenbacker declared the additional time required to travel to Camp Springs would eliminate the time margin which permits passengers to save time by traveling by air on the short Washington-New York flight. Increasing competition by high-speed railroad service already is cutting into air traffic, he said.

It is estimated it would take 30 minutes to go from Washington to Camp Springs. Col. Rickenbacker said it takes 45 minutes to go from Newark to New York, and if planes landed at the Camp Springs site passengers would spend 30 minutes in the air and 75 minutes on the road.

Rules May Cut Traffic.

Fearing loss of traffic as a result of regulations which will make Washington Airport a secondary field, terminal officials took steps yesterday to improve safety conditions. "We are considering the feasibility of constructing another long runway," S. J. Solomon, airport manager, said.

Pointing out that Military road constituted the principal hazard, Solomon declared that "five minutes after we receive authorization to close that road, we would put barricades across both ends of it."

In his statement Scarritt pointed out that during the past few months ground traffic on Military road had been under control and stopped during landings and takeoffs. He also called attention to the radio air traffic control which has been established and co-ordinated with air traffic at Bolling Field. He said planes lacking radio receiving sets have been prohibited from using Washington Airport.

Long Runway Built.

Hard-surface runways, one of them 4,200 feet long, have been constructed to increase safety, he continued.

Boundary lights on old Hoover Field and a better system of floodlighting have added to the safety of flying at night, Scarritt said.

Recommending that Military road be closed, Scarritt also stated that "portions of Boundary Channel and the Experimental Farm should be leased to the Airport Corporation in order that added landing and takeoff distances may be obtained in certain directions."

Scarritt indicated the airport management would make extensive improvements if these additional areas were made available.

Little opposition to the closing of the road was manifested at Army quarters yesterday. Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff, characterized the whole question as a "headache" to the Army, and said that "if the people of Virginia or anybody else wants to take the road off our hands, the Army in all probability would agree to it."

Military road no longer is used for Army purposes, Gen. Craig pointed out.

Airport Bill Speeded.

Drafting of a bill to provide for an airport at Camp Springs was speeded yesterday. The measure, being prepared by Senator King of Utah, would authorize $3,286,250 of Federal funds for the airport.

The draft has been referred to Representative Palmisano, of Maryland, chairman of the House District Committee, and Representative Jack Nichols, of Oklahoma, of the Airport Commission.

Refusing to sign the Airport Commission report because it did not recommend construction of an auxiliary terminal nearer the city, Representative Nichols yesterday revealed he may introduce a bill, as a substitute for the King measure, which would provide for an intown terminal.

Nichols said the airport problem never would be solved by the construction of a terminal at Camp Springs. He said he would support a Camp Springs airport, Federally financed, as well as enlargement of the Washington-Hoover Airport with District funds.

Regarding the Bolling Field proposal, Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover said yesterday that "if the proposal calls for the continued use of Bolling Field as an emergency airport for the commercial lines, there may be serious legal questions to be considered."

J. W. Ginder Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral services for John W. Ginder, 76, of the supervising architect's office of the Procurement Division, who died Wednesday at his home in Hyattsville, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Gasch undertaking establishment, Hyattsville.

Ginder was a native of Masillon, Ohio, and was a Government employe for 36 years. During his service he never had taken a day's sick leave until last year.

He began his career as an architect in St. Louis, and was a member of the firm of Sidel, Guissart and Ginder, which designed the St. Louis City Hall in the '90's.

Ginder was a charter member of Local No. 2 of the National Federation of Federal Employes, now Local 262 of the Treasury Department. For a number of years he served as president of the District of Columbia Federation of Federal Employes Unions.

Surviving are a son, Lloyd M. Ginder, of Hyattsville; a daughter, Mrs. Jack Kurtz, of Sparrows Point, Md.; two grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Percy Walden, of La Verne, Okla.

Mrs. Friedrich Rites Today in Riverdale

Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Carl Friedrich, East Riverdale, Md., who died Thursday after an illness of six months. Services will be conducted at the W. W. Chambers funeral home in Riverdale at 4 p. m., with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

A native of Washington, Mrs. Friedrich is survived by her husband, her father, Samuel Taylor; a brother, Wallace B. Taylor, and two sisters, Mrs. Edna Liverett and Miss Leora Taylor.

Fight On for Majority Leader; President Keeps 'Hands Off'

Senate Democrats Split Wide Open as Byrnes Withdraws, Leaving Barkley and Harrison in Neck-and-Neck Race.

that at this time I would not want to serve as the Democratic leader of the Senate, and therefore will not be a candidate."

The Byrnes and Harrison interviews with the President were two of an unexplained series of White House conferences with figures prominent in party and court plan councils.

All except Harrison gave reporters only a perfunctory account of their talk with the President, avoiding any reference to the court or leadership issues now in the forefront.

Farley Is Caller.

A late afternoon caller was Postmaster General James A. Farley, whose name has figured prominently in court plan debates. Opponents had charged him with "threats," and one said he had written his "death warrant."

Farley told reporters the court issue was not discussed. He said he talked over pending postal legislation.

Another caller was Senator Carl A. Hatch, of New Mexico, actual author of the court plan substitute sponsored by the late Senator Robinson. Opposed to the original bill, Hatch now is defending the substitute and vigorously opposes sending the bill back to the committee.

On leaving Hatch said he discussed "a little personal matter relating to New Mexico," and added, "That's all I can say at this time."

Byrnes a Dark Horse.

Byrnes was the first to see the President. He said they "talked over unemployment census" legislation. The South Carolinian is chairman of a Senate committee investigating the relief problem. It was learned later that Byrnes received the same assurances as Harrison on the leadership fight.

Although Byrnes is no longer a candidate, it was pointed out yesterday he remains a dark horse in event of a deadlock between Barkley and Harrison.

Byrnes is supporting Harrison, and a possibility existed that he may be the Mississippian's selection for assistant leader, in event Harrison wins.

Harrison and Barkley were near an equal division of the 75 Democratic votes yesterday. Senator Sherman Minton, of Indiana, active in Barkley's campaign, claimed an outside of 42 votes for the Kentucky candidate.

But friends of Harrison said they were confident the Mississippi Senator would win, if the President exerted no influence in the race. They claimed 40 votes for Harrison before the President wrote his letter to Barkley, but said yesterday that may have lost them "one or two."

A break in the ranks of "freshman" Senate Democrats, a majority of whom had declared for Barkley or "any candidate the President favors," developed yesterday. Senator Claude Pepper, Florida first-termer, declared he will support Harrison, and knew of other Senate newcomers who would.

It was clear yesterday the Presidents letter to Barkley, followed by the Thursday night conference with the Kentucky Senator and three others, had added fuel to the flame in the court fight, and tightened lines in the leadership race.

Commented Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, on the two developments: "Apparently somebody has no sense of fitness or of proportion."

Senator Peter Gerry, Rhode Island Democrat, said "that letter was hurtful to his cause; it attempts to interfere with the rights of Senators to make up their own minds."

Opinion Is Divided.

A majority of the court plan opponents favor a move to recommit the court bill, over the President's stated objection to abandonment of his objectives this session. Opinion was divided on whether the motion should be made Tuesday, or await solution of the leadership fight and a few more days of debate. They claim 50 votes "or more" for the motion, and insisted the President's letter would help their case.

On the other side, nominal Administration leaders were undetermined whether to resume reconsideration of the court debate Tuesday at 2 p. m., or lay it aside temporarily for the vetoed farm land bank interest bill, already repassed by the House.

There was talk among opponents yesterday of coming to the aid in the next campaign of such of their colleagues as have Administration candidates run against them. Both Senator Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana, and Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, have received clear intimations they will have opposition at the polls next year. Several opposition leaders, not up for re-election next year, were said to be ready to take the stump, when necessary, in their defense.

Logan Court Bill Assailed.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, July 16.—The New York Bar Association had before it tonight a report of its committee on Federal legislation terming the Logan substitute court bill "in no sense a compromise." "It is merely the old bill in somewhat altered form," the report added.

The document was submitted by a committee of ten, of which Cloyd LaPorte is chairman.

"The bill constitutes the most serious threat to the independence of the judiciary which has occurred in the history of this Nation," the committee said, and in conclusion added:

"The exercise of legislative responsibility is no less important than the impartial administration of justice. Each is essential to the preservation of American institutions. The amended proposal violates both principles. It not only destroys the independence of the judiciary; it also ignores the constitutional duties of Congress. It is the constitutional duty of the Congress to fix the size of the Supreme Court and to ordain and establish the lower Federal courts. To delegate this duty to the President, or to provide for its mandatory exercise by a system of additional appointments resulting in unforeseeable fluctuations of personnel, regardless of need and dependent on chance, would violate the duty imposed upon every member of Congress.

"For the reasons above set forth this committee believes that the Congress should emphatically reject this subversive proposal."

plied they could not discuss troop movements. However, Chinese military reports declared the Japanese were fortifying a wide semi-circle south of Peiping, which would cut the city off from the rest of China.

Situation Seen Hopeless.

Tokyo, July 16 (AP).—Japanese military authorities warned the nation tonight the preservation of peace in China was becoming hopeless.

Official sources said the situation in the vicinity of Peiping was more precarious than at any time since Japanese and Chinese forces first clashed there ten days ago.

They said they feared the outbreak of major hostilities at any moment.

Dispatches from Peiping said peace talks had failed. Official reports charged strong anti-Japanese sentiment in the Chinese Twenty-ninth Army defending Peiping and recounted stories of attacks on Japanese citizens.

The war office said it had reports of heavy Chinese mobilizations of men and equipment ready to be thrown into the Peiping area. It estimated about 30 Chinese divisions were within a short radius of the trouble zone.

Emergency war precautions were ordered, reflecting throughout Japan the critical view taken by the government. Some special reserves were called to the colors. Trebled guards were stationed around munitions plants, navy yards and public buildings.

Job Half Done, Painters Find It's Wrong House

St. Louis, July 16 (AP)—Mrs. E. G. Heine's suburban flat appeared bright on one side today but drab on the other—painters missed the correct address by one block.

Arriving unannounced, the painters took down the awnings and screens and began painting. Mrs. Heine looked on pleasingly and spoke kindly of the landlord. Later, however, one of the painters told her "we are sorry, but we have made a mistake." The painters moved on, after having painted the window frames on one side of the house, a side door, and the back porch.

Winter L. Wilson Dies in Hospital

Winter Lincoln Wilson, retired professor at Lehigh University and engineer, died Thursday in Montgomery County General Hospital. Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. at the Presbyterian Church at Elkton, and burial will be in Elkton Cemetery.

Born in Elkton on December 29, 1866, Prof. Wilson studied at Lehigh and was graduated in 1888. Shortly afterward he was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad and went to South America as a surveyor to assist in building a railroad between Ecuador and Peru.

Returning to Lehigh in 1898, he taught civil engineering there until 1901, when he went to Tulane University at New Orleans. Prof. Wilson again returned to Lehigh and remained there until his retirement in 1934.

A brother-in-law of Police Judge John P. McMahon, Mr. Gawler had been an employe of the Police Court for 16 years, having been appointed in 1921. who has been a close White House consultant in the past, gave no public intimation of his own preference for leader. But Byrnes is known to be actively supporting the candidacy of Senator Harrison.

His statement of withdrawal stated simply:

"Until the funeral services of Senator Robinson were held, I deemed it improper to make any statement with reference to the Democratic leadership of the Senate.

"To every Senator who has spoken to me on the subject I have stated wanted these reforms; and that if the Administration were defeated on the issues it would "go down with colors flying," and with the people knowing specifically what Senators had engaged in obstructive tactics.

The letter to Senator Barkley was written, the official said, after the visit of Senator Prentiss Brown, (Democrat), of Michigan, and three others to the White House Thursday had resulted in a spreading report that the President was indifferent over a possible congressional decision to recommit the court bill to the Judiciary Committee.

The official said the President suddenly decided, after seeing these reports in the late-afternoon newspapers, that a "smart move" had been made by the opposition in giving this report currency, and that it must be immediately spiked vigorously. This resulted in the "Dear Alben" letter.

Favors Barkley's Cause.

The President believes firmly that the leadership fight in the Senate is of paramount importance at this time, even submerging the court bill struggle, said the person interviewed. One of the primary and often-overlooked factors, he said, is that if Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, becomes the new leader, displacing Acting Leader Barkley and relinquishes his committee assignments, by virtue of seniority Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, would become chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, keystone of tax legislation.

This explains King's active support of Harrison, he said, and also partially explains the President's friendliness to Barkley's cause. King has long been one of the bitterest opponents of all phases of the New Deal, he declared, and would be in a perfect position to embarrass and obstruct progressive legislation.

The Abattoir Problem.

On Wednesday a representative of the packers, who have drawn plans to rehabilitate a slaughterhouse within the District limits, announced before the House District Committee that the project would be abandoned. Later in the day the committee, though lacking a quorum, voted to table not only a bill which would have prohibited operation of the abattoir but also a motion to reconsider the bill. As a result, further action on the measure by the House at this session appears to be out of the question. On Thursday, the packers suddenly decided to proceed with their original plans.

A nice stratagem might seem to have been executed by the packers in thus removing the principal obstacle to their project. But inquiry on Capitol Hill indicates that only coincidence lay behind the curiously integrated sequence of events. A delegation of District Committee members earlier in the week had inspected the site of the old slaughterhouse and had agreed there was no adequate reason for blocking the rehabilitation plans. Presumably the bill would have been tabled regardless of the packers' move.

Most of Washington, however, will disagree with the committee's conclusions. A slaughterhouse, however far removed from habitations, and however efficient and convenient, is still not desirable in the limited area of the Capital. The District Commissioners have consistently held this view, and it is reported that they will now attempt to impose so many rigid conditions in issuing an operating permit that the packers will find it too costly to conduct an abattoir here. Even if this fails, public opinion may have been stirred so deeply against the packers that their business here will be seriously affected.

In any event, it is clear that the District zoning regulations must be carefully scrutinized to make certain that no other undesirable industry can ever venture to settle in the midst of this predominantly residential community. There is some ground for the belief that the local zoning officers have been functioning more in a negative than a positive fashion. Perhaps the recent revision of their code will enable them to do more than serve primarily as an adjustment board.

In any case, the District would be well-advised to submit its zoning law not only to thorough legal analysis but also to the inspection of persons trained in city planning and alive to successful zoning techniques in use in other cities.

Paradise Isolated.

It is hard not to feel a good deal of sympathy for the inhabitants of Nantucket, that unspoiled bit of colonial New England which lies off the southern coast of Cape Cod.

Ordinarily the citizens of that island are as happy in their isolation as they are proud of their trim white houses and their neat, colorful gardens; of their cool breezes that blow from over the ocean and the surf which "rolls in all the way from Spain." These attractions mean money in the pocket for the natives of Nantucket. For each year hosts of city folk seek the seclusion that Nantucket grants and together with "their sisters and their cousins and their aunts" leave a tidy sum to the thrifty islanders.

But into this paradise a snake has come. That ugly monster—labor strife—has raised its head. The officers and men of the steamships that ply between New Bedford and Nantucket, carrying supplies to satisfy the expanded appetites of the visitors, have struck for more money. As a result, Nantucket is cut off from the mainland at the very peak of the tourist season.

No wonder the islanders are mad clean through. They have protested the outrage to Boston and Washington and are even threatening to secede from the Union after which they would maintain diplomatic relations with only Maine and Vermont and possibly Cape Cod. For they are convinced that the New Deal is responsible for their difficulties.

This seems drastic retaliation indeed. Some there are who will say, in the classic words of Horace Greeley, "let the erring sister go." But others will wonder what has happened to that old spirit of Yankee enterprise for which Nantucket was once so famous. Can't the islanders build boats of their own and thumb their noses at the strikers and shipowners alike? If recent years of purveying to tired city folk have deprived them of their ancient cunning and substituted a wringing of hands for their traditional independence, they may find even Maine and Vermont cold shoulders on which to weep.

The President's Letter.

Whatever may have been the purpose of President Roosevelt's letter to Senator Barkley, its effect has been to widen the breach between the Administration and the group opposing the court bill. The President chose a most unfortunate moment to lecture disgruntled Senators on their duty and to manifest his preference in the Senate's leadership contest. Such a lack of discretion will inevitably sharpen the antagonism that is already threatening to tear the Democratic Party asunder.

The President's excuse for writing this extraordinary letter will deceive no one. It is true, of course, that both sides continued to talk quietly about the Supreme Court issue during the truce proclaimed out of respect to Senator Robinson. But if the opponents violated the understanding that open debate on the question would be suspended, the public was not aware of it. Certainly no one else has departed from the proprieties in that matter so flagrantly as has the President.

Presumably Mr. Roosevelt was chiefly interested in singling out Senator Barkley as the logical successor to the majority leadership. The Kentucky legislator is an ardent supporter of the judiciary bill. Under his leadership the Senate would be more likely to accept the compromise measure or to work out another substitute. After 14 "freshmen" Senators had decided to support the candidate favored by the President, Mr. Roosevelt apparently saw an opportunity to advance two causes by one move.

But that impulsive move tends to confirm some of the very charges that the opposition group has been making. It has put the President in the position of intervening in the selection of a new Senate leader. The Senate has always been jealous of its independence. Naturally it likes to select its own leaders. Even indirect suggestions from the President are usually unwelcome, especially when they are so closely linked to an issue that threatens to create a party schism in any event.

Moreover, the President has advanced a strange conception of the relations between Congress and the Executive. Congress, he wrote to Senator Barkley, is primarily responsible "for the adoption of methods" but "on the President falls the responsibility of recommending objectives." He then informed Congress that his objective in proposing reorganization of the courts has not changed, and that "it is the duty of the Congress . . . to pass legislation at this session to carry out the objectives."

Of course, it is a constitutional duty of the President to make recommendations to Congress. From the beginning of the Republic, however, Congress has been free to accept or reject such advice. The President now assigns to Congress the mere role of adopting methods. He candidly assumes that Congress has an obligation to approve his objectives, reserving for itself only the right to determine how they shall be carried out.

It is precisely this attitude which is giving many members of Congress the greatest concern. They see in the Administration's bid for control over the courts, and the President's intimations that Congress should follow his leadership rather than its own convictions, a direct threat to democracy as it has been practiced in this country for a century and a half. Obviously, then, the letter to Senator Barkley will strengthen the determination of these legislators to fight the court plan to the last ditch.

The only encouraging note in the President's letter was the indication that he may not insist upon enactment of the compromise court bill. Presumably he will accept any measure that might help to eliminate aged judges and keep the courts "abreast of changing conditions." But since he still insists that this objective should be sought through legislation instead of a constitutional amendment, the outlook for a satisfactory compromise appers to be very dark.

There is reason to fear that the President's latest stand means a fight to the finish on the court bill. It is a pity that the President does not realize he has more to lose than any one else from such a showdown.

A Question Of Politics.

Chairman Eccles of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve system told the House Banking and Currency Committee that in his opinion it does not make much difference whether the Government or the member banks own the Federal Reserve banks, if no question other than mere ownership is involved.

It is technically true, as Mr. Eccles says, that today bank ownership is "not an important factor in the exercise of monetary control," since monetary power is largely centered in the board of governors. From the practical viewpoint, however, the question as to whether the Federal Reserve banks are to be owned by the member banks or by the Government is of real significance. If the banks' stocks were acquired by the Government, a miracle would have to be performed to keep politicians from pouncing upon the choice jobs held by their employes. Judged by the standards of the Government service, many of these bank positions would be considered rich prizes. It is hard to believe that they would escape the clutches of the spoilsmen.

Certainly Representative Patman and many of his colleagues who are pressing for Government ownership of the Reserve banks would not be content with a mere change of ownership that would leave the board of governors free to function as an "independent continuing body, not subject to political dictation." The chief objective in advocating a shift to Government ownership, indeed, is to establish a greater measure of political control over the system than is possible under the present form of ownership.

Gold For Brazil.

Close upon the heels of an announcement that the Treasury had agreed to sell an undisclosed amount of gold to China in exchange for silver, comes word that an arrangement has been made to sell up to $60,000,000 of gold to Brazil. It is explained that payments will be made in dollar balances, that the purchased gold will be "earmarked" and held for Brazilian account by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Thereafter the Treasury will advance dollar credits to Brazil as required, using the gold as collateral.

By this procedure the Treasury will be able to dispose of a small fraction of its superfluous gold and, if desired, it may use the cash funds taken in exchange to pay off a small part of the obligations incurred in financing its gold "sterilization" program. Brazil, on the other hand, will be assisted to build up a gold reserve preparatory to setting up a central reserve bank. It is expected that the agreement will have a stabilizing effect upon milreis exchange and strengthen commercial ties between the two countries.

Agreements of this sort arouse interest in the opportunities for a wider application of similar methods for getting rid of part of our huge gold stocks. Any development that holds out hopes of eventual redistribution of world gold stocks is most welcome to a nation that has already borrowed over $1,000,000,000 since the beginning of this year to "sterilize" incoming gold.

Excessively large gold holdings in some countries and a dearth of gold in others naturally suggest the possibility of hastening a return to stabilized currencies based on the gold standard by the method of reapportionment. Fluctuating currencies cannot be permanently stabilized, however, nor can gold be kept from accumulating in certain centers and deserting others so long as the conditions essential to stable and orderly exchanges are lacking.

Countries lose gold steadily, for example, when they have a chronically unfavorable balance of payments in international dealings. To cover the difference between the amounts which such debtor nations owe to foreigners and the amounts owing to them, it is necessary to ship gold. Even if current balances of payment are favorable, gold may be lost in great or small amounts because of a flight of capital due to either political or economic disturbances. It would be futile for this country to part with gold to bolster up the currencies of countries in such condition unless there was assurance that the trade position had been strengthened and confidence in the currency restored. Maldistribution of the world's monetary gold stocks, in fact, is a result of deep-seated disturbances that will not yield to superficial correctives, such as reapportionment of that metal.

The position of many countries with weak and fluctuating currencies has, of course, been greatly improved by the world-wide business upturn and its accompaniment of higher prices. This situation makes it possible to relax hampering exchange restrictions and remove other barriers to more normal trading. By degrees, therefore, as world trade expands, nations will acquire a better balanced relationship between their imports and exports, their international debits and credits.

Barring political upheavals which disrupt the best-laid plans for hastening a return to stable monetary conditions, this normal expansion of trade provides the only sure means of enabling countries short of gold to acquire it and hold it. The process of acquisition can be assisted to some extent, of course, but it would be folly to force it by premature offerings to sell gold or even give it away to countries unable to keep it.

The Depression Ends.

From the Emporia Gazette.

For the last three days the bulletin which conveys to this community the news of its local financial transactions—mortgages recorded, real estate transferred and mortgages released—has been bringing glad tidings to this town, tidings of comfort and joy.

For seven long years that bulletin has revealed a constantly increasing list of mortgages recorded, real estate mortgages, chattel mortgages. It has showed people mortgaging their furniture, their cars, their crops, their livestock, their homes, their farms, their stocks in business and their tools of trade. It has been a calamitous story. The list of mortgages released for years has been comparatively short. This week the two lists began to change in size. Today the list of mortgages released is longer than the list of mortgages recorded—almost twice as long.

Which, being translated in terms of life, means that the people of this community are paying their debts. The golden tide of wheat has turned to a rising flood and now men are paying more than they are borrowing.

For a while, perhaps for a month or two, this golden tide of wheat will be a debt reducer. Then as the money percolates through business the creditors will have more money to spend. They will spend it and business men will have more to spend and they will spend it. And we shall have the old normal processes of commercial activity again. It has been a long time coming, but the year of the jubilee is here.

Hail happy day!
Hallelujah it is done!

Applauds Miss Earhart.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to wager that "Exasperated" and others of his ilk were among those who have condemned every similar sort of attempt—yes, even Col. Lindbergh's flight—for fear it would cost them money, and yet were among the loudest to cheer his arrival and claim him their hero when he returned without costing them anything.

I suppose "Exasperated," when he sarcastically quotes Miss Earhart's remark that she was doing it "for fun," thinks that people go around spending $80,000 to equip planes such as hers—just "for fun." I don't. Certainly she had as much "purpose" as any pioneering exploit ever has, and it was just as worthy, too.

We cannot continue to have a nation foremost in such courageous undertakings without being willing to pay something for it. If he must condemn useless expenditure in this day and age, among the many, many other examples are the annual maneuvers of the entire fleet at a far more tremendous cost and for a far lesser obvious object.

I admire Miss Earhart, among other reasons, for giving young American hero-worship a taste of real American pioneer—instead of racketeer—spirit, and I know there are plenty of other Americans who feel the same way.

NANCY ARMSTRONG.
Silver Spring, Md., July 15.

A Study Of Fascism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter by Conrad M. Paine proves as always that we human beings are one-sided. He thinks that Mr. Norman Remington is prejudiced against the U. S. S. R. His suggestion to overcome this prejudice is very sound. But suppose he practices his suggestion with regard to fascism (Italian) that he abhors so much?

I will not suggest to him to read about fascism, because he could read one side or the other and not know which is true. Instead, let him visit Italy, the real Fascist state, and make a study of its foundations. He might be surprised to find that it consists of trade guilds (same as labor unions) and that all classes are united and work together. They may have longer hours, but they work willingly.

He likes the U. S. S. R.; that is his privilege. Others like fascism; and that's theirs. After all, the people of each country have the right to live and choose the type of government that they want and they are willing to sacrifice the so much talked about personal liberty. Why should we worry? A. CARTA.
Washington, July 15.

Mr. Cotton's Peeve.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To Mr. Charles Cotton in the July 14 issue of The Post goes the award for setting down on paper the world's most pettish peeve. His personal pleasure jaunt was interrupted, if you please, for a few moments so that President Roosevelt could have free and uninterrupted passage to a well-earned rest. Mr. Cotton writhes because his personal plans were halted for a few golden moments.

Perhaps, but for Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Cotton would have no car, no 80-foot boulevard, or no hours of leisure in which to seek pleasure, to say nothing of money. But for the President's sane and strong guidance this country might long ago have reached the sad state of those European nations whose fate is bloodshed and revolution.

So behold Mr. Cotton, his country secure, his life, home, income and family safe, bowling along the highways when he has the good fortune to have his path crossed by that of the Nation's President and he can do one small act of courtesy, one infinitely small act for this President, and Citizen Cotton muffs it! DIDO.

Ventriloquist's Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The voice of the ventriloquist has lost its punch in Washington to control the Senators in regard to the court packing bill.

The people have spoken and their desires are reflected by a majority of the Senators. "America First," is now in the saddle.

The Cheops Complex.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Ludwig sets out (on page 385) in his recently published history of the Nile that: "It is certain that Cheops, who built the biggest pyramid, was regarded as the son of Osiris, and at the same time as the 'Son of Ra,' thus uniting the heaven and the earth. Pharoh, as the son of the god, having become priest and judge, war leader and magician, all springs and animals, plants and men, belonged to him. Thus in a land which had, in the earliest times, seen the bravest in the seat of power, but had required from him that he should render to his coprinces a half-yearly account of his spending, the very soil became the property of a god beyond control, and this determined the whole structure of society, even into the kingdom of the dead."

Other scholars find grounds for the view that "Ra" is but a corruption of "Ro" and further researches indicate that "Ro" may be but a contraction of a name which (although subsequently modified) was brought into America by Claes Martenszen van Rosenvelt, one of the "pioneers and founders of New Netherlands."

If that is so, the development of the Cheops-Santa Claus complex is understandable as well as the reluctance to recognize any "coprinces" or to render any adequate, timely and complete account of spending, or to submit to any controls.

Further, according to Ludwig, Cheops translated an earlier doctrine into: "What pleases Pharaoh is just; what displeases him is unjust." And what a great monument still stands in a desert to establish the greatness of Cheops and the virtue of his doctrines!

"Junk The Old Ships."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Strange as it may seem, way down here in Charles County, Md., quite a few people are wondering why the United States Government does not stop the foolishness about the sale and scrapping of the old ships down here and simply do it themselves.

Stack the junk up for future use and relieve the public and the Government of the silly arguments. Scrap must be valuable and the United States needs it for new ships. It's so darned valuable that unless you watch it pretty close they will steal your stove right out of your kitchen while you are cooking dinner.

Boards and commissions and committees are necessary possibly, but if we had fewer boards and more men on those boards with greater courage to say what they think and know to be right, we would be a whole lot better off.

Mr. Morley's Articles.

To the Eidtor of The Post—Sir: May I express my sincere appreciation for the series of articles written so ably by Mr. Felix Morley on "Europe Today"—especially the two concluding articles in which The Post editor sums up his impressions. They are so full of fundamental truths that they ought to be posted at every corner to make them known all over the country. It should be made mandatory to read them from all churches, high schools, colleges and universities in view of the fact that most Americans prove to be piteously unaware of what are the real problems underlying the constant menace for peace which emanates from the European political theater.

IMMIGRANT.

A Southern Democrat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I inclose a copy of a letter I have recently addressed to the President of the United States.

D. SAM COX.

(Inclosure.)

To the President of the United States: Not only is it true that "To err is human," but it is also true that all humans do err. Since you have been universally proclaimed as the most human individual who has ever occupied the White House, it must follow that you can make errors.

As one of your early and persistent admirers during your "trial and error" proceedings which characterized your first term, and during which you were quite ready to admit and correct error, I avail myself of the privilege of calling your attention to some of the errors accompanying the trials of your second term—a privilege which, in those first days, you frequently requested your friends to exercise.

It is my thoughtful opinion that you made your first error in permitting John Lewis to place you under obligations to him and his unlawful strikers by accepting his contribution of half a million dollars to your campaign fund, the acceptance of which put him in position to compel you to justify his lawlessness.

Another serious error was the appointing of a woman as Secretary of Labor, a position which is furthest removed from the natural capacities of any woman. Your appointee has made statements which need no enlarging to prove her a Lewis partisan, and her retention is a considerable mystery to many of your friends.

Your latest error is the advocacy of the court bill. This cannot be charged to a simple error of the mind, but is clearly of the heart, and is all the more regrettable to your "good neighbors" to whom you have made such excellent fireside talks.

The carrying out of your wishes in the court matter means the scrapping of the Constitution—a thing of which I would not have believed you capable, during your first term. And it opens the way for a succeeding Republican administration to continue to rape the Constitution, a thing which we Democrats know they will certainly do.

Finally, let me state that I can see nothing but disaster as a result of the operation of your ideas of erasing State lines and concentrating universal powers in Washington, from which all Government affairs will be operated by remote control.

It gives me no pleasure to write this letter; indeed, as a Democrat, it causes me considerable pain; but I cannot remain silent while I see a major disaster hovering over us, and am, therefore, imploring you to desist in your attempt to work an incurable ill upon our beloved country whose destinies you have so completely dominated.

Cordially and helpfully,
D. SAM COX.

Civil Service Unions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a Government employe who is interested in bettering working conditions of Government workers I read with pleasure your editorial of July 13 in relation to the unionization of the State, country and municipal employes by the C. I. O. It is important that the public realize that a progressive union can function effectively for public employes, whether it be for Federal, State, county or municipal units.

The Federal Government service needs the improvement of many working conditions. It is not always the paradise painted by those who wish to keep the rank and file contented and subservient. The lack of promotion policy, the discriminations, the overtime, etc., need attention. A progressive union such as the United Federal Workers of America can with effective grievance committees do much to better working conditions. Also, as stated in the editorial, this organization, with its backing of the millions of industrial workers, can and will support Civil Service reforms.

The Other Half.

MY friend takes exception to the 50-50 ratio in the old saying "half the world doesn't know how the other half lives." He believes that, taken literally, it covers too much territory.

Plain Americans, intelligent but untraveled, he contends, know nothing concrete about the daily habits of, say, Abyssinians of a relative class, or vice versa, and this holds good in a general geographical survey of the globe.

Our neighbors, he claims, form the clinic by which our personal conclusions are arrived at concerning the "other half"—that is, if we be honest. There are, my friend tells me, 42 separate dwellings in the apartment where he lives. Each is inhabited by persons as varied in their concepts of how life should be lived as are the four winds variable. He believes the ratio here in the one building would be something like 90:10, with the 90 against him.

* * *

The woman across the hall from him, he says, hates her "punch" job with the Government, but loves cats. Her two black kittens smell the place up terribly, and on occasion bolt through the open door. Such boisterousness! He thought someone had died, he says, when first he heard them being chased through the corridor. A good-looking young widow, cordial but reserved.

The two young girls to the right of him (when facing west) are intriguing, he says. They turn on the radio at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon (my friend is a studious chap), then seemingly prepare "breakfast." He is conscious, he says, of cooking business noises, and of husky-voiced swing-song attempts; of arguments concerning Bill and Harry and others—then a sudden quietness. He doesn't hear them again until nearly morning, about 12 hours later, when he is awakened by a commotion in the hallway—giggles, suppressed laughter, the slamming of a door, the odor of brewing coffee. They are very pretty young girls, he says, very pretty, indeed . . .

I should get a glimpse of his other nearest neighbor, he insists, the one to the left (when looking west). A tall, raw-boned, sour-looking individual, seemingly in love with a lonely life. He tells me that in all the three years he has neighbored her, no sound has ever come to him from her apartment. She is so prim-looking, one naturally evades her. Yet, just the other night, he states, upon leaving his own apartment, he saw standing, waiting before this estimable lady's door, the delivery man Joe, from the liquor emporium; and when the door was stealthily opened he heard Joe say, distinctly, "A pint of rye—98 cents collect."

My friend, a retiring gentleman, says that you could have knocked him down with a feather.

* * *

He tells me also of the wizened little man who "lives down the hall." His chief occupation, it seems, is to go to the mail box. Ten or more times a day he shambles down two flights of stairs in heel-whacking mules, to try his fortune. "It's a game with him," my friend confides, "or, perhaps a tragedy. Who knows? I've been present often when he's inserted the key, lifted the front and gazed into an empty container." Then, "Gosh, man! I'd try to fix it for him if I but knew what it is he's expecting!"

The hall gossip upsets my friend. She resides at the north end of his floor. A rather stoutish person and not overly tall, with a high-pitched, rasping voice. Her missions outside her doorstep are vague, yet she seems always to be present at the moment when certain other of her neighbors are errand-bound.

There are many others, my friend remarks, of course, such as the newlyweds who keep to themselves; the gangster-looking person who obviously is on good terms with the janitor and whose life seems dribbled between a mysterious business interest and an underslung, rakish roadster; the sot whose door is always open and whose stentorian voice belches thunderous threats at telephone operators for not, instanter, connecting him with Senator So or Representative And or Liquor Dispenser So; the "regulars" whose hurried footsteps, come office time in morning, patter down the hall past his own door, a comfortable, reassuring sound.

"What," my friend asks me, "do I know about these individuals?" Then, answering himself, "Nothing whatever."

* * *

It was Monday morning just gone when last I visited him. We sat in his bed-living-room discussing the merits of Mascagni and Leoncavallo, and their respective one-act operas, when suddenly, out of a clear sky, he said: "That's what I like."

"Eh?" I ejaculated.

"The woman there," he said, pointing out the window.

I craned my neck. She was on the back porch of an apartment abutting ours, hanging wash on a line. Her hair was disheveled, and her brow sweaty. An inexpensive printed dress covered a neat figure; her legs were bare and she wore old, comfortable slippers. At her side, following her as she moved about, was a boy-child of about 3 years, to whom she spoke, occasionally. As she worked she hummed a song.

"I like that picture," said my friend, musingly, staring, sucking at his pipe. "You have to live in the back of the world to see it truly."

The Postilion Writes of Hitch-Hiking to a Job

Work in a Wheat Field.

De Soto, Kan., July 14.—It is six o'clock when you swing off the milk truck, and into the lane. It is cool at that hour of the morning, even in Kansas, and as you walk toward the unpainted barns, and the house which is but a little bigger than the poultry shed, you wonder how you're going to make out on your first day in the harvest.

TOM McCARTHY.

When you come into the farmyard, you find the other two harvest hands are already there and you automatically dub them "Fatty" and "Slim." You wonder how the fat boy will last when the sun gets to him.

You go up to the tall gaunt farmer, with the thin lips, and tell him that you're the man he talked about hiring, over the phone. He looks you over carefully, and says that he'll give you a trial. Then, cautiously he asks what you will work for. Because you've been misinformed, you drive a bad bargain. You tell him you'll work for $1.50 a day, a place to sleep and three meals. It isn't until later that you realize that you're $1 under the prevailing rate.

* * * *

HE DOESN'T give any sign that he's got the best of a bargain, and tells you that he'll pay your price, give you a bed, and "half the food you can eat." You think he's joking when he says "half the food you can eat." But he's not joking. You find that out later.

He looks at you sternly and asks if you've ever shocked wheat. You lie and tell him you have. You tell him that you shocked wheat in New York State, but that was years ago.

The farmer gives you some tattered gloves and a hat, and later you wonder at your audacity in thinking you could get along without them.

"Slim" has a car, 1924 model, and you all get in and drive back down the lane and into the field. Because the farmer wasn't able to find another water jug, there is only one for the four. Later in the day, when you get warmed up, that becomes important. "Fatty" had passed out a few days ago when he tried to shock wheat, and he keeps pretty quiet. Though he has an unlined young face, he is about 45. He has been in several relief camps, and is sorry he ever left them. He is a little scared, wondering if he will pass out again today.

Unlike most wheat fields in Kansas, this field is not perfectly flat. It slopes down to form a little valley at one end. The wheat is poorer at the lower part of the 45-acre field.

"Slim" and "Fatty" start at one corner of the field and you and the farmer start at the opposite corner. You are to work down the field and then back up the hill. You follow the rows of bound sheaves lying where the binder has left them.

* * * *

THE FARMER picks up two sheaves and holds them, inclined together at the top, and you pick up a third, driving the straw end into the stubble to support the two he is holding. Then you build around the foundation, until you have a good sized shock. Because the wheat is so dry you do not build a smaller, more orthodox shock, nor do you break a sheaf across its top to act as a cap, to keep the rain off. This wheat can use a little moisture.

You watch the motions of the farmer, starting slowly, so as to make no mistakes, and when you set the sheaves down you remember the advice of the Indiana farm boy . . . to set them down hard. The straw end of the sheaf locks with the stubble, and at the top the "beard" near the grains, locks again.

At the end of a half-hour, your are quite confident in your motions, and have heard no word of reproof from the farmer. He says that he can always tell when a man has shocked before, and you feel quite elated.

* * * *

BY EIGHT O'CLOCK in the morning you and the farmer have a good lead on "Slim" and "Fatty," and you note that "Fatty" has already gone back to the car for a drink of water. The farmer asks you if you want a drink and, because you know that the longer you hold off the better it will be for you, you tell him "Not yet."

You are glad that you have gloves, because there are some nettles in the wheat and the cord which binds the sheaf would otherwise cut your fingers, as you slide them underneath and swing the sheaf into position for setting it in the shock. In an hour you will be glad you are wearing a hat.

The wheat is full of dust, and the farmer remarks that now a little rain would do it good, and help to wash away some of the dust. This wheat is so dry that a moderate rain would not hurt it. By ten o'clock your mouth has became as dry as the wheat you are handling and you have difficulty in talking to the farmer whose tongue and disposition have loosened up somewhat in the heat of the sun. He wants to know what they pay farmhands in New York, how the corn is in Indiana and have they many big towns in Pennsylvania, where his brother-in-law works?

You go back for your first drink of water at nine and "Fatty" joins you for his fourth. "Fatty" is getting a little short of breath; but "Slim" looks as cool as when he started. The water tastes better than any you've ever drunk, and the wet wrap of burlap about the jug has kept it cool.

By ten o'clock you are panting yourself and your lips begin to coat with a layer of dust which cracks them.

Now, the farmer is driving hard. You are leading "Slim" and "Fatty" by a half a row and "Fatty" is having an awful time trying to keep up. He tries to engage the farmer in conversation when you all join for a drink from a fresh jug of water. "Fatty" wants to prolong the rest period around that jug and you hope he is able to make it. You aren't in any great hurry to get back to work yourself.

It is a cool day for Kansas, and there is a slight breeze, but those facts are soon forgotten in the blaze of light which reflects from the stubble, and the swirl of dust from the sheaves, as you "set them down hard."

When you drag yourself in by noon, you wonder how you'll ever make it after you've eaten.

You eat a big meal at the farmhouse. Meat, eggs, four or five vegetables, rolls, bread, pie and coffee comprise the menu. The farm wife does not sit down. She waits on her husband and the harvest hands. No one talks to her, and not very much is said among the others.

When you return to the field an hour later, you feel almost as fresh as when you entered it in the morning. You don't quite understand that. You tire quickly during the first hour, and everyone, including the farmer, takes a long five minutes at the water jug. Then you go back to shocking and wonder how you'll last. You wonder why people should ever engage in such monotonous, laborious pursuit.

* * * *

ABOUT AN HOUR later, at three o'clock, you make a marvelous discovery; you have been going along at a fast pace, and the farmer is not outdoing you in the least.

For an hour you've been working and working fast, bending and straightening, and you haven't thought about how tired you were at all. You are becoming co-ordinated to the job and the going is easy. Your eyes are almost immune to the glare from the stubble, and the dust doesn't bother you any more. You aren't particularly conscious of any feeling, except that you are sweating freely, and that the job has become purely mechanical. You've got your second wind!

Shock after shock is set up, and you bend and straighten, straighten and bend, and it doesn't make much difference. You feel now that you could go on for hours and, while your throat is dry, it doesn't bother you; you simply accept it rather indifferently.

You scoop up a sheaf, turn, bring it down hard to the stubble, seeing that it joins with the other sheaves, and all the while you're not in a field in Kansas at all. You're thinking about the music and a frosted glass at the Mayflower in Washington or the Belvedere in Baltimore, and you decide that wheat shocking isn't such a bad job after all.

TOMORROW: McCarthy, somewhat to his dismay, finds that work on a Kansas farm is not all shocking wheat, decides to hit the open road again for Omaha.

Palestine Politics

Correspondent Analyzes Arab and Jewish Parties In Region Recently Recommended For Division By British Commission.

By Clyde H. DuBose.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Jerusalem.

LIKE THEIR rivals, the Arabs, the Jews of the Holy Land have a complete political setup, which functions in unity with the British government. This local governing body is known as the Jewish National Council, or "Vaadleumi," and is headed by President Isaac Ben-Zvi.

When it is necessary to contact government officials, this body does it through the Jewish Agency, the official designation for world Jewry, provided for in the mandate and located here in Jerusalem. This is headed by Chairman David Ben-Guryon. The eight members are elected, four by the world Zionist Congress and four by the Non-Zionist Council.

There are also several political parties, the largest being the Histadruth or labor organization, which claims about 80,000 members. It is closely allied with the Jewish Labor Federation in America. David Ben-Guryon also heads this organization.

Founded in the prewar days, it claims credit for many of the public works projects in Palestine. Under its guidance have been established such things as public "sick funds," an insurance agency against sickness; convalescent homes, and societies that afford members equal share in economic resources, irrespective of class and income.

The party also has a school system of its own in which instruction is based on the principle of knowledge and work. A fair percentage of these pupils go to the agricultural settlements when they graduate. Various seminaries and cultural institutions come under this system.

General Zionist Party Corresponds to Liberals.

SECOND LARGEST is the General Zionist Party, corresponding to the Liberal Party in England. This was the original Zionist Party in Palestine, but now does not have a great many members. There are two wings, the right led by F. Rotenstreich, and the left by J. Grinberg.

Next comes the Misrahi, of orthodox religious party. They maintain that Jewish life in Palestine should be based on religious principles. They want strict observance of these principles, combined with manual work. Their slogan is "The Law and Work." There are two leaders, Rabbi J. L. Fishman and Rabbi M. Berlin.

Then there is another strict orthodox party which is much smaller, and is not represented in the Zionist executive. It is known as the Agudath Israel, and its leader is Rabbi B. Blau. Its members are composed more or less of the older generation and are limited entirely to religious pursuits.

Another small party, formed two years ago when the Revisionists walked out of the World Zionist Congress, is the Jewish State Party. They remained loyal to the Zionists, but are for the establishment of a complete Jewish state. Meier Grossman heads this party.

Last of all there are the troublesome Revisionists, who declare that Palestine should be an independent Jewish state having a standing army. They claim they were promised this under the Balfour declaration. Vladimir Jabotinsky, who heads this party, is not even allowed in Palestine. He maintains his office in Paris.

Four Principal Groups Direct Arabian Politics.

AMONG THE ARABS there are four principal political parties in existence today, the nucleus of a political pot that began to boil shortly over a decade ago. All, however, have been overshadowed by the national cause.

Unlike other countries with a constitutional government, the Arabs of Palestine for years had only the Arab Executive as their principal controlling body. There was no public recognition of the fact that the people had always generally divided themselves into two factions, the Mejlisites, or those favoring the Supreme Moslem Council, and the Mu'arideen, or opposition.

The Supreme Moslem Council was originally an elected Moslem body, constituted for the control and management of Moslem affairs in Palestine. It consisted, as it does today, of a president and four members. Among its most important functions is the management of the Moslem Awqaf, or endowments; control of religious courts; appointment of Muftis, Kadis (religious judges), Mudariseen (religious teachers) and the like.

The present council was elected in January, 1922, for a term of four years, but until now there has been no re-election and the president is still His Eminence Haj Amin Effendi Husseini. Vacancies in the council have been filled by appointments from the High Commissioner's office.

Though principally a religious group, the council has had its influence on politics and has attempted to defend the Arabs against the invasion of the newcomers.

In 1924 the Arabs took the first step of establishing a political party with a prescribed constitution and platform. The initiative was taken by a large number of the intelligentsia, who ultimately succeeded in establishing a party under the name of "Arab National Party." Sheikh Sulieman Effendi Taji El Farouki, learned Moslem jurist and proprietor of a leading daily newspaper, was elected president.

Opposition Has Tried To Reform Administration.

THIS PARTY comprised mainly the opposition element, and during the short time of its existence it endeavored, although without success, to secure some reform in the administration in the way of establishing a legislative council.

In the meantime steps were taken to reorganize the national movement, which resulted in the convention of the seventh congress at Jerusalem, in 1927. This congress elected an executive committee of 48 members, representing the whole of the Arab people of Palestine, including 12 Christian Arabs. The late Mousa Pasha Husseini was made president.

This committee administered Arab political affairs for nearly eight years and was responsible for conducting the defense of the Arab case before the Shaw Commission and, although it is not now functioning, it has never been formally dissolved.

Then came the Independence Party, which was the first political party to be formally established after the disturbance of 1929. Its program was inspired by that of the old Arab Independence Party. Still in existence, it fosters the establishment of an Arab Federation.

On December 2, 1934, came the formation of the National Defense Party, which is still the main opposition party to the council. It is headed by the popular Rabheb Bey Nashashibi, former Mayor of Jerusalem. Many modern improvements in the Holy City had been attributed to him.

Until recently the activities of the Defense Party were independent, but later events immediately before the disturbances of 1936 made it necessary for joint action on the part of all political parties in the country, and in the formation of a coalition of Arab parties to face imminent dangers, this party played an important part.

Nationalist Group Aimed To Resist Zionist Program.

ANOTHER NATIONAL Arab party was soon established under the name of the Palestine Arab Party. Its object was to concentrate and organize all the forces of the group, which until recently was known as Pro-Council, or Mejlisites. It also desired to maintain the Arab character of Palestine and to resist the establishment of the Jewish national home. Its chief leader was Jamal Effendi Husseini, former joint secretary of the Arab executive committee.

The party declared its intention to endeavor to concentrate and direct all the forces at its disposal toward the realization of its principles. It took upon itself to resist the sale of land to Jews and to resist Jewish immigration and colonization by all possible means.

In the somewhat general movement which swept the Arab circles for party organization, two other parties sprang up—the National League and the Islah Party. Within a short while they had some influence over a certain element of the Arab public opinion.

The National League is headed by Abdul Latif Bey Salah, an advocate of prominence and formerly a member of the Moslem Supreme Council. The Islah Party was established in 1935 with Dr. Hussein Khalibi as its leader.

Finally there is an Arab Young Men's Federation. For many years a group of young men had been going along under the aspect of a political organization. They had convened two congresses. The present organization was formed at Haifa three years ago. Yacoup Bey Ghussien is its president.

The outstanding parties today are the Supreme Moslem Council, the National Defense Party, the Independence Party and the Youth Movement.

Eden's Plan

By Barnet Nover

Something For Everyone.

THE 27 NATIONS represented on the London non-intervention committee have unanimously accepted the British compromise plan for isolating the Spanish civil war—but only "as a basis of discussion."

This is a striking tribute to Britain's prestige. Had the same plan been advanced by any other nation it would probably have received scant consideration. In greater or lesser degree Eden's proposed compromise evades every major international issue that has arisen out of the Spanish civil war. But because the plan was sponsored by Great Britain the other powers have deemed it expedient to consider it.

At least it does enable them to postpone coming to real grips with the Spanish problem and through such postponement avoiding a dangerous showdown. But past experience has abundantly demonstrated that there is no real will to compromise among the European great powers and hence no possibility of a real non-intervention agreement.

IF THE NATIONS were really prepared to meet each other's views half way, the British plan would probably serve as well as any, particularly if it could be applied at once. It embodies concessions for everybody while capitulating wholly to the viewpoint of none.

From the viewpoint of Germany and Italy the plan has much to recommend it. In the first place, it provides for the complete abandonment of the sea patrol. Hitherto, Great Britain and France have been trying to get this patrol re-established either through the extension of the British and French zones to cover the whole coast of Spain or by having the smaller powers take over the former German and Italian zones.

Berlin and Rome can also regard as a capitulation to their demands the proposal that in the not-distant future belligerent rights be extended to Franco.

In actual practice the elimination of the sea patrol plus the winning of belligerent rights for the insurgents may easily work to the advantage of Franco. The insurgent fleet reinforced by German and Italian ships loaned for the purpose might easily succeed in imposing a very effective blockade of loyalist ports.

This would mean the blocking of all sea-borne supplies intended for use of the loyalists. At the same time, with the re-establishment of the international patrol on the French side of the Franco-Spanish border, Valencia would be unable to get any war supplies by the land route.

THE POINT can be made, of course, that if the British program is effectively carried out, the insurgents, too, would be cut off from their foreign sources of manpower, munitions and planes. One of the principal points in the Eden compromise is that both sides in the Spanish civil war agree to permit foreign observers to be stationed in all ports with the right to inform the London committee of any violations of the non-intervention agreement.

This is good as far as it goes. But once in control of the sea the insurgents and their foreign Fascist allies could ignore the observers. Even if the latter did manage to learn of contraband shipments they would have no right to confiscate them. Alleged violations would have to be taken up by the London committee which, if its past history is any indication, will probably continue to be a veritable circumlocution office. By the time it got around to considering charges against this or that nation the damage would be done.

The fact of the matter is that neither Germany nor Italy have any intention of abandoning the Spanish contestants to their own devices. They are determined on securing a victory for Franco no matter how achieved. They will agree to the British plan only if convinced that it can further that aim. It is Utopian to expect adherence on their part of any plan that in actual operation would work to Franco's disadvantage.

* * * *

ON THE OTHER hand, the French are more and more coming around to the view that a victory for Franco, if it means, as it probably would, the establishment of a hostile regime along the Pyrennes, constitutes a threat to the security of their nation. Even the Rightists are now aware of the threat embodied in German and Italian machinations in Spain and are clamoring that some action be taken to counteract it.

Yet from the French viewpoint, too, the British plan is not entirely without its saving features. It stipulates, for instance, that the recognition of the rebels must follow the beginning of actual withdrawal of foreigners now fighting with the opposing sides in Spain.

Since there is no reason to believe that Franco is in any better position now than heretofore to succeed without the continued aid of Germany and Italy, there would be a distinct advantage to the loyalists in having all foreigners recalled and this advantage would only partially be offset by the recognition granted the rebels as belligerents.

It might also be advantageous if the British plan for the stationing of neutral observers in all airports, to watch for the influx of foreign planes and supplies sent overhead, were put into force. While it might not prevent all such air shipments it might, at least, provide a means of checking aid sent to Franco by Germany and Italy.

* * * *

IT IS FOR these reasons and also, no doubt, because a break with Great Britain is not desired by the Paris government, that France has accepted the British plan "in principle." But its final acceptance, it has been made clear, will depend on whether the withdrawal program is carried out in full and whether the control of ports can be shown to be a truly effective system of cutting off outside supplies to both sides.

The upshot of Friday's action by the non-intervention committee, therefore, is that while the powers represented at London are individually willing to avoid upsetting the apple cart, none of them is enthusiastic about the British plan.

They like certain parts of it and dislike others. These likes and dislikes are certain not to be eliminated by any round-table discussions. Those powers, such as Great Britain, which want to prevent a showdown at all costs; those powers, such as Italy and Germany, that will be content with nothing less than an insurgent victory and those powers, such as France, which are now swinging to the side of Valencia if not yet prepared openly to support it, will all, no doubt, maintain their respective points of view.

In view of such a situation the British plan may be a "basis of discussion," but can hardly be the basis of an agreement.

In the meantime the Spanish civil war which might have been over long before this, had recognized concepts of international law been observed, enters its second year with the end still way out of sight.

Elizabeth Browning

By William Lyon Phelps

Her Birthday.

On this day, the twenty-ninth of June, 1861, she died; on her tombstone in Florence is simply the inscription, "E. B. B., ob., 1861."

She was a great poet; but what is particularly remarkable in her character is that she combined tremendous convictions with tremendous tolerance. This union is rare. Usually, people have the defects of their qualities. If they have intensely strong convictions in politics or in religion, they are likely to be intolerant of persons who hold views exactly the opposite. If, on the other hand, they pride themselves on their tolerant attitude, tolerance in their case often means indifference. And they are indifferent because they are not interested. The man who smugly quotes the saying, "To understand is to forgive," does not look with sweetness on the man who picks his pocket.

* * * *

Elizabeth Barrett Browning had great convictions and great tolerance because she had a great mind and a great heart. Her intelligence was matched by her goodness.

Just as discussions of world peace often become acrimonious, so there is no subject that arouses more anger in discussion than religion. Elizabeth was a devout Christian, yet this is what she wrote to her fiance:

"I could pray anywhere and with all sorts of worshipers from the Sistine Chapel to Mr. Fox's, those kneeling and those standing. Wherever you go, in all religious societies, there is a little to revolt, and a good deal to bear with—but it is not otherwise in the world without; and within, you are especially reminded that God has to be more patient than yourself, after all."

Roosevelt's Son Urges Free Ads To Aid Jobless

Gov. Hurley Indorses Plan To Aid 35,000 Ousted WPA Workers.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 16.—A plea by James Roosevelt that Massachusetts publishers give the unemployed free space in their want ad columns today headlined a meeting called by the President's son to spur industrial absorption of 35,000 discharged WPA workers in the Bay State.

From the session, which heard some criticism of the Roosevelt Administration and a sharp counter-suggestion by Massachusetts' lieutenant governor, emerged a committee of newspaper, radio and business men to consider James Roosevelt's several-sided plan.

Gov. Charles F. Hurley, indorsing the plan, proposed that the WPA finance an immediate double survey to determine exactly the numbre of unemployed in the State, and to enumerate businesses which now are unable to borrow, but which could hire men if funds were available. Roosevelt expressed informal agreement.

Clearing Houses.

Outlining his plan to make Massachusetts a giant laboratory for "taking away from the Government the solution of the WPA problem," Roosevelt proposed not only the free want ad space, but a series of "clearing houses" set up by chambers of commerce, with the co-operation of the State and Federal Government, including the postoffices.

He asserted it was time to prove or disprove repeated claims that of those slashed from WPA rolls "a majority can be absorbed in private industry." If not, he declared, something else would have to be tried.

Hardly had he and Gov. Hurley finished, when Lieut. Gov. Francis E Kelly jumped up to tell James Roosevelt, "as a representative of his father," that Massachusetts had "never received its proportionate share of WPA funds."

James Praised.

"I don't blame this on the President," he said, "I understand Hopkins has charge of the WPA funds. And I ask Mr. Hopkins to continue the WPA as it was. I don't think business can absorb 35,000 men thrown out of work all at once."

Kelly said that young Roosevelt, "by injecting himself into this State," had done the citizens a favor in proposing the unemployment absorption plan. He said Roosevelt had told him he realized that in taking the initiative in the employment move "he would be accused of running for every office down to dog catcher before he gets out of the State."

The President's son, both before and after the meeting, told newspapermen he had no intention of running for Governor of Massachusetts in 1938.

Md. Guard Units To Entrain Today

Nearby units of the Maryland National Guard will entrain today with the First Infantry for Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., for the encampment of the Fifty-eighth Brigade, Maryland National Guard.

The Fifty-eighth is made up of the Fifth Infantry, Baltimore, and the First Infantry, composed of county units. It is commanded by Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock. Gen. Woodcock will command the brigade as a unit in the field for the first time today as he was promoted to the command of the brigade after the last annual encampment. The Fifth has been in camp for the past week and will return to its home station Saturday.

Governor's day will be held at the camp tomorrow and the public is invited. A brigade review in the afternoon will be featured by presentation of service medals and trophies for the past year.

Nearby units which will leave today are the Service Company, Silver Spring, the Howitzer Company, Kensington; the Headquarters Company, Laurel, and Company F, Hyattsville. The regimental headquarters company and band section are from Frederick.

Boys Gain Weight At Civilian Camps

By the Associated Press.

The Civilian Conservation Corps—which sets the Nation's biggest dining table—issued yesterday some statistics on mass eating and what it does to the waistline.

Saddled with the job of cooking 1,500,000 pounds of food daily, the corps has a good idea of what the American young man likes to eat.

First on the preferred list is roast beef. Next is pork, third is lamb.

Just to see what was happening in the avoirdupois division, officials ordered a test on 4,123 CCC men from all regions. It showed:

Those from the deep South—Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee, Louisiana, North and South Carolina—gained the fastest, an average of 9.19 pounds in the first two months.

Army Approves Waterway Link

By the Associated Press.

Army Engineers approved yesterday the proposed $9,000,000 Calcasieu Waterway to connect Lake Charles, La., with the Gulf of Mexico, by a shorter route.

The Board of Army Engineers made its report after two years of surveys and technical examinations.

Representative R. L. DeRouen, Ville Platte, La., said Senator John H. Overton, of Louisiana, would offer an amendment to the rivers and harbors bill now pending in the Senate to provide money necessary for the construction of the waterway.

Farm Labor Scarce.

Government statisticians said yesterday farm wages are the highest since 1930. Few unemployed men are seeking work on farms, they said, and farmers in most areas cannot get an adequate supply of labor.

Free Trade Zone Asked.

The Foreign Trade Loan Board held a closed conference today on an application of the Alabama Docks Commission to operate a free trade zone at Mobile.

Trotsky Goes Fishing.

(Mexico City.—Leon Trotsky has dropped his cares to go fishing."—News item.)

Your correspondent came upon Trotsky beside a mountain brook. He was standing on a soap box waving a rod in each hand. "Rise!" he kept shouting, "Rise!"

"Any luck?" asked your correspondent.

"Luck!" sneered the great Red leader. "Luck is not in my scheme of things. Only the bourgeoisie speak of luck. One does not accomplish things through chance; one must have a system, a plan, a philosophy. The trouble with the world today is . . ."

"What I mean is are you getting results?" we corrected.

"What do you mean by results?" demanded Trotsky, now holding both rods in his left hand and pointing to us with his right. "The word result is indefinite. All over the world today the masses are . . ."

"Are you using worms for bait?" we interrupted.

"Worms!" exclaimed Trotsky, now dropping both rods. "That's it. Worms! Everywhere are worms. But some day the worm will turn."

* * * *

"What kind of fish are you after?" we asked.

"Red snapper!" he shouted, his eyes blazing. "Next to the red grunt, the red grouper and the red salmon there is no fish like the red snapper. Such a color!"

"There are no red snappers in fresh water," we informed him.

"That is what YOU say," snapped Trotsky. "I do not accept the conclusions of others. I find out for myself. The trouble with the world today is that too many people accept precedent as truth."

"You have a bite," we exclaimed as one of his bobs went under.

"Where?" he asked, anxiously, looking down at his chest and scratching his head. "The capitalistic system is dying. The people have spoken. The proletariat is on the march. The trouble with . . ."

"Quick! You have a fish!"

"Do not interrupt. You seek to divert me. This is an old capitalistic trick. All over the world millions . . ."

"The fish is running off with your line. Are you going to hook him? Are you going to let him get away?"

"One question at a time," commanded the Red orator.

* * * *

At this point the fish, in a series of tugs, took line, rod and reel down-stream.

"What's the matter with you?" demanded your correspondent. "Why don't you watch your rod? Can't you keep a tight line? How the hell can you catch fish if you . . ."

Mr. Trotsky made a magnificent gesture of contempt.

"Ah," he sneered. "A HECKLER!"

But, why must you mow your lawn today?

Now my resistance is far from peak,
Why must you mow lawn today?

Friend, if indeed a friend you be,
Squelch your mower and go your way.
Have some pity on sleepless me—
Why must you mow your lawn today?

Britain Hopes For Neutrality Truce on Spain

Believes Deadlock Ended; New Plan Presented to Committee.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 16.—British officials tonight declared their belief the long deadlock over European neutrality in the Spanish civil war had been broken.

After Britain's new plan for isolating the conflict had been presented to the 27 nations nonintervention committee, British spokesmen said all members of the committee had accepted it as a "basis for discussion."

A sub-committee will consider details of the plan Tuesday.

The plan calls for withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain, dissolution of the neutral naval patrol, establishment of a system of neutral observers on supply ships entering Spanish waters, and granting "limited" belligerent rights to Spain's warring factions.

"A week ago the principal powers were at odds completely, but now the outlook is highly satisfactory," a British spokesman declared.

France, Italy and Germany were reported to have accepted the program with reservations, which each said must be "fully discussed" before a final agreement is concluded.

Ivan Maisky, Russian Ambassador and Moiseyevitch Kagan, Soviet representative on the committee indicated they will object vigorously to many points in the British plan.

"Our opposition will be disclosed to the sub-committee next Tuesday," Maisky said when he left the meeting.

Although the proposal was regarded as acceptable as a basis for discussion, the critical question was whether the Italian-German and French-Russian viewpoints can be reconciled.

The French cabinet decided Charles Corbin, French Ambassador to London, should insist on "substantial" progress in setting up control of Spain's ports and withdrawal of foreign fighters before granting the insurgents belligerent rights.

It was thought that Germany and Italy, who already have recognized the insurgent junta as the de facto government of Spain, would want such rights accorded immediately with the question of withdrawal of volunteers deferred as long as possible.

Coast Guard Ships Refused in Strike

Officials said yesterday Secretary Morgenthau does not believe a maritime strike affecting Massachusetts and the island resorts of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket justifies the use of Coast Guard vessels to carry passengers and food.

Gov. Hurley of Massachusetts earlier had appealed to President Roosevelt and Morgenthau for Coast Guard boats.

Persons close to Morgenthau said he thought the strike was entirely a State matter. Unless the situation should become more acute, they added, Coast Guard boats will not be used for ordinary shipping purposes.

Authorities said Morgenthau's views would be communicated to the White House, which, in turn was expected to notify Gov. Hurley.

Two of 9 Tried In Bond Racket Escape Charge

Prosecution Finishes Effort to Prove D. C. Motorists Were Mulcted.

Charges against two of the nine men on trial at Upper Marlboro, Md., on a blanket conspiracy indictment were nolle prossed yesterday as the prosecution completed efforts to prove Washington motorists had been mulcted in an alleged "bargain-fine" racket.

State's Attorney Alan Bowie nolle prossed charges against Howard Slater and Maurice Hampton, both former members of the county police force, after explaining that the State had been unable to produce certain witnesses whose testimony might have involved them.

Bowie pointed out, however, that additional conspiracy charges are still pending against these two men in individual indictments returned by the grand jury last December.

Depends on Jury Action.

Whether these charges ever will be brought against Hampton and Slater depends on what action the jury takes in the present case against the other seven defendants, he intimated.

The prosecution revealed yesterday the sheriff's office had been unable to subpoena Harry McH. Braxton, colored, of Lakeland, Md., who was to testify in connection with an alleged attempt to bribe one of the State witnesses to keep him from appearing at the trial.

Ogle Marbury, special prosecutor, said a deputy sheriff, armed with a summons, had waited at Braxton's home until late Thursday night, but that the man had not appeared.

Braxton was arrested on a charge of bribery by Washington police last May 20 in the apartment of Charles Hamilton, colored, 1400 block of T street northwest. Police said Braxton confessed he had been sent to Hamilton's apartment by a defendant in the conspiracy trial.

Detective Sergt. Jacob Wolfe, of the Washington police, who arrested Braxton, appeared yesterday as a State witness, but the court refused to admit his testimony.

John S. White, Hyattsville, Md., attorney and a member of the State Legislature, took the stand as attorneys for the indicted men opened their defense. He was questioned in regard to the testimony of Woodrow Brice, colored, who told the jury Wednesday he had not retained White as his attorney to represent him on a charge of exceeding 60 miles an hour.

Legislator Testifies.

The legislator said:

"James F. Hughes, attorney of Washington, called me and said he was representing Brice. He asked me to look into the case. I said I would represent Brice for $100. I first saw Brice in the corridor of the police court several weeks after he had been arrested. He said he had up $151.70 with Justice of the Peace Moffat (one of the defendants) and that it would be all right if he got back $25 and saved his permit.

"I went to Moffat and presented information and he agreed to reduce the charge from exceeding 60 miles an hour to exceeding 45.

"I received from Moffat $140. Moffat retained $11.70 as collateral.

"After the case had been disposed of Brice came to my office and said he wanted his money. I made out a receipt and Brice signed it."

Receipt Is Presented.

The receipt, presented in court as evidence, represented that $25 had been returned to Brice, $11.70 forfeited as collateral and the "balance" retained by White for legal services.

Cross-examining White, Prosecutor Marbury asked:

"Wasn't your fee for representing Brice $115?"

"My fee was $90 net," White retorted. "I gave Hughes $25 for forwarding fees."

In his testimony Wednesday, Brice repeatedly denied White had returned any money to him, declaring the only time he saw White was once at the Hyattsville police station, when the lawyer asked him to sign his name on a sheet of paper.

Raymond Iannucci, 1870 Monroe street northwest, another motorist arrested in the alleged "bonding racket," told the jury that after he had testified before the Grand Jury last fall, someone offered to return $151.70 paid to Elmer Pumphrey, Suitland, Md., bondsman under indictment. Iannucci quoted the man as saying:

"You might get yourself in a bad spot if you testify. You'd better take the money while you can."

The defense placed 14 character witnesses on the stand. They were William A. Duvall, Branchville; J. F. Keefauver, Berwyn; J. Earle Gingell, Beltsville; Eugene Little, Laurel; Hodges Carr, Hyattsville; Gustavus B. Timanus, Laurel; William A. Shepherd, Hyattsville; Ernest Gasch, Hyattsville; Everett H. Roberts, Brentwood; Elmer C. Helm, Brentwood; Robert Nash, Brentwood; T. Hammond Welsh, sr., Hyattsville; Arthur H. Seidenspinner, Riverdale, and John H. Myers, Beltsville.

Warner Hired Her as Love Spy, Woman Detective Discloses

Retained to Find Out Whether Girl Cared for Him or His Money, Mrs. Antibus Reveals in $510,000 Suit for Kidnap Raid.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, July 16.—District Attorney Buron Fitts said today Thomas Warner, jr., 22, son of a wealthy automobile accessories manufacturer, hired a woman detective to discover whether the woman he loved really loved him or wanted his money.

This disclosure came as the Warners, father and son, conferred with Fitts on the $510,000 damage suit filed against Warner, sr., by Mrs. Pearl Antibus, private investigator, because of a raid on her home June 21 in which she claims she was injured.

Fitts said wax records obtained by a device secreted in the rooms of the young woman with whom Warner, jr., was in love were seized when his investigators raided Mrs. Antibus' home and returned young Warner to his father. They are being held as evidence, he said.

"The report Mr. Warner made to us that his son was a kidnap victim is still under investigation," the district attorney declared.

Mrs. Antibus, under treatment in a rest home, insisted Warner knew his son was in her home of his own volition.

"Young Warner retained my investigating firm to find out if the young woman really loved him just for himself," said Mrs. Antibus.

"A few days after the recording device was installed, Tommy, listening with earphones, heard the young woman say to a friend:

"'I don't care anything about Tommy's filthy money. I love him for what he is.'

"That broke up the investigation. Tommy threw down the earphones and dashed into her apartment and they had a reunion. I saw they were really in love, so I let them come to my home. I was not a 'kidnaper,' but a grandmotherly chaperone."

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, July 16.

THE PROBLEM of feminine drinking in this moist metropolis may now truthfully be said to be out in the open. As the afternoon sun subsides over the Hudson, our dozens of charming sidewalk cafes are found to be liberally sprinkled with members of our sex absorbing tall cold ones after the rigors of the day. The matter of our dalliance with alcohol in its various dilute forms rests largely in the hands of an intelligent woman—Mrs. John S. Sheppard, who is a commissioner of the New York State Liquor Authority. She preaches the age-old gospel of temperance. In Mrs. Sheppard's belief, the only practical solution to the so-called liquor problem rests in temperance education.

ALICE HUGHES.

"If nobody used liquor to excess," Mrs. Sheppard tells me," there would be no problem. It rests entirely with the individual." She thus spends every busy day trying to teach the ladies to take one or two for the good of their souls and bodies, and avoid the pitfalls of insobriety. Certainly there is room for improvement. Even at this late date, ghastly things occasionally happen. Only the other day a member of our frail sex turned a respectable Eighth avenue barroom into a shambles by wafting a bowl of olives at the bartender and then smashing a handsome 5-foot mirror behind the mahogany. This careless sister was lugged to the bastile. It will take a lot of educating by Mrs. Sheppard to fend off such evils, but she is on the right track. We wish her luck, for again the age-old privilege of personal liberty is jeopardized by badly behaved girls.

The Iturbis did a brother-and-sister act at our fine outdoor stadium, playing piano duets and solos with a glorious abandon and a family gemutlichkeit that made the stadium audience stand up and cheer. Amparo Iturbi was new to local audiences. Taller and younger than her famous brother, she looked dramatic as she played, dressed in billowing white, her olive skin richly dark and glowing. Jose Iturbi is a great favorite among women. I heard plenty of feminine voices challenging the prevailing masculine opinion Amparo Iturbi played better than Jose.

Among the assortment of fall style tricks are gloves, each of the fingers of which is a different though a blending color. Then there is a pocket comb, a Schiaparelli idea, shaped like a feather in a feather-shaped leather case. Hundreds of hats are floating a fringe of monkey fur from the side or even over the front, like bangs. Color ensembling allows a little more leeway than usual, but don't get to matching everything frantically. If shoe and glove are alike in color, and the hat uses a dash of the same shade, don't, I beg of you, get a matching belt and bag as well. Over-ensembling gives you the appearance of being all dressed up in accessories.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: One of the reasons Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the President kept in the background at the recent wedding of their son, Franklin, jr., to Ethel duPont was because they didn't want to "steal" their children's thunder as theirs had been thefted from them. In the fifth instalment of her autobiography, "This Is My Life," in the current Ladies Home Journal, Mrs. Roosevelt reveals that at her own wedding, T. R. Roosevelt, then President, attended. At the close of the ceremony, when the bride and groom were ready to shake hands with the guests, the latter were doing their best to pump the handle of the President, and were paying little heed to the bridal pair.

Librarian Pay Battle Revived By Palmisano

The House District Committee, which was at loggerheads with the House sub-committee on District appropriations during House consideration of the District supply bill, yesterday moved to unearth the hatchet.

Chairman Palmisano said he will introduce on Monday a bill to strike out a proviso in the 1938 appropriations act placing salaries of school librarians on the same level as employes of the public library. The effect of the proviso would be to reduce salaries of teachers acting as librarians.

The proviso was stricken from the supply bill on a point of order in the House, but Chairman Collins of the sub-committee succeeded in having it restored in conference. The point of order had been raised by members of the District Committee.

Representative Collins is an ardent supporter of public libraries. He does not see eye to eye with Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District public schools.

Collins insists teachers should stick to their knitting and that one group of librarians should be paid no more than another in the District system.

Florida Lions Tourists Feted At Mayflower

Florida had its day at the Lions Club meeting yesterday. Nearly 200 club members from that State, with their wives, who are driving to the international Lions convention in Chicago, were entertained at a luncheon at the Hotel Mayflower.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, an honorary member of the Clearwater (Fla.) Lions Club, dropped in to greet the visitors, but was prevented by another appointment from staying for the program.

Other guests were Henry Armetta, motion picture comedian, who accompanied R. L. Pollio, manager of the Mayflower; Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida; Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, and Representatives Robert A. Green, J. Mark Wilcox and Joe Hendricks, all of Florida. All spoke briefly.

The Florida delegation arrived yesterday morning in a fleet of 46 sedans, all painted a vivid orange. Also in the "motorcade" was the only air-conditioned trailer-ambulance in the country. The group left for Harrisburg, Pa., following the luncheon.

Their 15-day trip will take them 3,000 miles through 13 States. Thirty Florida cities are represented.

George Lewis, past president of the Washington Lions Club, presided yesterday. Bert Piers, district governor of Capital District No. 22, spoke, as did Millard B. Conklin, of Daytona Beach, Fla., who is in charge of the trip.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

One hears a great deal about so-and-so naturally being a great bridge player because he has a "mathematical mind." This sort of statement brings nothing but a smile from any expert. And considering the rudimentary knowledge of mathematics that is required at bridge, this is not surprising. The ability to count to 13 and to subtract ahd add small numbers is the only necessary mathematical equipment. I have seen feminine players use the time-honored method of counting on their fingers—in fact, two of the outstanding women experts of my acquaintance use this practice quite frequently. Perhaps their motive is partly to be coy, but the fact remains the bridge arithmetic is so simple that it can be done that way. Declarer's error in the hand shown below might truly be called a kindergarten error.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 7 5 4 ♡ A Q J 9 8 ◇ 9 7 ♣ A 10 6
♠ K Q J 3 2 ♡ 7 4 ◇ J 6 4 ♣ 5 3 2	North West East South	♠ 10 6 ♡ K 5 2 ◇ K Q 3 2 ♣ J 9 8 4
	♠ A 9 8 ♡ 10 6 3 ◇ A 10 8 5 ♣ K Q 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♡	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

North felt that his hand was too weak to warrant a try for game in hearts, hence supported the no trump.

West opened the spade King and declarer quite properly held up the Ace. His further hold-up to the spade Queen, however, was decidedly improper. Declarer and dummy had held six spades, which left only seven in the defenders' hands. If those seven were divided five in West and two in East, the second spade lead would have exhausted East's spades, so that if he were to gain the lead with the key card of the hand—the heart King—he would be unable to communicate with partner. If the spades were divided four-three, obviously declarer could lose only three spade tricks which, even if the heart King were off side, would not be fatal. The repeated hold-up was fatal.

After two spade leads, West realized that he could do no more with the suit and hence properly considered a shift. He weighed the club and diamond shifts as follows: For a club shift to be desirable East would have to hold the King, Queen and Jack. Even the King and Queen would not suffice, because declarer could duck and East would be unable to continue clubs without losing a trick. In diamonds, however, if East held the King and Queen (and of course the vital King of hearts), two diamond tricks could easily be won by the defenders.

On this correct analysis West shifted to a low diamond, and from that point declarer was playing a lost cause.

Labor Secretary Points to Increased Opportunities For Business, Professional Women in U. S. Service

Official Addresses 440 Federation Members at Dinner.

Urges Those of Her Sex to Seek Seats in Congress.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Business and professional women of the United States will find new opportunities for service in the Federal Government's expanding activities, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins last night told 460 members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, gathered at the All States banquet given by the local club at the Mayflower Hotel.

"There is opportunity for an increased number of women in Congress," she said, "women who have a flair for political work, who have the necessary qualifications for the job of helping to pass the country's laws and the courage and endurance to perform the duties required of them."

Thousands Now In Executive Work

More than 162,000 women were working in the executive branch of the United States Government at the beginning of this year, constituting not quite a fifth of all the employes in this branch, Miss Perkins pointed out. She added that there were nearly 47,000 women as compared with 70,000 men in the Government service in the District of Columbia.

She outlined President Roosevelt's reorganization plan, which would extend the merit system "upward, outward and downward to include all positions in the executive branch of the Government except those which are policy determining in character."

The plan, she said, would bring more than 250,000 positions, some of which are now under merit principles, under Civil Service within a year, but "those persons in these positions would not be given Civil Service status without taking a qualifying examination and without being certified by their director as having rendered satisfactory service in their posts."

"All employes in the Federal service should have their interests safeguarded by uniform and scientifically worked out regulations," she said. "Greater stress should be laid on the service as a worthy and exceedingly desirable career for men and women.

"Trained women, for example, can make valuable contributions if they are imbued with a desire to render real service in Government positions. The bulk of women in Government work have high ideals as to the kind of service to be given. These ideals should be carefully nurtured and spread so as to attract always the right type of women to serve our Government."

Distinguished Guests Attend Banquet

Secretary Perkins mentioned as "among the most outstanding women in Federal Government service, those in Congress." Seated near her at the head table were two of the present members of the House, Representative Virginia Jenckes, of Indiana, and Representative Nan Honeyman, of Oregon.

Other distinguished women seated there were Mrs. Blair Banister, Assistant United States Treasurer; Dr. Bess Goodykoontz, assistant Director of Education; Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Home Economics Division of the Department of Agriculture; Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, assistant director of the WPA, in charge of women's work; Miss Elizabeth Christmas, secretary of the Women's Trade Union League; Miss Rose Greely, Dr. Edith Seville Cole, Miss Jo Coffin, assistant to the public printer; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education; Mrs. Lu Brown Gregg, and Miss Elizabeth Farrell.

Miss Nina Kinsella, new president of the club, presided and the retiring president, Miss Robinson, who was named honorary chairman of the banquet, extended the club's welcome to the guests. Miss Kinsella wore an embroidered organdy redingote frock of white over black taffeta, and Miss Robinson was in a powder blue chiffon, with which she wore a large coral-colored flower at the V neck. The guest of honor wore a gown of black, with a necklace of pearls.

Also at the head tables were federation presidents from various States, including Aline Murray, Arkansas; Miss Patricia Solander, Kansas; Miss Lucia Thompson, Mississippi, and Mrs. Gay Quoidbach, who flew here from Washington. Other presidents, who sat with their delegations, were those from Oregon, Wyoming Louisiana, Nebraska and Oklahoma. The Oklahoma group was designated by green feathers, worn in white headbands, and the visitors from Kansas wores unflower badges.

State presidents and other club officers left immediately for Atlantic City, to be there for sessions today, preliminary to the biennial convention which opens with the reception tomorrow night. Others remained in Washington to visit the White House this morning. Hours of sightseeing in the Capital's heat yesterday had failed to dull the enthusiasm of the guests at last night's dinner.

Community singing, led by Miss Helen Middleton, had a hearty response from the gathering. A feature of the evening was a group of solos by Miss Virginia Sellers, accompanied by Miss Willa Semple. There also was music by an orchestra.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

MRS. LLOYD W. BIDDLE, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, last night represented Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, president of the general federation, at the All-States banquet of the B. & P. W. Club. Mrs. Lawson had been invited to be among the guests of honor but was unable to be present, as she is in the West.

The D. C. Federation is now having a breathing spell between busy seasons, but Mrs. Biddle and other officers are working on projects for the winter. The federation, always interested in working conditions of women, will devote particular attention to such problems next year, Mrs. Biddle says.

One thing in which she is especially concerned is the matter of the clerks in stores having places where they may sit down when not waiting on customers.

"It is obvious," Mrs. Biddle pointed out, "that the girl who has had a chance to sit down and rest for a few minutes will be a more gracious and obliging saleswoman than one who has been standing all day and is fatigued as a result."

At various times the women of the federation have made informal surveys of the stores to determine the conditions under which the girls work, and they are continuing their interest.

DO YOU REMEMBER the little slips which used to come in your packages a year or so ago: "The Federation of Women's Clubs of the District of Columbia has petitioned the merchants of Washington to accept goods for credit refund or exchange only within six days of date of purchase, in order to help keep expense—and prices—down?"

It was about five years ago, when Mrs. Biddle was vice president and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president, of the federation, that it inaugurated a movement to halt the practice of taking a purchase home, keeping it indefinitely and then deciding to return or exchange it. At first the little slips were tucked into every package that left the stores. Gradually people became educated in compliance with the regulation, and there was no need for them. Now a few of the stores are using them again, so perhaps the public has forgotten.

INDE. ENDENT COUNCIL, No. 2, Daughters of America, is planning a party the middle of August for one of its officers, Mrs. Frank C. Ripley—not because she is an officer, but because she is a bride. She is the former Mrs. Frances French, of Capitol Heights, Md. Her marriage to Mr. Ripley took place July 4, in Atlantic City, with her son, Mr. Ellsworth French, acting as best man and her daughter, Miss Catherine French, as maid of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ripley are now in Niagara Falls on their wedding trip, and expect to return about August 1 to their new home on Crystal Spring avenue, in Capitol Heights.

Sunshine Club Members Are Picnic Guests

Mrs. Henry L. Breuninger Entertains at Her Summer Home.

Mrs. Henry L. Breuninger yesterday entertained members of the Sunshine and Community Society at a picnic at her Herring Bay summer home.

Members and their friends left at 9:30 in the morning for the 28-mile trip to the bay. There they spent the day swimming, taking short trips in the Breuningers' motorboats, or playing cards on the grounds, where tables were placed in the shade of spreading trees.

Mrs. Breuninger served luncheon on the lawn. It included deviled crabs, fresh-caught in Herring Bay not far from the Breuningers' home; Virginia ham, potato salad, deviled eggs, lettuce and tomatoes, iced tea and coffee, and lime ice and cake.

There was a breeze from the water and guests almost forgot the heat of the day as they enjoyed the picnic in the cool shade. Several of the children of club members were present and spent most of their time playing in and about the bay.

Mrs. Breuninger has entertained the society on several occasions at her home on Foxhall road, but yesterday was the first time she had given a party at her summer home. She is a comparatively new member of the organization but a most active one, and is at present serving as vice chairman of its ways and means committee.

The affair will be the last gathering of members until autumn. The opening meeting of the new season will be held the first Monday in October.

Members of the society present yesterday included: Mrs. Harry Adams, who had with her in her car Mrs. Carrie Brundage, Miss Cornelia Barnes, and her daughter, Miss Virginia Adams; Mrs. Marie Deal, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Anna Schana, Mrs. Schana's neice and small granddaughter; Mrs. J. Noble Hoover with Mrs. W. H. Wahly, Mrs. Lewis E. Ryan, and Mrs. Harry Huntsberry.

In the party with Mrs. Maurice Emerson were Mrs. Worthington Bean, Mrs. Elizabeth Keery, and Mrs. E. B. Johns; Mrs. Harry Reed took with her Mrs. M. H. Uelsman, Mrs. Bessie Kennedy, Mrs. Charles Eisinger, and Mrs. William Reed.

Mrs. Stuart Boyer also took a party of guests, as did Mrs. Marie L. Jameson. Mrs. John Mulford had with her Mrs. Anson Rogers Tracey. Mrs. Arga Morgan had in her party Mrs. Leon Standish, Mrs. Robert Joncher, Mrs. Harvey Haun and her young son; Mrs. T. R. Powers had in her party Mrs. Frederick Yates, Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. E. S. Henry and Mrs. Brakey, Mrs. Helen Hunter and Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt, who drove out together. Mrs. Charles H. Bair, president of the club, had with her Mrs. Eugene Thompson, Mrs. John B. Morrey, Mrs. Edwin Detwiler and Mrs. George U. Rose.

Mrs. McGoodwin Gives Party for Mrs. Brett

Table at Hay-Adams Luncheon Suggests Coolness as Capital Swelters; Honoree on Way to Peru With Family.

While Washington sweltered beneath yesterday's mid-summer sun, 24 guests of Mrs. Preston McGoodwin, wife of the former United States Minister to Venezuela, sat around a crystal-decorated table in an air-conditioned suite at the Hay-Adams House and enjoyed one of the most delightful luncheons of the season.

Even the centerpiece—crystal balls, fruit and leaves, piled on a mirror—suggested coolness; and for three hours guests forgot that small bouquets of waxy rubrum lilies perkily arranged in small crystal globes at each plate would wilt as soon as they were taken outside in the sun.

Mrs. Homer Brett, wife of the American Consul General at Lima, Peru, was guest of honor. With her family on her way to Peru from Rotterdam, Holland, where her husband was formerly consul, Mrs. Brett recently arrived in Washington, and is being widely entertained.

Miss Julia Brett Also Among the Guests

At the luncheon yesterday, the honoree wore a trim frock of black chiffon with a black straw hat. Her daughter, Miss Julia Brett, who was also there, wore black chiffon with a white belt and a small white hat.

Mrs. Carlos Brenes Jarquin, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua, who was formerly president of Nicaragua, wore a flowered print with a green background and a green hat.

The hostess, attired in navy blue and white georgette, set off with a soft collar edged in white lace, and a white medium-brimmed hat, received her guests.

From Latin-American embassies and legations and from official and residential circles they came to meet Mrs. Brett, to see Mrs. McGoodwin and to enjoy a luncheon that was characterized by informality and gayety.

Mexican Singers 'A Topic of Talk

Talk for three hours turned on many subjects, but none that created more general interest than the discussion of the Mexican singers who appeared unexpectedly at the Pan-American concert Thursday evening and then went on to the Mexican Embassy to entertain afterward.

Those who had been fortunate enough to be invited to the embassy described the event in glowing terms to the others, and told how the three "rancheros"—Mexican cowboys, in effect—gave a complete concert for the Mexican Ambassador's guests. There were also colorful descriptions of a dance given in costume by Senorita Erma Castillo Najera and Senorita Lupe Davila.

The honor guest's experiences in various countries where her husband has held consular posts also came up for discussion, and perhaps few women have more fascinating stories to tell than she. Her husband has been in consular service in a number of countries, including Italy, Venezuela, Chile and Brazil.

Among other guests at yesterday's party were Mrs. Josh Lee, wife of the Senator from Oklahoma, which, incidentally, is Mrs. McGoodwin's native State; Senora Carlos Ramores, Senorita Maria Tecero, Senora Garsia Goday, Senora de Carceras, Senorita Hercilia Urrutia, Mrs. Lyle Boren, Mrs. Elburn Cartwright and Mrs. Tully Nettleton.

Torrid Temperatures Driving Many Diplomats Out of Capital

Chilean Envoy, Senor Manuel Trucco, Leaves for Bluemont With Three Daughters; Belgian Ambassador Leases House.

The torrid temperatures of the past week have been enough to send packing many of the diplomats who are still left in Washington. Those who have left or will leave shortly are mostly the envoys themselves, as the underlings—secretaries and attaches—usually have to spend most of the summer sweltering here, so that "the boss" may get away.

Bag and baggage, the Chilean Ambassador, Senor Manuel Trucco, and his three daughters have gone to the home they have leased in Bluemont. Although the Ambassador signed the lease some time ago, business has so far kept him in the Capital, and the Misses Trucco have loyally stuck by him. They were accompanied to Bluemont by Miss Olga Patterson, who has been visiting them since her father, former Cuban Ambassador, left last spring to become envoy to Mexico.

Belgian Ambassador Takes Summer "Cottage"

The Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten Ponthoz have finally found a house in Southampton which suits them, and have leased Keewaydin, one of the many attractive "cottages"—a slight understatement—at the Long Island resort. They spent last summer at the Tennis Club there, loved Southampton, and the Southamptonites liked them. Count van der Straten Ponthoz will join the countess for the week-end.

Even Senora de los Rios, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, who has traveled almost nowhere since arriving last winter, has finally succumbed to the Washington climate. With her daughter, Miss Laura, she has taken a house at Gibson Island, and will depart next week. The Ambassador, who has been at a diplomatic conference in Valencia, has left war-torn Spain and will sail shortly for this country.

Before the departure of Senora de los Rios, she will be hostess at a house party for Spanish consuls from all over the United States. They descended on Washington yesterday from New York, Galveston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Tampa and Detroit, and will be here over the week-end. The Ambassador's wife will put them up at the embassy.

Other Diplomats Off On Their Vacations

The German and British Ambassadors will sail for their respective homelands some time next month. Herr Dieckhoff, Hitler's representative, will return in September bringing back with him Frau Dieckhoff, who left earlier in the summer. The Bulgarian Minister, Dmitri Naoumoff, is also planning a trip somewhere next month, but hasn't yet decided where to go. In the short time he has been here, Naoumoff has already seen a great deal of the United States, and returned earlier in the summer from a prolonged stay in the Middle West.

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Saito, who have been at Hot Springs, Va., are at present in Michigan, attending a cherry festival held on the Lake. They will return Tuesday and expect to go later to Hot Springs again, although the international situation makes things a bit complicated at present.

The Polish envoy, Count Potocki, must often think enviously of his extensive estate in Poland, one of the largest and most historic in that country. His mother, Countess Betka, was a Princess Radziwill before her marriage, and used to entertain most of the Almanach de Gotha there, especially during the hunting season. Potocki will not have to wait much longer to return however, as he has decided to rejoin his wife late this month.

The Secretary of the Colombian legation, Senor Vargas Narino, left yesterday with his family for Ocean City, N. J., where they have taken a house for a month.

Engineer Colonel Norbert Champsaur, Air Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Champsaur left last night to spend a quiet week-end at Bethany Beach.

Next Tuesday they will go to New York and from there sail for France on July 24, where they will spend a three months' vacation.

'37 'Landed Gentry' Is on the Presses

Americans Listed for First Time in Latest Burke's.

The new Burke's Landed Gentry, England's social Who's Who, is now being published and for the first time in its long and aristocratic history it is to carry the names of certain Americans listed in our own social register. This particular edition of Burke's is to be known as the gala coronation edition.

Research has brought to light the fact that several American families are the lineal descendants of "landed gentry" in England, and hence they will appear, pedigree and all, in the exclusive volume.

Though no one knows yet just who the Americans in Burke's will be, there has been much surmise about their identity ever since the announcement was made. They will not be placed in a special section, but sprinkled through the list along with the Britons.

This innovation takes on the color of an international beau geste, since it has been indicated our social register plans to give space to the former Wallis Warfield and her bridegroom, the Duke of Windsor.

Hint Offered For Keeping Youth Busy

Both Girls and Boys Enjoy Cooking Own Meals in Vacation.

Simple Recipes Train Them in the Art of Homemaking.

By Rebekah Blake.

HOW TO KEEP the children occupied and entertained during the long summer days? Every mother faces that problem in the vacation period.

One of the best ways of keeping girls—and even boys—occupied is to teach them to cook. All children enjoy entertaining and an effective way of promoting their interest in cooking is to let them prepare the refreshments when they entertain.

When the children start to cook, they don't need to use the difficult recipes so cherished by experienced cooks. Simple recipes, especially designed for children, have been originated by Helen Robertson and gathered together in "The Merry Mixer Cook Book," which has been recently published. This book will be of great value to beginners and will also be of interest to the experienced homemaker, for not only are directions given for what must be done in cooking, but why.

For a young girl's first luncheon a very simple menu should be planned. A meal that may be prepared entirely by the child, without having to consult her mother too much, will give the most satisfaction.

Here is a simple luncheon menu.
Pineapple juice
Creamed eggs and peas on toast
Cheese sandwiches on whole wheat bread
Raisin bread and butter sandwiches
Fruit jelly with cherries
Chocolate cup cakes

Fruit Jelly with Cherries.

1 package lemon gelatin
2 cups boiling water
½ pound sweet cherries

Empty gelatin into a bowl. Pour boiling water over gelatin, stir until dissolved. Let stand until cold. Pour gelatin into 4 custard cups, put them in the refrigerator to chill until set. Wash the cherries, and drain. Unmold the gelatin, garnish with cherries.

Your children may not be old enough to mix and roll out cookie dough, but they will have fun cutting cookies and icing them. These animal cookies will be fun for a circus party.

Animal Cookies.

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
3 tablespoons grated orange rind
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups flour
¾ teaspoon salt
4½ teaspoons baking powder
1-3 cup milk

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Add the egg, orange rind and vanilla and beat until fluffy. Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder, and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Chill. Roll out to about ¼-inch thickness, working with a small amount at a time and keeping the remainder chilled. Cut with animal cutters. Place on a buttered cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven for 15 to 20 minutes. This recipe makes 50 to 60 cookies. Top with chocolate frosting. Use small pieces of almonds for the eyes.

Nut breads are an important part of summer cookery. And when you make this simple bread, you feel you have really done something. They are used for sandwiches for all occasions; entertaining at home in the afternoon or evening, for the summer picnic or for a special treat for the noon-day meal.

The method of mixing nut bread is the same as for muffins. The dry ingredients are combined, eggs and liquids are mixed, then the two are combined with a little stirring. Here is a recipe for this bread as given by Miss Robertson in "The Merry Mixer."

Nut and Raisin Bread.

1-3 cup nut meats
1-3 cup raisins
¾ cup white flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
1½ cups graham flour
1 egg
1¼ cups milk
3 tablespoons molasses
1 tablespoon melted butter

First prepare the nut meats and raisins. If you are using shelled nut meats, look them over carefully, for they are apt to become infested with small worms and flies in summer. Scald the nuts, putting them into a collander and pouring boiling water over them. Drain well.

Wash raisins in warm water. If large, chop coarsely. All nut meats may be used if preferred, instead of raisins and nut meats.

Grease a loaf pan well, using lard or a similar fat. A moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, is needed.

Sift white flour. All-purpose flour should be used. Measure it and return to sifter. Add baking powder, soda, salt and sugar to flour as each is measured. Sift onto a plate or square of paper. Measure graham flour. Mix it lightly with white flour. Add raisins and nut meats to flour.

Break egg into the mixing bowl. Beat it until it is thick and lemon-colored. Add milk, beating it in. Add molasses. Beat in and add melted butter. Add dry ingredients, raisins and nut meats all at once. Stir until well mixed but no longer. Turn into greased pan and bake in a moderate oven from 50 minutes to one hour. The bread should be a nice brown, and the sides shrink from the sides of the pan when it is done. When done, remove from oven, turn from pan onto a cake rack to cool. Let cool before cutting.

Let the Children Cook in Summer

Your children can learn to be useful this summer if you let them learn to cook. They will especially enjoy preparing the refreshments for their own parties, and will soon learn to entertain without any aid from mother. A cold drink and cookies are simple refreshments that even a young child will soon be able to prepare alone if given the opportunity.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Recovered From Infatuation, Man Asks How to Achieve Friendly Status With Girl Who Woos Him.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a Westerner from a small town, working for the Government here. At home and during school I was no "wow" with the girls, but I had no trouble getting dates, and went around with a pleasant crowd, but I never paired off permanently with one girl. Maybe that explains why I have to bring my problem to you today; maybe I don't understand the species; maybe I've got a lot to learn. Well, to begin: At an inter-office party some months ago I fell into conversation with an attractive young blonde, whose wide, blue eyes got the best of me.

I escorted her home that evening and our friendship was off to a flying start. I took her to church, to the movies, etc., and one evening when the moon was shining brightly, I kissed her and she responded with feeling. The friendship deepened, and both of us were happy as larks. Here let me interrupt to give, briefly, my impression of the girl's character:

* * * *

Economical—pooh-poohs suggestions of expensive entertainment and suggests walks, evenings at home, etc.; moral without being prudish—doesn't smoke and detests liquor and those who indulge; loyal—has shown a devotion and consideration for me that I never before encountered in a girl; poor conversationalist—topics limited to the discussion of the personalities and activities of her relatives and friends; not very social—she dislikes a number of persons violently and, I gather, finds it hard to get along with most people.

* * * *

Before actual lovemaking entered the picture, I thought myself very much in love and looked forward eagerly to seeing her. Now, however, I know that what I thought was love was mere physical infatuation. I have tried desperately to turn the tide of our relationship back to companionship, as I can't and won't make love to a girl I don't love. But she seems to want more than companionable friendship.

* * * *

For instance, the other evening we came in from a walk and I settled down with a magazine while she went upstairs to powder her nose. When she returned, she snapped off the light. I protested—in no joking mood. She laughed, plopped herself in my lap and put her arms around my neck. I stood up, set her on her feet, and turned on the lights. Both of us were embarrassed, and the net result was that I left shortly afterward.

* * * *

I want to know where I stand, what to say and do, before I see her again. What I am looking for, Miss Haworth—until I meet the girl I can sincerely love and marry—is a companion with whom I can talk as an equal; a good sport who takes an interest in world affairs, in the problems confronting youth today, who can discuss anything from ladies' fashions to dictatorship versus democracy.

* * * *

Should I tell the girl I don't love her? I believe (though you may label this conceit) that she has come to care a great deal for me, and that such a statement might upset her considerably. PERPLEXED.

* * * *

The Thing to Do.

DEAR PERPLEXED. Your attitude toward this girl appears to be fair-minded and considerate—honorable, in a word. Your approach to life and love is commendably fastidious and impersonal. Considering the circumstances, and your intentions toward the girl (or, rather, your lack of serious intention) it seems to me that you have handled the situation just about as decently as it could be handled. I can't see that you could have done much differently than you did on the evening in question. An older man, or one more experienced with women, might perhaps have been a little less abrupt with the girl, but if he felt as you did in the matter he would have been just as final in his refusal to take advantage of her yielding approach.

* * * *

Assuming that the girl does care "a great deal" for you (and I am perfectly willing to suppose you know what you are talking about in saying so), the very fact that you don't feel a like response makes your refusal to take advantage of her devotion the more commendable. Sometimes it is necessary to be cruel in order to be kind, and this, I believe, is just such an instance. I doubt any good purpose would be served in prolonging the association, even to the extent of paying her one more visit in order to explain why you acted as you did. Such explanations, generously intended, often result in a compromise which brings a new set of emotional problems into existence.

* * * *

If you were to attempt to tell the girl you don't love her, but do admire her and long for mental and impersonal social companionship, she might plead for another chance to prove she is capable of holding up her end of such a relationship. You, in very compassion, and possibly in hope, might agree to another trial. But such experiments are dangerous. After a time, you might find yourself fettered to her by a bond compounded of compassion and habit on your part, and dogged possessiveness on her part. "He who hesitates is (often) lost," you know.

* * * *

Young men and young women should realize the vital importance of appraising very early in acquaintanceship another person's fitness or suitability to be an intimate companion. The person who doesn't measure up should be rejected immediately. This may sound calculating and hard, but it is only self protective common sense. One's first social duty is to one's self, and only when that duty has been discharged is one adequate to making a larger constructive social contribution. Anyone with a discerning eye, who has lived very long, has observed cases where unsuitable matches have eventuated — only to leave one partner psychically starved through life—as a result of compromising with intuitive first judgments. The only direction to take to avoid grief, and possibly disaster, in a case of this kind, is away from the other person. Every step taken toward the unsuitable person is a further entrance into an ever-deepening quicksand. M. H.

In the hot weather, of all times, you want to be SURE that what you bake will turn out successfully.

Bob Burns Says:

I had almost forgotten how wonderful these public address systems are until my Grandpaw Pelican Snelson visited me out here. He's the one that's the judge back home. I took him over to the movie lot and they was makin' a picture where they was usin' several thousand extras and there was such a din and hub-hub and he couldn't understand how the director could be heard over the noises, but when the director boomed out through the loud speakers, grandpaw sure was impressed.

He went back home and on his first day in court it seemed like the visitors were nosier than usual. Finally grandpaw jumped up and rapped with his gavel and he says, "That settles it! The court is adjourned until we get one of them public address systems in here!" He says, "I've had to convict the last five men without hearin' a word of testimony!"

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Rep. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

That sharp-eyed man you may have seen in the Weather Man's Bureau bending over a work bench like a watch repairer is R. E. L. Blumenauer. He figures in Uncle Sam's plan for a mass flight of tiny automatic recording devices into the far upper airs as an effort for new knowledge of weather conditions that might make for better long distance forecasting. He is at work now, adjusting the little recorders, 50 of which will be sent aloft attached to gas balloons at the Omaha station of the Weather Bureau. Blumenauer is scientific aide at the Bureau.

Well!!

We quote, herewith, an excerpt from the recent informal remarks by David E. Lilienthal, director at Chickamauga Dam. The poet said it is well to see ourselves as other see us—now, see yourself as one of your own group sees you:

"The American people, generally, have a rather low estimate of Government employees. We might as well be frank and face the fact. Partly, this low estimate has been put into people's minds by those who have an axe to grind, whose who would benefit by bringing public service into disrepute. But the picture is not wholly unjustified. We all know that there are a lot of people in public service who are simply job-holders, a lot of people who are clock watchers, a lot of them who are incompetent, who depend upon political pressure to get a job and keep it just as there are in private business.

"We know that in some cities the conditions in public service are pretty bad. No one would deny these facts. But it is certainly far from an accurate picture. Some of the finest achievements in this country have been those of public service" . . . "Careful observers know about these great achievements, but the average man and woman usually hears little of this great work. They hear mostly the scoffers, and what they see in their towns and in their cities and State capitals is likely to be the less favorable side of public service." Meaning, perhaps, Chicago, as Mr. Pegler pointed out recently.

F. A. Bickert, deputy assistant general manager of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, is a stamp collector of the first-class. He specializes in German stamps and his collections have won many awards both here and abroad. He has just retired as president of the Collectors' Club, Branch 5, Society of Philatelic Americans.

Again.

The National Labor Relations Board is preparing its lap for that long-winded controversy between the Baltimore Social Security Board Union and the S. S. B. officials. A noisy row, it started when the union claimed that four of its key men were ousted in an alleged attempt to break up the union. In ensuing developments, two of the discharged union members were reinstated, but four are still out. Frank Bane, S. S. B. executive director, has agreed to unload the issue on the N. L. R. B.

The union is affiliated with the U. F. W. A., the C. I. O. unit, which will provide legal counsel.

Interior Department employes, under the auspices of Interior Branch, National Federation of Federal Employes, will hold a midsummer get-together carnival at Potomac Boat Club Monday, 9 till 12 p. m.

This is the first general social function held since the Interior Department has been housed in the new building. Buffet supper, dancing and other entertainment will be provided. All Interior employes are invited, in addition to regular members of the union's local.

The committee is: Joseph I. Menehan, Bureau of Reclamation, general chairman; Mrs. Rebekah Pedigo, Division of Island and Insular Affairs, tickets; C. M. Reising; secretary's office, supper; Stephan Tripp; national parks, refreshments; H. E. Horowitz, Geological Survey, entertainment, and Dave Thomas, Indian Affairs, dance committee.

Otto and his swing band, all Government employes will furnish music. Pat Murphy, novelty entertainer, will also function.

Speakers.

Headliners, to date, for the speakers' platform of the A. F. G. E. convention in Philadelphia September 13-17 are President Harry B. Mitchell and Mrs. Lucille B. McMillan, of the Civil Service Commission, and Chairman Robert Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee. These three tentatively have accepted invitations. It will be recalled that Ramspeck's remarks at the Detroit convention last year attracted Nation-wide notice.

Tempers of Legislators Boil in Air-Conditioned Capitol Chambers While Men Behind Scenes Keep Cool at Mere 180 Degrees

George Beall enters the Capitol steam tunnel, where the temperature is doing unbelievable acrobatics, standing at 180. There is a hot time on Capitol Hill for the workmen

Yes, it must be difficult to be a statesman these sweltering July days, legislating and perspiring for a lowly $10,000 a year, and adjournment still a distant mirage.

Of course there's air-cooling now in the House and Senate chambers. Nicely chilled and laundered air is pumped through streams of water into the forums of state, keeping the temperature down, if not tempers.

Naturally all this heat-destroying equipment requires labor on the part of certain unknown parties behind the scenes. The statesmen who think Washington is hot should trot down to the Capitol Heating Plant which supplies the electricity for their cooling system.

The first place investigated was presided over by R. H. Barnard, chief operator of the giant switchboards. Barnard has been around there for 31 years, working in a temperature of 110 degrees summer and winter.

"But this isn't hot," remarked Charles Bleam, clerk, who was volunteering as guide. "You ought to try the boiler room."

In the boiler room, perspiration cascading over his brow, the reporter came upon the firemen who tend boilers in the great central plant which produces hot water, steam, and electricity for the lawmakers.

Joe oung, who says he has to change his jacket four times a day, and who used to fire in the Navy, grabbed a slice-bar and opened one of the doors of the 16 furnaces. A gust of heat burst forth.

"How hot is it here?" the reporter shouted over the din of churning turbines and roaring machinery.

"Bout 140," Joe yelled back. "It's pretty hot, isn't it?"

"It licks you after a while," Joe shouted. "You get a young fellow of 19 or 20 in here and he's all right until he gets to be 26 or so, then he begins to wilt. I'm over 30 myself, but I'm not half the guy I used to be."

Nodding weakly, the journalistic excursion retreated for an open door. The air outside, at 95, felt as chilly as a breeze off Pikes Peak by comparison.

"But that wasn't hot," commented the guide. "I want you to go into the steam-line tunnels which carry the power to the Capitol. We have a gang working there.

The gang was a few yards from the Supreme Court, the Capitol and the Library of Congress. This unquestionably is the hottest spot in town. The temperature ranges up to 180 degrees.

Albert Knott, a heavy-set Irishman, led a delegation of four under C street to work for ten minutes on the steam pipes. That's as long as they can stand it at a trip. They must come to the surface and rest a quarter or half hour after each descent.

"Heat never bothers me at night," laughed square-jawed William Sullivan, one of the workmen. "The heat wave outside is a drop of 90 degrees from inside. What makes me sore is all these Federal workers who get the afternoon off when it gets 90 in their offices. Say, they don't know what heat is!"

Charley Shorter, one of the underground gang, a colored man, is so affected by the heat he cries continuously, according to his boss, Knott. "He cries like a baby all the time he's down there, but he keeps on working. One of the best men we have."

This unbelievable heat in which men work so near the House chambers was so powerful it gave the photographer a splitting headache in less than a minute. "It gets my heart to racing, and I can feel my heart bumping clear up around my ears," commented Bruce Sanders, a workman. "It's so hot we can't work in winter. If we did, the minute we came to the surface our clothes would freeze solid on us and we'd all die of pneumonia. Even a cool day knocks us."

So you think you're hot? And the statesmen, too. Washington is really an icebox. Brrrr!

11 Are Accused Of Jailbreak At Cheltenham

Police Summoned Again to Prevent Further Disorders.

Eleven inmates of the House of Reformation at Cheltenham, Md., including Joseph (Butch) Brooks, 18, were arrested last night and held for a special session of the Upper Marlboro court tentatively set for today.

Brooks is believed to have been the leader of the inmates who Thursday fled into surrounding woods and attempted to escape.

The inmates were charged with escaping from a reformatory and aiding in the escape of other inmates.

Police were speeded again last night to the reformatory on a riot call and the arrests followed.

Fearful of a repetition of Thursday night's outbreak in which more than 100 inmates fled into the surrounding woods after hurling stones through windows of the building, Supt. Benjamin Sunderlin summoned all available police.

Officers from the two county substations at Upper Marlboro and Hyattsville, the State headquarters at Waldorf and town police at Mount Rainier answered the call but the disturbance was over before most of them arrived.

Sunderlin said the trouble last night was instigated by the same crowd which led the previous night's sortie.

Enoch Harlan, of Baltimore, president of the House of Reformation board, was at Cheltenham yesterday to confer with other officials in regard to the outbreak.

Meanwhile, farmers from the neighboring countryside who aided in capturing the escaped inmates Thursday night were dickering for rewards. They said that in the past they have been paid $5 for each captured fugitive.

Supt. Sunderlin declined to say what reward would be given. He declared, however, that everyone would be taken care of.

The uprising Thursday night, according to Sunderlin, was led by Brooks, who was to have been placed in solitary confinement as punishment for some misdemeanor.

When the inmates dashed for the woods, a siren was blown summoning residents of the community.

All the fugitives were either captured or returned voluntarily.

Awnings for Dogs In Pound Assured By The Post Fund

The Washington Post fund to buy awnings for dogs at the District Pound now contains $103.15—or enough to close the campaign.

Four large awnings are assured and Poundmaster Frank Marks has said this number will be sufficient to protect the dogs from the intense heat, which Sunday took the lives of two.

Contributors who sent money and checks to The Post were Marion K. Jones, for the budget division of the Department of Agriculture, $8.50; R. M. Baumgarten, $1; Mrs. Sumner Welles, $30; Mrs. Paul S. Bond, $1; Ada H. Coe, $2; Lillian Henning, $10; Mrs. Craig Yeande, $5; Mary R. Brown, $2; M. W. Gansberg, $1; Miss Hazel Reynolds and Marie Campbell, for the Air Corps of the War Department, $18.65; Mrs. Julia L. Hyde, $5; L. G., $5, and four who did not disclose their names.

Third Division Brings Wives, Dances Swing

Veterans Find Stories as Good as Ever at 18th Reunion.

The boys who fought with the A. E. F. at St. Mihiel, the Argonne, and the Marne "trucked to town" last night at the Wardman Park Hotel to the tune of swing music ordered especially for their annual regimental dinner and dance.

"Old soldiers never die; they just fade away," they whistled above the merriment occasionally—just to remind themselves that the Armistice was almost 20 years past and that some of them were dancing with their own daughters.

"Reunions begin at 50," laughed one gray-haired buddy who knew his looks were youthful enough to believe his statement.

During all 18 times the Third Division Society has held reunions, John C. Cattus, from New York City, has been in attendance. But he has never seen such a meeting nor heard better war stories than he is getting right here in Washington.

"Just one thing is wrong," said Soldier Cattus. "I've been holding out against bringing my wife and this year I'm about the only person here without one. I'm supposed to be the convention-going member of my family, and I sort of resent all the women."

He was right. The statistics garnered by W. H. Shoemaker, local boy who was a sergeant with the Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, showed at least 40 per cent of the reunion attendants were women, and that almost 100 children were there. This is the biggest feminine attendance the society has ever had.

Mrs. Hollard L. Robb, of Washington, wife of the chairman of the convention, joined with Mrs. A. A. Wotier, also of Washington, in denying the "legend that soldiers make their families listen."

"I wish my husband would talk more about what he did in France," Mrs. Robb said.

All the same, Soldier Cattus will take his wife to the 1938 meeting. "I believe the men started bringing them just because they provided a better audience," he said.

This morning the Third Division "boys" will hold their annual business meeting, and at noon they will go to Arlington to place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The convention closes tonight with another banquet.

D. C. News Guild Votes Drive for Referenda

The Washington Newspaper Guild last night adopted, 66 to 30, a motion that its president appoint a committee of seven members to press for a national referendum on various resolutions adopted by the American Newspaper Guild at its St. Louis convention.

This action was taken after Heywood Broun, international president, asked that no referendum be taken on C. I. O. affiliation.

Among the convention resolutions in question were: Affiliation with C. I. O., indorsement of President Roosevelt's Supreme Court program, indorsement of Farmer-Labor political action and indorsement of the Spanish nationalist government.

Garbage Strike Nears as Union Votes Powers

Walkout May Be Called Next Week to Protest Delay in Inquiry.

The threatened strike of garbage collectors in Washington was a step nearer last night as members of the hod-carriers local union, who are employed in the District garbage transfer plant, voted to put entire power of strike determination in the hands of their secretary, James Kimbroe, in a meeting at union headquarters, 638 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Kimbroe said the strike may be called next week unless speedy action is taken on recent charges against W. R. Wood, superintendent of garbage collection. Investigation of charges has been conducted by Stanley DeNeale, assistant corporation counsel; J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, and William A. Xanten, supervisor of city refuse.

Attorneys Charles H. McGrath and Robert W. McCullough, who have represented the union in the investigation, spoke at last night's meeting and advised careful consideration before calling a strike. McGrath told the 75 union members who were present, "I do not believe you will accomplish anything by a strike . . . You have a lot of people with you now. Don't turn them against you." He charged the investigation of Wood had turned out to be "self-investigation by a self-appointed board."

Kimbroe said last night a strike would mean complete stoppage of all garbage, trash and refuse collection.

H. R. Moore Surrenders On Gambling Charge

Hugh R. Moore, 35, walked into police headquarters last night and surrendered on a gaming charge, ending a two-month search by Lieut. Floyd Prescott, who had been carrying two warrants for his arrest. He was booked on a charge of operating gambling tables. He gave his address as the Portland Hotel, Fourteenth street and Vermont avenue northwest.

Bandit Trio Robs Two Stores, Battles Police; 2 Suspects Held

Holdup Men Steal Truck, Typewriters, Liquor; Tie Up Watchman, Threaten Taxi Driver; Fired at by Officers.

With two suspects already under arrest, police last night were searching for the third in a trio of haphazard holdup men who cut a mad swath through Washington early yesterday.

The two suspects were captured after the trio had committed two robberies, tied up a night watchman, threatened to shoot an inquisitive taxi driver and served as the target of police bullets in a running skirmish.

Their loot included such miscellaneous items as the truck, a set of flat silver, three typewriters, three adding machines and 31 cases of assorted liquors, the latter valued at $506.33.

Seize Watchman.

The three began their law-breaking activities at the Langdon Mill & Lumber Co., 2150 Bryant street northeast. There they seized the watchman, Paul Kearney, a bearded colored preacher. After tying him they bungled an attempt to open the safe, loaded the typewriters and adding machines into a company truck and escaped, first helping themselves to Kearney's supply of cheese, beer and cigarettes.

Next they drove to the Globe Liquor Store, at 793 Seventh street southwest, smashed the glass window of the door and walked in. As they were carrying cases of liquor to the truck they were noticed by Archie Lawrence, of 803 E street southwest, a taxi driver. Lawrence pulled up, but was told to keep moving or he would be shot.

From the liquor store, the men hurtled their stolen truck to the Southeast, where they were seen by Patrolmen R. E. Burton and F. W. Sanford, who gave chase in an Eleventh Precinct scout car. The policemen pulled alongside the truck, only to have the driver attempt to sideswipe their car. The officers fired several times, one of their bullets crashing through the truck windshield.

Chase Truck to Line.

After chasing the truck to the Maryland line, the officers returned to their precinct station and learned of the lookout for the robbers, sent out after the night watchman freed himself and notified police. Going back to the hunt, they saw three men walking on Alabama avenue at Angier street southeast. Two of them were captured after a short chase. The third escaped.

The two men captured were being held for investigation at the Eleventh Precinct Station last night. Both are believed to have previous police records and are said to be wanted in connection with other recent crimes.

Two local detectives went to Baltimore last night to conduct a search for the third man.

The stolen truck was recovered on Wheeler road southeast, where it had been abandoned. In it was found a quantity of whisky, but none of the articles taken from the lumber mill.

Several local police were sent last night to North Beach, Md., to return to Washington three men and two women being held there for Washington authorities.

Child, 9, Is Shot By Bullets Tossed Into Yard Blaze

Stanley Cortes, 9, 1240 Thirty-sixth street northwest, was injured in an odd accident yesterday.

He tossed a pair of .22 cartridges into a small bonfire in his backyard.

They exploded and he was shot in the right arm and leg. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition last night was satisfactory.

Peace Parley Is Postponed In D.C. Strike

Walkout Protests Giving Contracts to Nonunion Men, Sultan Says.

"This strike is purely a protest against the law which permits the District to grant contracts to nonunion contractors," Commissioner Dan I. Sultan said yesterday, as he announced a peace parley between building trade workmen and employers has been postponed to Monday.

Under a recent act of Congress, it was stipulated workmen's pay must meet the "prevailing wage scale" on D. C. construction work. But the enactment did not specifically state the labor be union labor. The unions demand 100 per cent union workmen on all jobs.

As the strike entered its third day, with work on five schools stalemated, the Washington Building Trades Council made it known there would be no picketing, and no further walkouts on other Federal buildings are contemplated at present.

Originally scheduled for yesterday, the parley was postponed until Monday morning at 10 o'clock because some of the employers were unable to attend yesterday. Sultan called the conference in hope of ironing out their differences over a peace table.

100 Per Cent Union Labor.

That the strike is aimed at the law, not the employers, became clearer yesterday when two of the contracting firms announced they were hiring 100 per cent union labor. Strikes were called on their jobs in sympathy with walkouts on two other contractors.

The Lacchi Construction Co. and the Harwood Nebel Co. employ all union men, according to John Locher, executive secretary of the Building Trades Council. He stated that the John W. Hunt Co. and the Jeffress Dyer Co. have put on a few nonunion men.

"The possibilities of this thing spreading are great," Col. Sultan said. "Sooner or later the same question will have to be answered on Federal projects elsewhere."

Locher pointed out that it is the custom of some contractors to import cheap labor from the South, and after the job is completed, pay the men off, leaving them stranded.

"Menace to Union."

"These men at once become a menace to the union," he declared. "They're dumped on a city and compete with and endanger the unions. To avert any such thing happening here, we are insisting on all-union workmen who live in this locality for Federal jobs."

The strike, described by Sultan as "unusual and unprecedented," was in his opinion one of the first ever to be called because a union disapproved of a law under which public contracts were granted. "I'm afraid it's going to be a tough nut to crack," he added.

He said he hoped to have the employer group and the workmen's group sit down together Monday morning, with delegates from the Master Builders Association and the Subcontractors Association present, and arbitrate their differences.

Ickes and Gray Plan Abattoir Parley Monday

Officials at the Department of Interior late yesterday announced that a conference headed by Secretary Ickes and Howard A. Gray, PWA director of housing, will probably be held Monday or Tuesday to discuss the proposed erection of the Adolph Gobel Co. abattoir at nearby Benning.

Announcement of the conference followed closely the about-face decision of the company to proceed with construction of the slaughter house after it was learned that the House District Committee had tabled the antinuisance bill, thereby prohibiting consideration of any bill containing similar matter during this session.

Ickes and Gray were not reached for comment last night, Ickes being at his home in Maryland and Gray on his vacation, but it was believed that they would continue the fight on the projected abattoir which would be adjacent to a PWA low-cost housing development.

Meanwhile, Col. Dan I. Sultan, District Engineer Commissioner, stated: "In view of recent events there is absolutely nothing the District government can do now to prevent the erection of the plant. Our only concern now, as I see it, is the close supervision of operations of the plant after they have commenced activities and see that they adhere strictly to health regulations of the District."

Earle Presents Gay Little Bit On Its Screen

'Ever Since Eve' Costars Davies and Montgomery With Able Cast.

"EVER SINCE EVE." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Margaret Lee and Gene Baker, adapted to the screen by Lawrence Riley, Earl Baldwin and Lillie Hayward, costarring Marion Davies and Robert Montgomery, with Frank McHugh, Patsy Kelly, Allen Jenkins, Barton MacLane, Carol Hughes, Arthur Hoyt, Louise Fazenda, Marcia Ralston, Mary Treen and William B. Davidson. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Reviewed at the Earle Theater Friday afternoon by Mary Harris.

In a Marion Davies play one can always be sure of one highly pleasant feature—the star will be surrounded by a flock of the best players in Hollywood. The effect is something like that of a large synthetic emerald surrounded by finely cut little diamonds. It looks like the real thing and it may satisfy a lot of people.

This rampant little comedy, "Ever Since Eve," is thus mighty easy to take and packed with giggles, both mild and hearty, with Allen Jenkins, Patsy Kelly, Frank McHugh and Louise Fazenda supplying large quotas of their particular brand of humor.

Mr. Robert Montgomery just walks through this one, we regret to say. That big and sinister job he had in "Night Must Fall," seems to have made him something a-weary of the trite, playboy roles he has played these many seasons. He's a playboy again in "Ever Since Eve" and he seems mightily fed up.

May Be Her Last.

Marion Davies, America's most authentic Helen of Troy, continues to play Marion Davies with gusto. That classic profile and front face, we regret to say, are showing a trace of matronly jowl. But the neat little figger, the blonde curls, the toothsome smile, the impudent take-it-or-leave-it air, the flat delivery of the one-line actress, are all the same as you've been seeing and hearing for years and years.

An interesting rumor in connection with this picture is that it may be Miss Davies' last. At any rate, Warner Brothers have not included any Davies pictures in their production schedule for next season. La Davies may give up the celluloid, retire to her colossal beach house and become a legend. This may be your last chance to see America's most famous blonde.

The story of "Ever Since Eve" gives Marion a chance to do a double sort of role. As her own blonde self, she captivates Montgomery. Then disguised with a dark wig, glasses and a terrible tweed suit, she becomes his secretary and tries to get him to do some work. The change in appearance being the only change in Marion, the net effect is to make the hero appear something of a Gargantuan moron, with a strange power over women. Shall we say that it all adds up to just another dog-days scenario?

Excellent are the Earle's current shorts. There is a color cartoon, "Sweet Sioux," one of the best of its kind. Also in color is a short drama of the Boer War, featuring little Sybil Jason. This has its absurd moments (for instance, the audience laughed heartily when the beautiful heroine was kidnaped by savages) but the color is well done and it is generally good entertainment. A well-done news reel not only reflects the last week, but warms over some of the most thrilling occurrences of the year.

Clifford and Marian Top Stage.

Top of the stage show are Clifford and Marion, who formerly shone in "White Horse Inn," Marian is something like Eddie Foy and ZaSu Pitts rolled up into one. Clifford is just the humorous foil she needs. The pair are genuinely funny and their jokes are new.

Buster Shaver with midgette Olive and midget George, make up a perfect trio, always liked in Washington. Buster's dance with tiny Olive is one of the standout numbers in the current stage shows.

Tip, Tap and Toe, three brown boys with india rubber legs and rhythm unlimited, danced themselves into what must have been a state of near-exhaustion, but still the audience didn't have enough.

Duval, sauve and smooth magic man, does hankie-pankies with hankies.

Columbia.

After having enjoyed a three-week engagement on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater to virtually capacity business, that foremost of the season's productions to date, "Captains Courageous," yesterday moved a block down F street to the Columbia to continue its triumph.

So much already has been written and said concerning the tremendous appeal of this saga of the Grand Banks and the Gloucester fishing folk that only a few adjectives remain to be availed of in appraising again its manifold virtues.

It is, above all else, perfectly cast, with Spencer Tracy doing probably the best work of his career in the role of Manuel, the Portuguese fisherman; Master Freddie Batholomew acquiring new laurels by his nicely contrasted performance in the part of the spoiled son of millions who fell overboard from an ocean liner and learned about life from the fishermen who rescued him, and Lionel Barrymore contributing one of his most substantial portrayals in the role of captain of the fishing schooner on which the action centers.

Then there are the magnificently thrilling scenes on the open sea, with waves tossing high and rival boats jockeying for their catches and the honor of being the first back to Gloucester. There is no "woman interest" in "Captains Courageous." The cast is almost wholly masculine. But what there is is a quality of honesty, realism and actuality that make the reformation of a small boy by the power of example an engrossing study. Charles Grapewin, Mickey Rooney and others of the cast work diligently and well to this end.

The new bill at the Columbia is completed by the usual short-reel subjects and a new issue of the "Events of the Day." But it is "Captains Courageous" that every lover of the best cinema has to offer owes it to himself to see.

Rainer to Europe.

Luise Rainer is planning a trip to Europe as soon as she finishes "Big City" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. She will visit her mother in Switzerland and friends in Vienna.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Revolution Is Setting of 'Knight Without Armor;' Screen Novelty Is Presented in 'The Girl Said No'

Dietrich and Donat Are in Costellar Roles in Film at Capitol.

"KNIGHT WITHOUT ARMOR." Alexander Korda picturization for London Films and United Artists release of the novel by James Hilton, adapted to the screen by Frances Marion, costarring Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat, with Irene Vanbrugh, Herbert Lomas, Austin Trevor, Basil Gill, John Clements, Lawrence Bascombe, Hay Petrie, Allan Jeaves and Raymond Huntley. Directed by Jacques Feyder. Previewed Tuesday, July 13. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

It is grim and relentless drama that is unfolded in this picturization of the James Hilton novel, which deals primarily with the predicament in which Russia's aristocracy found itself at the outbreak of the Red revolution, but bloody drama that is leavened by a strong and continuous vein of romance.

BELL.

The first glimpses of the Russia of the Czars reveal the luxury of life among the court circles. Then comes Russia's hapless participation in the Great War and the sudden cataclysm that envelops the high born of the nation in the murderous maelstrom that places the common people in command of the government and makes their former rulers victims of the ubiquitous firing-squad.

From all this sudden frenzy, blood-letting, vandalism and pillage, the beautiful and gently born Countess Alexandra manages an escape. Ruled out of the country by the Czarists, but still there as a British secret service agent, instead of newspaper correspondent, is one A. J. Fothergill, a handsome and stalwart young Englishman, who refuses to be frightened by all that is going on. He and the countess meet and "A. J." establishes a personal protectorate over her and together they experience many vicissitudes and face many dangers. By a variety of ruses, the adroit use of a few bottles of brandy and an occasional application of the Fothergill fists, they reach what they think is safety in a railroad station from which they hope to escape to a friendly border by first train.

Lines Are Cut.

But the Reds have surged forward, cut the rail lines, telegraph wires and every other means of communication with the outside world. As the fugitives, by further deceptions and violent encounters, once more think they have escaped, the armed soldiery closes in on them and they take to the forest for hiding. They have a few desperate clashes here and eventually reach a clearing station where a young Commissar, moved by the beauty of the countess aids them on their way, being himself detailed to deliver them to headquarters for further questioning and identification. The young Commissar, Pouskoff, sacrifices his own life to insure their liberty—and the story ends with an American Red Cross train bearing both the countess and the Britisher to the security they so long and so bitterly have sought.

The early sequences of the picture, as has been stated on a previous occasion, seems to this outpost to be a trifle too repetitious for best effect. A little too much stress has been laid, it seems to me also, upon the brutal injustices of the firing squads to make for a happy entertainment.

Well-Acted and Authentic.

Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat do full justice to the costellar roles of the play, Miss Dietrich, for the first time in her career, I believe, submitting herself to the rigors of scenes that are splashed with mud, spattered with hostile bullets and far removed from the drawing-room atmosphere in which she ordinarily is accustomed to pursue her art. She enacts the role of the countess with charm in the early scenes and blood-chilling terror in the later episodes. Donat is first the debonair Englishman and then the hard-fighting champion of beauty in distress and does both well.

The scenes of war-torn Russia are pictured with admirable realism and throughout the harrowing action it must be conceded that a fine measure of authenticity is evident, unpleasant though it may be. The supporting cast is made up entirely of players whose names mean little to American audiences, but whose work contributes generously to the impressiveness of a picture that has been painstakingly prepared and executed. Especial mention should be made of the exceptionally able performances of Basil Gill, as Axelstein, and John Clements in the role of the helpful commissar, who committed suicide by his own pistol in payment for his treachery to the high command.

Skelton Held Over.

Red Skelton again dominates the stage bill at the Capitol this week, reviving his "doughnut dunking" bit, an amusing demonstration of how to go up and down stairs, and a dish-washing trifle that scored least of his three intervals of clowning. Next in favor comes Bert Frohman, himself a former Washington master of ceremonies, who returns to the Capitol to reveal a greatly expanded degree of artistry as a singer of effective song stories. Mr. Frohman came dangerously near stopping the show yesterday afternoon.

The other vaudeville specialties are offered by Alphonse Berg, the male modiste—with that kind of a bow and added affectations—who drapes lovely young mannequins in yards of dress goods without the aid of needle or thread and turns them out in the height of fashion, and the Rae Foster Girls, who appear three times in a variety of picturesque dance routines.

Phil Lampkin's overture in tribute to George Gershwin is a gem, and is rendered additionally effective by an empty bench before a concert grand player-piano that automatically plays the Gershwin piano interludes in "Rhapsody in Blue," the closing number of the medley.

The Fox Movietone News rounds out a bill that is of midwinter substance and proportions.

The Revolution Takes Its Toll

After the Red Revolution in Russia had spent its first fury upon the members of the Czaristic aristocracy, the Countess Alexandra finds herself reduced to the hard role of refugee, seeking safety with distant friends. With Marlene Dietrich in the part and Robert Donat opposite, "Knight Without Armor" is made a drama of deprivation, persecution and pillage. Miss Dietrich and Mr. Donat are pictured above as they appear on the screen at Loew's Capitol.

Flip Story Introduces Savoyard Operas at RKO-Keith's.

"THE GIRL SAID NO." Grand National picturization of a story by Andrew L. Stone, adapted to the screen by Betty Laidlaw and Robert Lively, featuring Robert Armstrong, Irene Hervey, Frank Moulan, William Danforth, Vera Ross and Vivian Hart, with Paula Stone, Ed Brophy, Harry Tyler, Richard Tucker, Gwili Andre, Josef Swickard, Bert Roach, Allan Rogers and Max Davidson. Produced and directed by Andrew L. Stone. Previewed Tuesday midnight, July 13. At RKO-Keith's.

Unique in its combination of a racy Broadway story with some of the most popular melodies from the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, this interesting innovation in motion picture construction strikes a new note in screen entertainment. More notable than that is the fact that "The Girl Said No" brings the Gilbert and Sullivan music and lyrics to the silver sheet for the first time in the history of the cinema, odd as that may seem. The experiment deserves to be as profitable financially as it is refreshing artistically.

The Hathaway Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company has passed its heyday and gone on the Broadway rocks. Its members, always in the hope that something will "turn up," conduct a side-street beanery and sing their beloved songs as they go about their menial tasks. Three smart bookmakers from the Main Stem are occasional diners in the Little Buttercup Cafe. Wending their way back to their normal haunts one night, they espy the frame of photographs in front of a dime-a-dance shakedown establishment and the "master mind" of the three at once surrenders to the pictured charms of a certain taxi-dancer and, against the protests of his pals, enters the "jernt" to spend not more than $10 to thaw out the gal's anticipated chill. By a deft employment of all the chiseler's pet devices, Pearl "takes" the cocksure young man for his entire bankroll.

Plans Quick Revenge.

Determined on a quick and, to him, painless revenge, Jimmie contrives a scheme to put Pearl's name up in lights on Broadway as star of a show. It takes a bit of doing to persuade the young woman that the scheme is workable. No less clever than she, Jimmie presents seemingly irrefutable evidence that he is on the level. It will cost the girl a meager $500, plus lessons in acting, dancing, singing and everything else a stage star is expected to know—the teachers all "kicking back" to Jimmie. The problem is to find a show and a theater. Then a happy thought. A house manager, expert in the distribution of rubber checks, supplies the playhouse and Jimmie, in a flash of inspiration, decides to bring the Hathaways back to Broadway for one night. In the meantime, he is falling genuinely in love with the girl and she with him. It gets pretty complicated for all concerned.

Then comes the big night, when a "first night" crowd of Broadway grifters is assembled by the bookies to sit gratuitously in the orchestra pews and applaud the pereformance of the Hathaways, of which Pearl has become a member, in scenes from "The Mikado," "H. M. S. Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance" and "Patience." Thus are Gilbert and Sullivan brought logically and without a wrench into the celluloids.

Contrary to all expectations, the performance turns out to be a hit, the street's big producer makes it possible to finance a run and boy and girl make up and call off their feud.

The story has been told with many effective comedy touches and a directness that place it rather safely on the hit side. Robert Armstrong and Irene Hervey are perfectly cast as the bookie-in-chief and the taxi dancer and are supported by a long cast of known experts in this sort of Broadway fable. But the novelty of the picture, of course, rests in the shrewdness with which the Savoyard operas have been introduced as an integral and indispensable part of the plot.

Veterans Sing Roles.

These musical intervals are sung by the foremost exponents of Gilbert and Sullivan America can boast—Frank Moulan, William Danforth, Vera Ross, Vivian Hart, Allan Rogers, former master of ceremonies at the Palace, and an excellent ensemble of mixed voices. The effect, instead of being incongruous, is wholly in the spirit of the play contrived by Author-Producer-Director Andrew L. Stone, who deserves great credit for his temerity in attempting something that no one before him has had the vision to undertake. Ed Brophy, Harry Tyler, Richard Tucker, Gwili Andre, Josef Swickard, Bert Roach and numerous other favorably known screen players bolster the film's comedy to a high point of crisp hilarity.

A single-reel subject, "Workshop of Mexico," a Krazy Kat cartoon comedy, "Masque Raid," and a new issue of the Pathe News are the supplementary attractions with a major feature that makes up in novelty and sheer entertainment anything it may lack in magnitude or magnificence of settings.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, July 16.—Idol chatter: Wonder if Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer would fire Robert Taylor if he violated that "no-marriage" clause in his contract. Marlene Dietrich is in one of her remote moods—yet. With the collapse of the Joan Bennett, Gene Markey marriage, Grace Moore and Valentin Parera inherit the title, "Hollywood's Happiest Couple." Collectors note: Carole Lombard is a glutton for humorous limericks. That portable bungalow Joan Crawford gave to Douglas Fairbanks, jr., when love was young, is now being used by Paul Muni.

GRACE MOORE.

Never knew a man who took penny-ante as seriously as Wallace Beery. Kenny Baker's favorite hobbies are photography and fishing. With only one American-made picture to his credit, Fernand Gravet's fan mail is breaking records. Most publicized girls in Hollywood: Eddie Cantor's daughters. Fred MacMurray's mother wanted a baby girl she could name "Rose"—so she nicknamed Fred "Bud." Last word in luxurious nonsense: The special ice-box for orchids in Ginger Rogers's new home.

The only thing funnier than a Disney cartoon is a Disney story conference with his gag-men acting out their jokes. Laugh alikes: George Bancroft and Edward Arnold. Glen Morris Olympic decathalon champ is the ninth screen "Tarzan." Gail Patrick banks her entire salary and her husband pays the bills. Common sight on Beverly boulevard: Eleanor Powell asleep in the back seat of her car; her mother at the wheel. An ancient Hollywood statute makes it illegal to kiss an Indian squaw in public.

There's excitement on the shores of Tolucca Lake, that star-fringed, overgrown pond just over the hills from Hollywood. A few days ago Lakers noticed the rowboat, "Mary B.," being given a new coat of paint while its owner, Mary Brian, supervised the job. The new color scheme—white and cerise—are the colors of the Vanderbilt racing stable.

Last year the "Mary B" sported a very tasty paint job in the colors of the Bing Crosby stable.

Bing, making no allowances for Mary's many dates with Alfred G. Vanderbilt, refused to be consoled. He calls it treason.

Visited Sonja Henie on the set today and I couldn't help but notice how the sycophants who infest every movie troupe jumped to anticipate her wants. If she took out a cigaret, someone instantly held out a match—if she glanced at the water cooler, someone rushed to bring her a drink—if she walked about the set, a "yes-man" followed her with a chair. Such attentiveness would be touching if it wasn't so obviously deferential—and if I hadn't seen Betty Blythe, once a bigger star than Sonja is today, sitting neglected and unnoticed among the extras on the set.

I'm not brave enough to guess Mae Murray's age (much less to put it in print), but after seeing her at the Cocoanut Grove the other night, dancing every number from 9 o'clock in the evening until far into the wee, sma' hours of the morning, I am ready to believe she has found the fountain of youth. I have often heard that age shows first in a person's hands, and I made it a point to notice hers. They are as plump and smooth as they were when she was one of Hollywood's brightest stars. She made some of the younger players present look worn and haggard—and she was still going strong when I gave up and hied myself home to bed.

Heard another Connie Bennett anecdote that is so true to character I feel obliged to pass it along. Seems that when she reported for work at Twentieth Century, under a new contract, she was assigned a personal press agent who had never met her. Being somewhat in awe of the Bennett legend, he persuaded a director who had known her for years to introduce him. Connie turned on her most beguiling smile, acknowledged the introduction and said: "I suppose you've heard what a hell-cat I am?"

The director chuckled: "I've told him not to pay any attention to you—that your bark is worse than your bite." A thoughtful expression flitted across Connie's fair face. "It is," she said, "as long as I only bark!"

Palace

The Marx Brothers are in again, and if their current offering of hilarious insanity, in its second week at the Palace, demands some explanation, it's about horses, a sanitarium, soaped saddles, young love and middle-aged leering. The last by Groucho, of course.

Even the most subtle connoisseur of humor will have difficulty in restraining his guffaws at some of their "gags." If you, by happy chance, are a Harpo addict, you will have a picnic, for he is at his moue-ing best.

All the reliable old gags are dusted off in fine fashion, especially the blonde one. She isn't pursued this time, but she is almost fastened to the wall by paper-hangers Chico and Harpo. Groucho is, of course, reading a book all this time.

Maureen O'Sullivan and Allan Jones are the young-love motif. She owns a sanitarium which is gone to seed with debts. He is a singer; he has a horse; the horse wins money; the sanitarium is saved; therefore the Ivie Anderson's Crinoline Choir can sing "All God's Chillun Got Rhythm." The events receive their momentum from the antics of the three Marxes, who certainly couldn't be classed as slouches in the art of momentum.

The second time you see this film, you might have time to notice some of the set, the Water Carnival in particular. There are also some classy plate-paper magazine camera shots, such as the ones of Harpo's hands while he plays the harp.

Bombay is the colorful subject of a Fitzpatrick Travelogue. Pete Smith has a clever specialty about checks, which he calls "The Grand Bounce." In the newsreels you may catch Freddie Steele at work with the Variety Club looking on.

New York, July 16.

HENRY LUCE: Richard Simon, of Simon & Schuster, is proud of his candid camera prowess, and was elated when your magazine, Life, assigned him to cover the recent around-Manhattan train trip of George Bye's Wednesday Culture Club. All through the trip Simon snapped away at the literary celebrities with his $300 camera. Not until he reached the dark room did he learn that he had loaded his film backward—getting blank results . . . Simon, incidentally, is writing a book for candid camera fans.

WILL HAYS. Ernest Hemingway is leaving for Hollywood, to arrange for the release, via one of the major film companies, of his movie about the war in Spain . . . Tony de Marco: Veloz and Yolanda, the dance team, have been signed for the new Ziegfeld Follies . . . Margaret Mitchell. A number of people claim to have autographed copies of your book, "Gone With the Wind." Isn't it true that nobody—not even your relatives—has your autograph on a book? . . . American Com. for Spanish Relief: Callers who phone your office are being switched to World Peaceway, Inc.

JOCK WHITNEY: Gogo Delys turned down that picture, job offered her by your company, Selznick International—because she refuses to be identified exclusively as a swing singer . . . Jack Kirkland: Anthony Brown is dramatizing Andre Malraux's "Man's Fate," and is using the same pen you had used to dramatize "Tobacco Road." Brown produced and staged the latter show . . . Columbia Broadcasting System: In your playhouse, where Pick and Pat are featured on the Dill tobacco program, huge facsimiles of tobacco cans are placed on each side of the stage. But hanging above each can is the CBS sign "No smoking."

Auer urged Bernie to play a solo, and after a 20-minute tune-up Bernie obliged . . . "Such a tragic accident," was Auer's comment . . . "Why, what happened?" he was asked . . . Trans-Lux Color, tragedy, war threats, world fliers and the Supreme Court reorganization fight crowd before the camera at the Trans-Lux this week, with, of course, the outstanding film accomplishment—the British coronation in full color.

The Old World pageant of crowning a king and queen is a fascinating ritual as seen through the lens of a Technicolor camera. Notables in regal robes, motley street throngs, gold-embossed carriages dating from medieval days, caparisoned horses—a strange, eye-engrossing parade that flashes its symbolism in rites that are old, yet surprisingly new—that is, to American mind and eye.

The Trans-Lux news sheet fairly explodes with big events: The death of Senator Joe Robinson, which brings into the screen focus the friends and foes of the Supreme Court bill; the hunt for Amelia Earhart; the Fascists being howled down in London; two wars, the Spanish rebellion and the clash between China and Japan in the Orient; United States defense units in practice off the Maine coast, and, of chief local interest, the Anatia festival, with babies stealing the show.

Sports run from Sonja Henie leaving her skate prints in the walk in front of Grauman's Hollywood theater, through the Goshen trotting meet, on to the 30-day French bike race, with a Jones Beach finish that features mermaids who can act the roles. A new type of autogyro, the Russian fliers (always of interest), beach suits made from handkerchiefs, and new fall hats. The things that happen in the life of a newsreel cameraman in one week are astounding.

"The Playful Pup" brings back dear old Oswald, but he is overshadowed by a travel short, "Florida Cowboy," that brings into close-up the Everglades industry of herding cattle.

Grows Up.

An actress most of her life, Virginia Grey gets her first big role as the feminine lead in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Black Lightning." She was one of the famous Meglin Kiddies at the age of 9 and played Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Her father is Ray Grey, comedy director.

Out of Hospital.

Cecilia Parker, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer actress, has recuperated sufficiently from her appendectomy, to be able to return to her Beverly Hills home.

Tigers Score Seven Runs on One Hit, Defeat Yankees by 14 to 7

NATS' 9TH-INNING RALLY FAILS, INDIANS WIN, 11-5

The Washington Post Sports

* X — WASHINGTON: SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1937 — 13

Freak Game Saves Series For Detroit

Walker Strikes Out Twice to Equal Record; Two Errors Help.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 16.—In a cross between a circus sideshow and a burlesque farce, the Tigers trounced the New York Yankees, 14 to 7, to save one game out of their three-game series.

Not by the widest stretch of imagination could the game be called big-league baseball, particularly the Tigers' sixth inning, when they scored seven runs on one hit.

In that frame, the only thing that didn't happen was for the roof to fall in. Monte Pearson, Yankee starter; Old Blub Malone and Frank Makosky walked seven batters in that comedy to fall just one short of the major league record. Gerry Walker, the Tigers' clouting outfielder, struck out twice to equal the major league record. Red Rolfe and Frank Crosetti committed errors to complete the blowup.

The Tigers added two more in the seventh, to sew up the game, and then completed their run-production with five unnecessary tallies in the eighth off Johnny Broaca, four of the five runs coming on homers by Rudy York and Elden Auker. Auker had taken over the pitching assignment in the seventh, after "Poof" Poffenberger was removed for a pinch-hitter.

For five innings it looked like the Yankees were going to sweep the series with another lop-sided win. They scored four runs in the second inning and added another in the fifth on Frank Crosetti's homer, as Pearson pitched shut-out ball.

Browns Lose To Boston, 6-4

Three-Run First Period Helps Pave Way for Downfall.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, July 16.—The Boston Red Sox held tight to second place in the American League by taking the odd game of a series of three from the St. Louis Browns today, 6 to 4, while members of the 1922 Browns looked on.

Rain fell as the Sox went to bat in the first inning and took a three-run lead. Colonel Mills walked and scored the first run when Pitcher Jack Knott, of the Browns, threw the ball to centerfield trying to pick him off second for the third out. Fabian Gaffke's single drove in the other two counters.

Cards Win Double Bill From Phils

St. Louis Takes Opener, 10-3, and Second by 18-10 Score.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, July 16.—St. Louis took both ends of a double-header today with the Phillies by scores of 10-3 and 18-10. The last game went ten innings.

Si Johnson was the winner in both contests while Bucky Walters was the loser.

St. Louis won the first game in quick fashion by knocking Walters out of the box in the first inning with five runs and then gave Jorgens the same dose in the fifth to clinch the contest.

The second game was a see-saw battle of base hits with the Cardinals finally knocking Walters out of the box again in the tenth with an eight-run rally that put a finish to the contest.

Wirephoto: Greyhound Breaks Trotting Record

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Mile Record Smashed by Greyhound

Goshen, N. Y., July 16 (AP).—Greyhound, American trotting champion, owned by E. J. Baker, of St. Charles, Ill., smashed the world half-mile track record for trotting one mile today as he made his first start of the season on the semifinal day of Goshen's Grand Circuit race meeting.

The lanky gray horse, which has been matched with the Italian-owned Muscletone, champion of Europe, for a pair of races this fall and winter, trotted the mile over the historic oval in 1:59¾. This bettered his own world record of 2:02, made on the Allentown (Pa.) half-mile oval last fall, and the local track record of 2:02¾, made by Uhlan in 1911. It also surpassed the best mile ever made by a pacer over a half-mile track—2:01.

The trial was postponed yesterday because of rain and not held today until late afternoon because the track still was slow. Nevertheless, Greyhound, driven by Sep Palin and paced by a running horse driven by Will Fleming, covered the first quarter-mile in 29½ seconds, the half in 1, three-quarters in 1:30½, and the last quarter in 29¼ seconds, to finish in 1:59¾.

Billy Direct, owned by P. J. Downey, of Worcester, Mass., and driven by Vic Fleming, scored an easy victory in the Village Farm stake for 3-year-old pacers, which was overshadowed by Greyhound's appearance.

The colt outclassed his field to win in straight heats from Hal Cochato and take the purse of $3,544.

Budge, Grant Nominated For Singles

Face Von Cramm, Henkel in Davis Cup Singles Openers.

By Scotty Reston.

Wimbledon, England, July 16 (AP). Blasting Don Budge, of Oakland, Calif., and Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, jr., the demon little retriever from Atlanta, Ga., today were nominated to face Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Heiner Henkel, of Germany, in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup inter-zone finals tomorrow on Wimbledon's center court.

Ill or lame ever since arriving in England a month ago, and practically reconciled to a reserved seat in the stands, Grant's name was dropped into the hat with that of Budge and drawn out against Von Cramm in the first match tomorrow.

Budge then automatically drew Henkel as his opponent on the same court. They will trade opponents in the other two singles matches on Tuesday and Budge and Mako will play the two smashing German blonds in doubles on Monday.

Budge, Mako Team.

Though it was known that Walter L. Pate, non-playing captain of the American team, mentally was flipping coins between Grant and Frankie Parker for the No. 2 singles position, it was thought generally that he would choose Parker, who played superbly at Wimbledon to beat Henkel in a great five-set match and even had the faultless Budge on the run before losing in the semi-finals.

Pate, obviously distressed at having to make so difficult a decision, said that Grant was completely recovered from the injury he sustained during the all-England championships and was playing better than at any time since his arrival.

"I have debated with myself during this past week and, in my best judgment, Grant is the man," said Pate. "Right now they are so close that any choice would be little more than a guess. All I hope is that I guessed right."

Respect Grant.

Except for patriotic British critics, most experts believe the winner in the interzone final will have an easy time winning in the challenge round against England the following week-end.

Hobo Looks At Films for Steele Flaw

Williams Watches Movies of Former Fights to Catch Faults.

By Bill McCormick

Determined to overlook no chance of his fighter upsetting Middleweight Champion Steele at Griffith Stadium next Tuesday night, Harry Groves, manager-trainer of Hobo Williams, has been carefully studying moving pictures of four of the titleholder's most important bouts.

The pictures were brought here from the Coast by Sidney Lust, who is a member of the Variety Club, promoting the big bout, sponsored by The Washington Post.

Groves and his fighter have had the films unreeled time after time during the morning hours. The pictures were of Steele's third-round knockout of Vince Dundee, his 10-round battle with Gorilla Jones and his 10 and 15-round bouts against Babe Risko, from whom he won the title.

"We learned very little from the Dundee pictures except that Steele is inclined to get careless once he has an opponent hurt," Groves said yesterday. "Dundee was on the floor 13 times in less than three rounds, but Steele got so careless he could easily have been punched out had he been in with a puncher like the Hobo instead of Vince, who never was a puncher.

"Gorilla Jones banged Steele up right good for ten rounds—and he never kissed the canvas while doing it. We found at least one weakness in Freddie's style from the pictures of that fight. We found out he can be hit with a right hand to the body exactly like Williams throws.

"We learned the most from the pictures of the two Risko fights," Groves insists. "Risko and Williams fight very much alike, excepting that Williams is a better puncher. Risko was never really hurt in any of the 25 rounds, although he did go down for no count in the ninth round of the ten-round bout."

Williams boxed three rounds, did two miles of road work and worked on the light bag as his training drew near its close yesterday. He probably will do his last preflight boxing today.

Steele appeared in finer fighting fettle as he went through four fast rounds against the best sparmates he has had to date. For two rounds he boxed with George Abrams, the former amateur who made such an impression at Griffith Farms Thursday, then stepped into the ring with Jimmy Jones, of Baltimore.

Jones gave Steele the best workout he has yet had, forcing the champion to extend himself to keep from being on the receiving end.

Gun Club Honors Mrs. A. W. Walker

Towson, Md., July 16 (AP).—As a tribute to the accomplishments of Mrs. A. W. Walker, of Chevy Chase, in winning the all bore skeet championship for Maryland and the District of Columbia against a large field of men, the Towson Gun Club will hold a testimonial shoot tomorrow.

Mrs. Walker is the first woman to become the all bore champion of any State in skeet history.

In the recent State shoot here, she was not content with capturing the ladies championship but entered and won the all bore event with a score of 95 targets out of a possible 100. She equaled George Radabaugh's winning score in the 1936 shoot, which has been the second best in the local gun club's history.

The only high score ever shot for the championship was a perfect mark made by Charles Gillett in 1935.

Tribe Subdues Foe With 14-Hit Attack

Six Doubles, One Triple Included in Barrage; Wes Ferrell Driven to Cover; Linke Fares Little Better; Nats Fail in Pinches.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, July 16.—The Nats, who haven't been hitting much of anything for a week, succeeded today in hitting a new 1937 low when they lost their sixth straight ball game—an 11-5 affair in which the Cleveland Indians paraded to a clean sweep of the three-game series.

The Indians didn't hit any home runs today, strangely, but they weren't missing by much. They whacked out six two-baggers and a triple among their 14 hits and otherwise contributed to the discomfort of Wes Ferrell and Ed Linke, who tried to pitch for the Washingtons.

Ferrell Hammered.

It wasn't much of a contest after the second inning, by which time the Injuns had a 4-1 lead, and it lost all semblance of a battle midway in the fourth when the Clevelands hammered their old pal, Ferrell, out of the box and upped their margin to 8-1.

The Nats, believe it or not, made 13 hits themselves, today, but Mel Harder, the skinny right-hander, was distributing these with rare good judgment and whenever the Nats were in a position to get a big inning out of the proceedings, Harder simply bore down and the Nats were out.

Wesley Ferrell, an old Cleveland lad, got a cool reception from the fans in the stands, but he was greeted warmly by the Cleveland hitters who started out as if to score one run for each of the 10,000 ladies' day guests.

They fell 9,999 runs short in the first inning, but they made some headway with three runs in the second and had a working start on four runs in the fourth before the fact that Ferrell had nothing on the ball, which had been apparent to the Indians from the start, dawned on Manager Harris.

Tossed to the Lions.

Then Harris mercifully withdrew Ferrel and threw fat Eddie Linke to the lions; beg pardon, the Indians.

The Injuns opened up against Ferrell with a two-bagger off Roy Hughes' bat and came up with their first run when Earl Averill whacked a single to center.

They crammed four hits into that uproarious second inning—when Ferrell was seized with double trouble—four doubles authored by Julius Solters, Bruce Campbell, Bill-

Charles Town Feature Won by Edith Walker

Five-Year-Old Mare Scores Victory in W. W. Johnson Memorial Purse With Palumbo Up; Daily Double Pays a $34.80 Mutuel.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 16.—Edith Walker, never out of the money in her ten starts this year, scored her third victory at this track in the running of the W. W. Johnson Memorial Purse and equalled the track record for the 7-furlong course in the bargain. The 5-year-old mare, a daughter of Judge Hay, went to the front at the break and was not headed while turning in time of 1:25 2-5 to match the mark set here last year by Wise Sister.

Jockey Sammy Palumbo was on the winner and made no mistakes. He took Edith Walker away on top, rated her along when Fredalva challenged and then put her to a strong hand ride that put the decision in the bag. Fredalva managed to hang on for second money, while beaten 2½ lengths, while Jinneal was third, 4 lengths farther in the rear.

Edith Walker's victory was a popular one. She was the second favorite of the afternoon to score and her $4.20 mutuel was satisfying to her many backers.

The race was run under bright skies and over a track that has seldom been faster.

Those among the daily double players who teamed Wise Revue with Monologue collected a $34.60 mutuel.

Little Mistress, a winner here yesterday at $80.60, came back today with another smashing race and paid a $34 mutuel. The stands were full of "I told you so" but few in the crowd played the daughter of Baby Grand. She was in charge of Jockey Leon Garrett and this time was in front all the way. Scout Allow, the favorite, saved the place money from Lady B.

The favorite players got a break in the second race when Wise Revue turned in an easy victory over seven others. L. Machado took the mare to the front early and she opened a long lead to make a runaway of the event. Chorway and By Surprise fought a duel for second money, with the former the victor by a nose. Wise Revue paid her legion of backers a $4.60 mutuel.

Jockey Garrett rode his second winner of the day for Owner S. Ball when he brought Monologue to the wire in advance of a fast-closing Goantell. Topsie H. was third in the field of eight. Monologue went to the front at the first turn and was not threatened until Goantell came with a rush in the final sixteenth. The winner paid a $9.40 mutuel.

The worst start in the history of the track marked the fourth race. Alahad, the winner, Silver Arch and Miss Trycom got the best of the break which found all the outside horses unprepared and some in and some out of the stalls. Alahad and Silver Arch fought it out all the way with the former taking the decision at an $11.60 mutuel.

Pukka Heaven, with Jockey R. Root in the saddle, won her second purse of the meeting in the sixth race, paying a $26.20 mutuel. Rough Player, probably the best, had a rough trip and closed with a rush. Poppyman, the favorite, was third.

Povel won the day's final at a $25.80 mutuel.

Waner Still Out.

New York, July 16 (AP).—Paul Waner, injured in Wednesday's game here, was unable to start in the outfield for the Pittsburgh Pirates in today's game with the Giants.

Tribe Pilot Invades Dressing Room to Battle With Fischer

By a Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, July 16.—The Steve O'Neill-Carl Fischer feud flared violently again today as the Cleveland manager stomped angrily into the hostile Washington dressing room before the game and threatened to punch the Nat's left-handed pitcher.

The pitcher, whom O'Neill had fired from the Cleveland club six weeks ago in a fit of temper, encountered the Indians' manager in the run-way outside the opposite dressing rooms of the two clubs.

Voices were raised and O'Neill was heard to yell: "And next time, we'll tear you apart."

Fischer laughed. "You'd better make it soon," he said "there won't be any next year for you in this league. You'll be out as manager here any day now."

With that, Fischer passed into the Nats' dressing room as the pugnacious - looking O'Neill stopped at the door, his hands on his hips and his teeth gritted.

Finally, pushing past Johnny Mihalic and Trainer Mike Martin, O'Neill strode toward Fischer who was sitting on a rubbing table.

With his face close to Fischer's, the Indians' manager drew back his fist. "I don't want any more cracks out of you, wise guy. Now, stand up and fight."

Whereupon Mihalic inserted himself between the pair and Trainer Martin grabbed O'Neill by the shoulder. "Get out of here, Steve," said Martin. "We don't want any trouble from you."

Unwillingly, O'Neill left the Washington locker room, pausing at the door to shoot another dark look at Fischer, and then joining his Cleveland players who were assembled in the run-way watching the performance.

LITTLE MISTRESS, having most speed from start, opened a gap entering stretch and was kept to strong hand ride to end. SCOUT ALLOW, rushed to contention at once, gained steadily to stretch, but hung thereafter. LADY B. broke slow, went to leaders and showed good effort. WORTH OWNING saved ground entering stretch. CAT'S CRADLE raced wide. BROKEN RHYTHM couldn't keep up. MISS BONES had no excuses.

(6), by Wise Counsellor—Revue. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:50 1-5.

WISE REVUE, rushed to the front on the inside going to first turn, opened a long lead and was not threatened while winning easily. CHORWAY broke well and fought it out gamely for the place. BY SURPRISE came between horses from slow beginning and closed willingly. GLOSS closed ground in late stages. BOULDER DAM tired after going forwardly. ELLEN LANE ran out leaving backstretch.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONOLOGUE, $9.40, $5.00, $3.20; GOANTELL, $4.40, $3.00; TOPSIE H., $2.60.

MONOLOGUE took command after a furlong, was rated along in front and rallied to hold GOANTELL safe in closing stages. GOANTELL, far back in early stages, came with a belated rush through stretch. TOPSIE H. was forwardly placed throughout and rallied only mildly when placed to drive. MAZYNIATA, close to the pace for three furlongs, tired gradually. MISS TOUCAN stopped after setting and pressing pace.

DAILY DOUBLE, WISE REVUE AND MONOLOGUE, PAID $34.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALAHAD, $11.60, $7.80, $6.60; SILVER ARCH, $9.80, $4.80; POLL PARROT, $8.60.

ALAHAD, favored by the start, saved ground throughout, shook off POLL PARROT, but just lasted while ridden out ahead of SILVER ARCH'S closing bid. SILVER ARCH, also favored by the start, gained gradually on the winner in the closing stages. POLL PARROT tired gradually after pressing the early pace. All others except MISS TRYCOM had no chance with the break. The race was not truly run.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:31½. Winner, C. E. Miller's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EDITH WALKER, $4.20, $2.60, $2.60; FREDALVA, $3.20, $3.00; JINNEAL, $3.60.

EDITH WALKER, away alertly, opened a good lead under hustling tactics going to first turn, was rated along when challenged by FREDALVA leaving backstretch, rallied to drive to draw out in stretch. FREDALVA moved up menacingly on swing to stretch and continued gamely, but was no match for winner. JINNEAL closed stoutly from a slow beginning. CHANNING came gamely for the final test. SOUPCON tired after showing early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:04½. Off at 5:06. Winner, F. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PUKKA HEAVEN, $26.20, $8.20, $4.00; ROUGH PLAYER, $3.60, $3.00; POPPYMAN, $3.00.

PUKKA HEAVEN, away in front, was hard ridden throughout and was tiring in closing sixteenth. ROUGH PLAYER, knocked back soon after break, circled horses swinging for stretch and closed with belated rush on outside and probably was best. POPPYMAN chased the pace most of the way, but stopped. LIGHT ACTION moved up menacingly at far turn, but when clear was blocked badly when making move on inside and had to be pulled up sharply.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:39½. Off at 5:40½. Winner, J. Even Yank Reporters Get Confident!

By Shirley Povich.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 16.—Even the correspondents traveling with the New York Yankees are beginning to swagger a bit as the Yanks sweep through the West with their murderers' row belting the innards out of enemy pitching and making shambles out of the American League pennant race.

POVICH.

In the first inning at Detroit the other day, after the extra-base hit brigade of the Yankees had pounded out a home run, three doubles and a single to take a 5-0 lead, a New York baseball writer turned to his telegraph operator and summarized the inning.

"Five runs, four hits, no errors," he dictated.

The operator checked over his own score card. "Beg pardon," he said, "but the Yanks made five hits."

* * * *

"Four hits it was," the reporter answered brusquely. "We don't count singles any more."

Fred Haney, the chunky fellow who used to play third base for the Tigers and is now managing Toledo, was recounting the trials and tribulations of minor league managers.

* * * *

"We signed up an old big leaguer who looked as though he would do us a lot of good, but he had a habit of disappearing and we never could count on him," related Haney. "He vanished for a month one time before we finally found him in a speakeasy.

* * * *

"I tried to get him straightened out, locked him in a room and told him he'd have to sober up. The guy pleaded with me for one more drink to straighten himself out with and I finally let him have it. Then he started to get a bad case of hiccoughs.

* * * *

* * * *

The St. Louis Browns have hit upon an idea for acquiring talent, the wisdom of which is open to serious questioning.

Manager Rogers Hornsby has invited all sandlot players in the vicintiy of St. Louis to report to Sportsman's Park each morning for a tryout. Hornsby has laid down the following specifications for candidates:

* * *

They must be at least 18 years old; they must weigh at least 170 pounds; they must be taller than 5 feet 9 inches, and they must bring their own shoes and gloves to the park.

* * * *

All of which would make it appear that the Browns are attempting to ignore baseball talent rather than acquire it. There are and were plenty of big league stars who would not meet the qualifications Hornsby is insisting upon.

* * * *

For example, if there were another Mel Ott or Jimmy Foxx on the St. Louis lots, they would automatically be barred from the Browns, because Ott was only 16 when he was given a tryout with the Giants and Foxx was but 17 when Connie Mack signed him up. In fact Ott would be barred on two counts—under age and under stature, because he measures only 5 feet 8½ inches.

* * * *

And such capable ball players as Nemo Leibold, Sparky Adams and Rabbit Maranville, or their prototypes, are not being welcomed, apparently by the Browns, despite the fact that they were full-blown stars of the big leagues. None of that group could measure up to the 5 feet 9 inches demanded by Hornsby.

* * * *

And another thing—if there's another Walter Johnson on the lots of St. Louis, the Browns apparently don't want him, either. He'd be barred because, like Johnson in his younger days, he wouldn't have his own glove or shoes, or the wherewithal to buy 'em.

They have a new game in Cleveland. The fans here have stopped trying to guess when Manager Steve O'Neill will be fired by the Cleveland front office. They're satisfied that that's certain to happen, and are now trying to predict O'Neill's successor.

* * * *

"Oh, I guess it'll be some friend of the front office that will take O'Neill's place," ventured a Washington baseball writer.

"You're wrong there," answered a Cleveland writer. "The front office of this club doesn't have any friends."

With two victories over the Nats already dangling from their belt in this three-game series, the Indians took the field today with apparently pretty well defined intentions of sweeping the series. At least it appeared so when, in the second inning, Outfielder Freddie Sington stumbled over something in short rightfield and on investigation discovered a broom lying there.

Favorites Win In Girls' Net Tournament

Mary Gray, Mary Simmonds and Charlotte Mataja Reach Quarterfinals.

Charlotte Mataja of Burroughs, Mary Gray, of Twin Oaks, and Mary Simmonds, of Rosedale, yesterday moved into the quarter-final round, with Hazel Bishopp, of Takoma Park, and Helen Miller, of Chevy Chase, of the girls' singles tennis tournament conducted by the Department of Playgrounds.

Miss Gray blasted her way past Irma Williard, of Takoma Park, 6—1, 6—4, while Miss Simmonds defeated Ida Burns, of Potomac avenue, in straight sets also, 6—0, 6—0. Charlotte, only left-handed player remaining in the tournament, eliminated Erma Deane, of Garfield, 6—1, 6—2.

Two other quarter-finalists will be decided today when Lucille McDowell, of Burroughs, a finalist last year, plays Katherine Stevens, of Hoover, and Dorothy Haislup, of Virginia avenue, meets another Hoover representative, Katherine Keyes.

As the scores of yesterday's matches indicate, none of the winners was particularly pushed though Mary Gray's easy triumph was something of a surprise. Her steady stroking and fine service were too much for Miss Williard, who last year was ranked among the leading playground players.

Miss Gray's stock was hiked considerably by her victory. She now must be rated on a par with Miss Bishopp and Miss McDowell, the tournament favorites. Last year's champion, Willie O'Steen, of Virginia avenue, was over the age limit and could not defend her laurels.

Yesterday's results—Mary Gray (Twin Oaks) defeated Irma Willard (Takoma Park), 6—1, 6—4; Charlotte Mataja (Burroughs) defeated Erma Deane (Garfield), 6—1, 6—2; Mary Simmonds (Rosedale) defeated Ida Burns (Potomac Avenue), 6—0, 6—0.

Today's matches—at Rosedale at 10:30: Lucille McDowell (Burroughs) vs. Katherine Stevens (Hoover); Dorothy Haislup (Virginia Avenue) vs. Katherine Keyes (Hoover). At Chevy Chase at 9:30: Shirley Combs (Happy Hollow) vs. Viola Collins (Georgetown).

Sandlot Pick-Ups

By Jack Munhall.

One of the finest young teams in nearby Virginia is boasted by the Park Lane A. C. of Arlington County, which is credited with 10 victories in 15 contests thus far this season.

Composed almost entirely of Washington and Lee High School boys between the ages of 15 and 20 the team has secured a manager and sponsor for the first time since they were organized three years ago. This season ROY MILES is managing and backing the boys and so successful have been his efforts that they are recognized also as one of the best equipped nines in the vicinity.

The team is noted for its unusual sportsmanship on and off the field, its prime concern being not winning or losing, but putting up a good, clean fight no matter what the result.

Two of the outstanding players on the squad are PITCHER HOMEY INCOE and CATCHER HOWARD SCHWAB, two youngsters who have been traveling at a terrific gait this season. Incoe has won ten games while losing but two and his curve is such that it was recently described by an opponent, "Why, it looks like a horse shoe."

SCHWAB, who usually works with Incoe, is the spark of the club, but is aided no little by an infield of LEFTY ROBERTS at first base, CAPT. ROBBIE MORRISON at second, DAVE LAVATIVO, the team's clown, at short, and TILL WILLETT at third base.

An outfield noted for its speed afoot includes DAVE THOMPSON, "the speed king," in center; LITTLE LEON FOWLER, rightfielder, who has uncanny faculties for reaching first base, and two all-around men in SLEEPY CORKIN and EDDIE MILLSTEAD, who by their versatility have helped in no small measure the success of the club.

PARK LANE is anxious to compare its brand of ball with that exhibited by local teams and is booking games through Manager Miles at Walnut 7822.

Fette Wins Eleventh as Cubs Bow, 6-1

DiMaggio Helps Pitcher With Homer, Triple and Single.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 16.—Lou Fette, the Boston Bees' sensational freshman, limited the pace-setting Chicago Cubs to three hits, two of which were extremely dinky, today while chalking up his eleventh win in 14 starts by a 6-1 margin.

Although it was the second reversal the Cubs suffered in their three-game series with the Bostons, it did not knock them out of first place as Jim Turner's win did here Wednesday. The Pirates' 4-3 triumph over the Giants in 11 innings enabled Charlie Grimm's harassed charges to retain a three-point lead over the New Yorkers.

Vince DiMaggio gave Fette some lusty support with his stick, knocking out a homer, triple and single, scoring three runs and driving in another of the half-dozen the Bees made off Bill Lee, who was touched for 10 safeties.

Brooklyn, July 16.—The Dodgers belted 19 hits to all corners of the field today, but had to put on a three-run splurge in the ninth inning to nose out the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 5.

Five straight singles by Buddy Hassett, Heinie Manush, Babe Phelps, Cookie Lavagetto and Jimmy Bucher scored three runs off three different pitchers in the final inning dash and broke up the ball game.

Previous to that, the Reds had gone out in front with two runs in the eighth, and appeared to have the game sewed up when they sent in another run in the ninth.

No Fine? Fine!

Grissom, Phelps Won't Have to 'Pay' for Fight.

New York, July 16.—Ignorance isn't always bliss, but sometimes it saves money.

On the theory that Rookie Pitcher Lee Grissom, of the Cincinnati Reds, doesn't know the correct way to slide home, National League President Ford Frick isn't going to fine him and Catcher Babe Phelps, of Brooklyn, for their fight in Wednesday's ball game.

In attempting to slide home, Grissom jumped spikes first toward the plate protected by the bulky Phelps. A fist fight ensued between the Flatbush catcher and Grissom. Umpire George Magerkurth parted them and banished them from the game.

Jean Bauer Downs Miss Waterhouse

Captures Shennecosset Tourney, 4 and 3, in Easy Fashion.

By the Associated Press.

Eastern Point, Conn., July 16.—Jean Bauer today defeated Helen Waterhouse, 19-year-old champion, of Rhode Island, 4 and 3, in the All-Providence, R. I., final of Shennecosset's nineteenth women's invitation tournament to become the third woman golfer with at least three Griswold Cup triumphs to her credit.

Miss Bauer, who equaled a previous triple by Dorothy Campbell Hurd Howe, but still has a long way to go before she catches up with Glenna Collett Vare's seven victories, won with comparative ease over a rival who only two weeks ago defeated her 2 and 1 in a 36-hole match for the Rhode Island title.

Miss Waterhouse, hailed as a sensation in the earlier stages of the tournament as the result of extra-hole victories over Virginia Guilfoil, of Syracuse, and Mrs. Vare, experienced a sharp let-down and was never a threat after the first four holes. She won only one hole during the match, the fourth. That gave her a lead of one up, but she promptly lost it at the fifth and Miss Bauer won the sixth to go out front to stay.

Holding her one-up advantage to the end of the first nine, Jean pulled away fast on the return trip, winning the tenth, thirteenth and fourteenth to become Dormie four. A half at the fifteenth ended the match. Both started poorly, halving the first three holes in 5-5, but after Miss Waterhouse won the fourth, her game steadily declined while Miss Bauer's correspondingly improved.

ly Sullivan, and even Mel Harder. That upped the Injuns' lead to 4-1.

They laid off Ferrell in the third, but they came back for more in the fourth and got four more. A pair of walks put Ferrell in trouble and then he pitched a single to Hughes and issued another walk. By that time, one run was across and two more promptly scored when Trosky promptly singled to center. They goth their fourth run of the inning off Linke, who pitched a centerfield single to Solters.

All of this time, the Nats were simply plodding along, picking up a run here and there off Mel Harder, but muffing their big chances with the same hitlessness in the pinches they have shown ever since they struck this burg, and even before.

By the end of the fourth, the game was far out of hand, with the Indians leading, 8-2. Then, in the sixth, for no reason whatsoever, they went out and got three more runs off Linke who got mixed up with a single off Hughes' bat, a triple off Solters, a single off Campbell's, and another two-bagger off Hale's. He also threw a balk into the proceedings.

That made it 11-3, and in the ninth Walter Millies' single and Joe Kuhel's triple produced a pair of runs for the Nats, but the only thing that really mattered after the sixth inning was the fact that young Bucky Jacobs got a chance to pitch. The six Injuns he faced saw a well pitched curve but no sign of first base.

Giants Lose To Pirates In 11th, 4-3

Blow Chance to Regain Lead; Whitehead's Error Is Costly.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—The Giants threw away a fine chance to regain the National League lead today by giving up an unearned run in the eleventh inning and thereby handing the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-to-3 victory in their overtime clash.

The Giants remained only a few percentage points off the loop pace, but might have won but for the eleventh-inning blow-up.

Cliff Melton walked two of the first three batters to face him in that frame, and was replaced by Dick Coffman. Pep Young then hit what should have been a neasy double-play ball, but Burgess Whitehead made a two-base wild throw past first, allowing Al Todd to score the winning run. The Bucs' earlier runs came on homers by Young and Bill Brubaker.

On the Air Today

The Committee for industrial organization, which has planned a series of radio broadcasts to begin in the early fall, may resort to an earlier inauguration of the programs, because of the growing number of attacks on the C. I. O. by the press and radio commentators. It is known that the C. I. O. has taken a drop in the "chart of favorites" of many industrial organizations. Dr. George Gallup, Whose America Speaks appears in this paper every Sunday, told this column that surveys made by his staff, definitely point to the C. I. O.'s failure within another year, unless measures are taken to counteract the harmful publicity.

Although John L. Lewis has not given his sanction to the radio-publicity series, several unsuccessful programs of the C. I. O. have been aired. Millions of workers throughout the United States will be contacted through the series each week, whether the C. I. O. is allowed to use a national hook-up or not. The pending A. R. T. A. case with the National Labor Board, here in Washington, will determine once for all, whether an organization of the type of the C. I. O. will be permitted to use the facilities of a coast-to-coast hook-up.

The ruffled Washington scene in respect to the proposed plan to permit the Department of Commerce to absorb the Federal Communications Commission, was further aggravated by the passing of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, who had introduced a bill whereby the FCC would be protected from the Administration's new set-up for the commission. It was Robinson, who had often been thought of as a likely "czar" for the radio organization, similar to the position held by Kenesaw Landis in baseball.

According to Broadcasting Magazine, the list of prospective appointees to the vacancy in the Federal Communications Commission has narrowed down to three men. They are T. A. M. Craven, FCC chief engineer; Hampson Gary, FCC general counsel, and Carl I. Wheat, telephone-rate counsel of the commission. Any day now, the magazine states, a successor to the post of Dr. Irvin Stewart, will be named by President Roosevelt.

Wheat Prices Climb Skyward To 8-Year Peak

Canadian Drought and U. S. Rust Cause Heavy Damage.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 16.—Excited buying that overwhelmed the wheat trade today swept prices upward to maximum net gains of 5¾ cents a bushel, reaching topmost peaks since 1929.

Definite official announcement that because of huge drought damage, Canada will have but little wheat for export from this year's crop, gave particular impetus to the purchase stampede. Adding to the hurry were reports of alarming spread of black rust both sides of the Canadian border.

Furthermore, authoritative assertions were current here that wheat commercially is worth right now $1.50 a bushel, and would be selling at that price if low-grade arrivals of the grain were not for the present choking consumer channels.

At the close, despite late profit-taking on a big scale, Chicago wheat futures were 2¼-3½ cents higher than yesterday's finish, July, 1.27⅞-1.28; September, 1.28¼-⅜; December, 1.29⅜-⅞; corn, ¼-1½ up; July, 1.28-1.28⅛; September, 1.13⅝-¾; December, 81-81¼, oats showing ⅝-⅞ advance, September, 37⅞, and rye 2¼-5 cents bulge, September, 89⅝. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 12 cents dearer.

Transamerica Corp. Enters Oil Industry

San Francisco, July 16.—Active entry of Transamerica Corporation into the field of oil and gas production was revealed today in the announcement by John M. Grant, president, that plans had been completed for the exploration of 325,000 acres of the holdings of California Lands, Inc., subsidiary of the corporation. Of the total acreage Mr. Grant said, more than 35,000 acres are shown by a recent survey to lie in proven or semiproven territory.

"The project, which is expected to establish for Transamerica a substantial position in the production of petroleum in this country, represents a major undertaking in the corporation's development program," said Mr. Grant.

C. & O.-Marquette Merger Is Planned

Cleveland, July 16 (AP).—Robert R. Young and Frank F. Koble, new owners of the Van Sweringen land and rail empire, said today they were planning a merger of the Pere Marquette and Chesapeake & Ohio railroads in the immediate future.

Young and Koble, who with Allan P. Kirby, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., recently acquired the Van Sweringen properties, again expressed their intentions of eventually merging all their Eastern railroads into a single operating unit.

"I think it is about time to recognize the economies that can come through merging the Eastern lines," Young said at a press conference. "There hasn't been a thing in the way of railroad mergers for a generation."

Anthracite Shipments.

Shipments of anthracite for June, as reported to the Anthracite Institute, amounted to 4,040,363 net tons. This is an increase, as compared with shipments during May, of 249,842 net tons, or 6.59 per cent, and when compared with June, 1936, shows an increase of 524,485 net tons, or 14.92 per cent.

4 Big Railroads Report Jumps In Net Income

Net of Penn., Atchison, Erie and Southern Reflect Trade Expansion.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—Four of the Nation's leading railroads reported today substantially increased net income for the first five months of this year compared with a year ago and a fifth prominent system showed a sizable reduction in net loss for the period.

A general expansion in industrial activity, improved agricultural outlook together with a rise in carloadings have brightened the carrier's prospects since the first of the year.

Pennsylvania Railroad for the five months ended May 31 reported net income of $9,675,356 or 75 cents a share against $9,388,092 or 71 cents a share in the like months last year.

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway showed net income of $484,834 or 39 cents a share on the 5 per cent preferred compared with a net loss of $2,815,935 last year.

Erie Railroad System had net income of $1,210,608 or 10 cents a common share against net loss of $28,171 in 1936.

Southern Railway reported net income of $1,930,201 or 57 cents a common share compared with a net loss of $176,591 in the first five months of 1936.

Missouri Pacific showed net loss for the period of $4,797,331 against net loss of $5,796,415 last year.

Three of the systems, Pennsylvania, Erie and Southern Railway, also showed improvement in May net income over last year. Santa Fe's net loss for May decreased from that shown in the same month last year.

Brown-Forman Sales Gain 46 Per Cent

Louisville, Ky., July 16.—The annual financial statement of the Brown-Forman Distillery Co. was released today by Owsley Brown, president, who said that the progress of the company had been uninterrupted except for the flood period. In the eight months prior to the flood the sales showed an increase of 46 per cent over the corresponding period of the previous year.

The annual report shows net income for the year ended April 30, after Federal and State income taxes, but before provision for Federal undistributed profits tax, was $288,693, notwithstanding losses due to the flood estimated at $217,052. Operating profit, before losses and charges attributable to the flood, was $694,125.16.

The net sales for the last eight months of 1936 amounting to $5,236,676, compare with the net of $4,275,608 for 1935.

Bituminous Production.

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended July 10 as approximately 6,335,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week, 1936, 6,827,000 tons; 1935, 4,617,000 tons.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Steel Fails to Lift General Market; Wheat Advances; Francs Are Weak.

New York, July 16.—Stocks turned irregular in spite of another strong demonstration in United States Steel. Turnover again fell below the million-share mark. Bonds were dull and the Government list was barely steady. September wheat closed 3¼ cents higher at 128⅝ cents a bushel.

While the stock market was acting mulishly over the matter of following the forward drive in Steel common, and while Congressmen were fighting among themselves over procedure on the court packing bill, the moment was judged opportune by the Treasury Department to announce another of its little schemes which are going to cost the American taxpayer dearly, even though they may do something to lift the export of a few industries and corporations.

Not Even a Cup of Coffee.

Last week the country made a gold loan to China, a loan somewhat disguised by the fact that silver apparently is to be taken in payment and the supposition of most persons that China has a lot of that commodity ready for the exchange. Now today comes an even more fantastic scheme. The Treasury says it has made gold and dollar exchange available to Brazil to the extent of $60,000,000. No attempt even is made to give the affair a businesslike appearance by saying that coffee, rubber, or something, will be offered in exchange. It is an outright loan. So was the Chinese trade of gold for silver, for that matter, because the silver is hidden among the mysteries of the Orient or already in the hands of the Japanese.

What this country is to get out of it all is doubtful. In theory it will be a good thing to help China, Brazil, France and other countries stabilize their currencies; but the lack of stabilization now comes from diseases which our gold loans won't cure. There is the doubtful advantage to be gained in trade, on the assumption that the money lent, in the case of Brazil and China, at least, will be spent for American goods. If that takes place, the operation will wash out as little better than a subsidy from the Treasury to a few American co-operation shipping goods to China and Brazil.

French Francs.

French francs turned weak after the brief recovery period and the political news from the other side was less reassuring. Elections may be held in France this autumn, and if the conservative parties gain strength at the expense of the Blum factions, one big aid to the currency will have been granted. Once confidence in the Government returns, the repatriation of the flighty French capital will begin, making easier the task of refunding loans and promoting a business revival.

The week's changes in finance here brought a considerable rise in potential credit and a drop in actual credit in use. The Federal Reserve statement shows that excess reserves of the banks jumped $80,000,000 with the return of holiday note circulation. The monetary gold stock gained $47,000,000, all which was sterilized. Along with the decline in circulation, bank loans also were sharply reduced.

Nothing But Steel.

In stocks the market again was largely that of United States Steel common. Powerful financial backing for the shares is lending to the operations in the stock an interest not shown in many years. The price today made another new high record for the recovery. After the early gain Steel had to take a good deal of profit selling, and in the last hour another buying wave gave the shares strength.

Other stocks were inclined to follow at first, but soon lost interest. Selling only momentarily amounted to much, but small fractions were lost in the majority. Most steels couldn't hold early gains. Sloss Sheffield cut up a bit. Motors were firm for the most part, but Chrysler fell away. Metals were mixed, Cerro de Pasco recovered its dividend on the first sale. Oils and utilities were firm. Farm equipments dipped and rubbers gave way. Some of the liquors were weak. Philip Morris sold at a new high price.

Virtue Out of Necessity.

There was a striking difference between the decline in the French franc today and previous declines during the Blum regime, although the fundamental reasons for the decline probably were about the same. In Mr. Blum's administration the French stabilization fund dissipated its resources in a vain fight to peg the exchange rate, cost what it might. Today the French fund was reported to have begun intervention and then to have withdrawn hurriedly when it found how great was the demand for foreign currencies. In other words, it patterned its operations more closely to the ways of the British equalization fund, but for a different reason. This time the French control fund hasn't any gold. They can fight valiantly until the enemy comes within gunshot, and then all that remains to do is to snap the hammer and retreat.

Brokers' Loans.

The fall of $60,000,000 in brokers' loans for the week ended Wednesday (and for the trading up to Monday's closing) suggests that most of the rally was built upon investment buying and short covering. In so far as stock trading affected the loan total, more holders of stock on margin sold than bought. Quite likely many restricted accounts that were thawed by last week's rally were reduced at the first opportunity. All that scarcely explains the size of the fall in loans, the major portion of which must have come from a change in borrowings on account of new securities financing.

French Doubts Hit Government Bonds

Paris, July 16 (AP).—French government securities dropped from two and a half to more than four points today. Financial experts said the decline resulted from a growing doubt that the government would solve France's financial problems. Within two days 3 per cent bonds dropped nearly 4 francs (15 cents) while the 4½ per cent 1932 issue fell 6¼ francs (about 24 cents). Foreign securities strengthened on the Bourse, indicating that operators were sending money which once backed French bonds back into foreign securities.

Freight Traffic Cut by Holiday Below Year Ago

Total of 682,205 Cars Is Decrease of 5.8 Per Cent.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended July 10, which contained a holiday, totaled 682,205 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was a decrease of 42,072 cars or 5.8 per cent below the corresponding week in 1936, but an increase of 116,703 cars or 20.6 per cent above the corresponding week in 1935. The corresponding weeks in the two previous years, however, did not include a holiday. Loading of revenue freight for the week of July 10 was a decrease of 123,963 cars or 15.4 per cent below the preceding week.

Miscellaneous freight loaded totaled 269,751 cars, a decrease of 55,481 cars below the preceding week, and 18,089 cars below the corresponding week in 1936, but was an increase of 36,529 cars above the corresponding week in 1935.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 140,404 cars, a decrease of 28,743 cars below the preceding week, 22,712 cars below the corresponding week in 1936 and 10,324 cars below the same week in 1935. Car loading amounted to 97,352 cars, a decrease of 20,101 cars below the preceding week, and 6,757 cars below the corresponding week in 1936, but an increase of 21,962 cars above the same week in 1935.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 47,201 cars, a decrease of 4,677 cars below the preceding week, and 12,300 cars below the corresponding week in 1936, but an increase of 17,920 cars above the same week in 1935. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended July 10 totaled 36,403 cars, a decrease of 5,274 cars below the preceding week, and a decrease of 3,656 cars below the corresponding week in 1936.

Livestock Declines.

Livestock loading amounted to 10,121 cars, a decrease of 1,321 cars below the preceding week, 4,505 cars below the same week in 1936 and 926 cars below the same week in 1935. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week ended July 10 totaled 7,194 cars, a decrease of 1,286 cars below the preceding week, and 4,016 cars below the corresponding week in 1936.

Business Takes Upward Turn After Pause

Court and Other Legislation Will Affect Future Trade Trends.

New York, July 16.—In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Co. said today:

"Despite the fact that business activity is yielding to adverse seasonal influences, business sentiment has undergone a marked change for the better during the past two weeks. The change reflects the more hopeful labor outlook, strong opposition in the Senate to the court-packing program, and increasing evidence that the agricultural areas are facing one of the most prosperous periods in history.

"Developments in the court-packing program are, of course, attracting the most attention, as the ultimate outcome of this controversy will have far-reaching implications from the standpoint of future legislation and the fate of our present constitutional government.

"The fate of all other proposed legislation at the present session of Congress depends largely upon the outcome of the court controversy. If the opposition and the Administration maintain a strong front, adjournment of Congress is likely to be postponed until late in the summer, in which event, most, if not all, of the major proposals now on the legislative calendar will probably be dropped until the next session. The future of such measures as the labor standards bill, farm tenancy, crop insurance, ever-normal granary, housing and regional power authority is highly uncertain at this time.

"The labor situation has taken a definite turn for the better, as a result of the apparent shift in the Administration's attitude. While there is no assurance that there has been a basic change in the Administration's labor policy, the chances appear favorable for a gradual diminution of troubles during the remainder of the summer."

Crandall's Wife Values Estate At Only $650

Asks Son-in-Law Be Named Administrator; Showman Once Millionaire.

The curtain went down yesterday on the drama that was the life of Harry M. Crandall, the showman, leaving a stark situation that seldom would have occurred in one of the plays of a poor boy's climb that moved to happy ending on the stages Crandall owned in life.

His widow, Mrs. Catherine Ellen Crandall, filed a petition in District Court asking that her son-in-law, John J. Payette, be appointed administrator of the estate, once valued at $6,000,000. The petition listed the effects owned by Crandall at the time of his suicide February 26 as:

One diamond ring, value $500.
A watch and chain, value $50.
Clothing, value $25.
Furniture, value $75.
Some "valueless stocks" which were not located after a diligent search.
Life insurance, if any, would not have to be listed in the petition.

Twice within the last 15 years Crandall's name flashed—the first time January 28, 1922, when the Knickerbocker Theater crashed, and again last February when Crandall, calling himself "despondent" and missing his theaters, turned on the gas of the ninth floor room in the Parkside Hotel, with a note asking the "newspaper boys" not to be hard on him.

He began life as an $8-a-week telephone employe—branched off into livery stable business—then turned toward the movies that eventually netted him millions. He had large holdings of downtown and neighborhood houses and upward of $6,000,000 after their sale in 1929. His holdings included one of Washington's most fashionable homes—designed by a New York architect and situated at Sixteenth and Buchanan streets.

His "score," as showdom would call it, figured to exactly $650 when the final line was spoken yesterday.
